Dairy Family Demonstrates Five-Star Care For Cows, Environment

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

KEYMAR, Md. — The Martz family of Winterspring Farm believes that keeping cows comfortable pays off in the long run.

With the average productive lifespan of the Martzes' Holsteins at about 10 years and with the oldest cow in the herd still producing at 17 years, that philosophy seems to be working.

The current high cost of replacement dairy stock makes longevity even more profitable, according to Jamie Martz, who partners with his parents Kermit "Bill" and Sandy Martz and younger brother Dane in running the operation.

The family keeps a total of about 250 dairy animals on the 188-acre farm. They milk about 130 cows and grow much of their own feed on 500 acres, including rented land.

The Martz's keen attention to animal health, cleanliness, and the environment has earned them a Five-Star Stewards of the Land recognition from the Dairy Quality Assurance (DQA) Center, a national dairy monitoring organization with headquarters in Iowa.

In place since 1990, DQA has independently reviewed nearly 20,000 dairy operations nationwide. The recently started Five-Star program has chosen only a select few dairies as Five-Star operations, according to Colette Johnston of the DQA Center.

"These are dairies that have taken the initiative to be the best they can be," Johnston said.

The DQA review includes evaluating milk safety and quality, animal care, environmental stewardship — including nutrient management — and the

Walker Selected Granger Of The Year At Convention

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

ALTOONA (Blair Co.) — What does it take to be selected Granger of the Year by the Pennsylvania State Grange? How about signing up new members on your wedding day!

Ruth Walker, this year's recipient, has been a dedicated Grange member for the past 67 years and secretary for 35 years and, according to a friend, she even took in new members at an evening meeting the day she married.

Walker, of Buffalo Grange in Washington County, accepted the award in front of more than 600 fellow Grangers at the Jaffa Mosque in Altoona this past Monday evening during the 129th annual Pennsylvania State Grange Convention banquet.

"This is very unexpected, and I've enjoyed every moment (being a Grange member)," Walker said. Later, when asked what she wanted to tell others about the Grange, she said, "The young people should be involved. We need people of all ages. There are so many people (in the Grange) you can look up

It's Time To 'Fall Back'

With the arrival of fall comes Eastern Standard Time, providing fewer hours of daylight for farmers.

It's time to "fall back" to Eastern Standard Time, which begins tomorrow. We "fall back" one hour at 2 a.m. Sunday, Oct. 28.

So turn your clocks back one hour before going to bed tonight. Remember, animal feeding and milking schedules need to be adjusted accordingly.

More Than 300 Support Poultry Association Banquet

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

WILLOW STREET (Lancaster Co.) — Newly-elected Lancaster County Poultry Association president Andy Bradford believes that no other county supports the poultry industry like Lancaster.

"If it wasn't for you, we couldn't educate the public and support producers like we do," Bradford said at the association's annual banquet, attended by 317, at Willow Valley Convention Center Monday evening.

Bradford said the poultry association is the only ag organization that provides an annual dinner for family and consumer science teachers in the tri-county area. The purpose is to provide the latest scientific findings on poultry and eggs and encourage teachers to share the information with students. This has proven an effective educational and public relations tool

Northeast Broiler Fryer Parts Part I

ATLANTA, GA.
October 25, 2001
Report Supplied By USDA

Trucklot buying activity continued light and unaggressive as dealers remained very cautious and were reluctant to build existing inventories. Offerings of breast items were ample and discounted. Dark meat cuts were adequate to fully adequate. Wings were readily available. Limited promotional activity was stimulating little movement in the retail sector, and distributors were beginning to thin floorstocks in preparation for the arrival of seasonal items. The market tone was barely steady to weak.

POULTRY GUARD™
LITTER AMENDMENT

New Poultry Guard™ Litter Amendment is a unique activated clay that delivers consistent ammonia control without the handling inconvenience associated with other poultry litter treatments.

Unlike these other treatments, Poultry Guard Litter Amendment is easy and convenient to apply and needs no incorporation or activation. Fewer application variables mean more consistent performance. In addition, Poultry Guard can be applied up to five days before bird set, whenever it's convenient for the grower.

Using Poultry Guard Litter Amendment Is As Simple As...

Apply
Simply spread over poultry litter
- No incorporation
- No moisture activation
- No complicated instructions for heating and ventilation in conjunction with application

Bird Set
Poultry Guard can be applied when it's most convenient, up to five days before bird set
- No application timing headaches between clean out and bird set
- No last minute application after equipment has been lowered

Control Ammonia
Poultry Guard will deliver immediate and long-term ammonia control and give birds a healthier growing environment
- No more dangerously high levels of ammonia to stunt growth

You be the judge! We are confident this litter amendment will improve your poultry and your profits.

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
October 24, 2001
Report Supplied By USDA

Daily National Grain Market Summary

Wheat bids were mostly steady, corn and soybeans bids slightly higher. Added moisture this week may slow down harvest progress offered light support. Traders are optimistic for a good export sales number tomorrow, could lend a spark in the demand picture. Wheat bids were steady to 1 cent lower. Corn 3 to 7 cents higher. Sorghum 5 cents higher. Soybean bids were 2 to 5 cents higher. Wheat bids finished unchanged as mixed news favored today's market. Recent rains have delayed winter wheat planting areas and hampering harvest progress. Lack of export news this week despite recent purchased from Egypt, limiting losses. Corn prices slightly higher due weather conditions slowing down harvest duties. Colder temperatures are expected could lead to more losses in the fields. Soybean bids were higher as demand news is now becoming slightly more important than the estimated crop size numbers.

The Old Farmer's Almanac This Week With Almanac

OCT. 29–NOV. 4, 2001

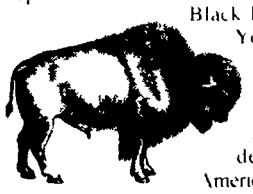
NO PLUGGED NICKEL

November 4 this year marks the 125th anniversary of the birth of sculptor James Earle Fraser. His designs of the Indian head and buffalo graced nickel coins from 1913 to 1938. Many of these nickels can still be found in circulation today. A world renowned sculptor, Frazer made portraits of three Indian chiefs before designing the nickel that would bear the famous image. The buffalo depicted on nickels of Fraser's design was inspired by Black Diamond, a bison in New York's Central Park Zoo. In 1938 the Thomas Jefferson and Monticello nickel, by Felix Schlag, replaced Fraser's coin but Fraser's designs continue to be American icons.



There are plenty of good five-cent cigars in the country. What this country really needs is a good five-cent nickel.

Franklin P. Adams, American writer (1881–1960)

TIP OF THE WEEK

To polish coins, soak them in vinegar and baking soda, then wipe clean.

ZUCCHINI COINS

3 small to medium green zucchinis
3 tablespoons olive oil
1 4 cup flour
1 4 teaspoon kosher salt
1 8 teaspoon ground pepper
1 2 teaspoon dried thyme
basil, or oregano

Place everything except the zucchinis and oil in a paper bag and shake to mix. Slice zucchinis into coins, then shake in the bag to coat. Heat the olive oil in a skillet and saute the zucchini coins over medium heat for about 3 minutes on each side. Serve hot.

Makes 2 to 4 servings

THE OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

On the first of November, if the weather holds clear, an end of wheat sowing do make for the year.

ATTENTION, GARDENERS!

OPINION

Dry, Too Dry

In the May 19 issue, our editorial, "Another Potential Drought?" pointed out how cyclical droughts have become, and the stage was set for another one.

We were right on the potential drought, and it came as expected.

In the Pennsylvania Ag Statistical Service crop weather report summary for Oct. 7, Westmoreland County's report noted "no rainfall this week." Erie County's report: "Small wells were still low and/or dry. In addition, other sources of water for livestock like small steams and springs that feed watering tanks were low or dry."

Dauphin County, on the corn harvest: "Yields were ranging from 60-150 bushels per acre and still remain moisture-deficient."

On the moisture map for Oct. 7, southeast Pennsylvania was outlined for soil moisture as "very short to short, some adequate."

In the Oct. 14 report, soil moisture concerns worsened. Soil moisture was rated 25 percent very short, 48 percent short, and only 27 percent adequate.

Crawford County: "Our area was still low on groundwater. Farmers were still hauling water, and spring developments have been going dry."

Blair County: "We had extremely dry conditions this past week . . . . Pastures were going dormant due to lack of moisture."

Union County: "We could use some rain, the ground is very dry."

Washington County: "Groundwater situation was extremely dry. Springs, wells, and streams were drying up more each day."

Franklin County: "We were still very short of rainfall."

Usually, as in the case of the drought of 1999, a hurricane comes up the coast and stops the drought. There's been no hurricane this year to ease the drought. Readers have been calling and writing in: wells are drying up. Recharge areas have not been replenished.

The report worsened even more as of this week. In the Oct. 21 report, on the soil moisture map, moisture was very short to short in the southeast, with some adequate; very short to mostly short, in the central part of the state; and in the northern sections, mostly short to adequate.

Cambria County: "The moisture levels are low."

Westmoreland County: "Water supply is still a problem on some farms."

Franklin County: "The water table is the lowest in many years, and some are now forced to drill new wells. Springs, streams, and ponds have dried up."

Now is the time to take a long, hard, serious look at your water usage and determine ways to make water supplies stretch. As this is written Thursday afternoon, no rain is scheduled for the long term in the state. Perhaps the rains and snows will come. Perhaps those well-replenishing Nor'easters we sometimes get may come, even if they take their time getting here. We just hope it won't be too little, too late.

Editor:

I would like to begin with a thank you to all the people of Pennsylvania who have expressed their congratulations to me. It is impossible to name all of you, but I so appreciate all the flowers, cards, letters, and personal comments. My school district, Juniata Valley, has been very supportive to me and I know that this year could be difficult without their cooperation. I can already tell that this is going to be a time of adventures and experiences as I travel across this great state to promote its number one industry — dairy farming.

The articles that were printed about the state pageant introduced me and my family. We own and operate a dairy farm in Huntingdon County. However, my roots are in Chester County. My parents, Mike and Janet

To Manage Risk With Crop Insurance

When farmers make a large investment in a building or a piece of equipment, purchase of insurance to protect that investment from fire or weather disasters is just a routine part of business planning.

Similar large investments are made each year in crops often without the same protection of the investment against natural disasters. However, the loss of a crop can have a larger impact on our ability to stay in business than the loss of a building or equipment.

Jayson Harper in the Penn State Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology explains that several things have happened to make crop insurance an even better risk management tool for Pennsylvania farmers.

According to Harper, Crop Revenue Coverage (CRC), an insurance product first introduced in 2000, became available to more Pennsylvania corn and soybean growers this year. Unlike multiperil crop insurance (MPCI) that covers only yield losses, CRC provides protection against both yield and price risk. The farmer selects a level of revenue to protect based on price and yield expectations. Losses are paid if revenues fall below the guarantee at the higher of an early-season price or the harvest price. Indexed Income Protection (IP) is a similar product that protects producers against reductions in gross income when either a crop's price or yield declines from early-season expectations.

Another new program, Adjusted Gross Revenue (AGR), is available in Berks, Carbon, Lackawanna, Lehigh, Monroe, and Northampton counties. This program insures the revenue of the entire farm rather than an individual crop. It does this by guaranteeing a percentage of average gross farm revenue, including a small amount of livestock revenue. The plan uses information from a producer's Schedule F tax forms to calculate the policy revenue guarantee.

Expansion of the AGR program statewide is possible if more farmers express an interest in the program. It would be a useful risk management option for farmers who have diversified crop mixes or who produce crops that are not covered by crop insurance policies.

Farmers using crop insurance have traditionally been able to choose a yield guarantee level of 50, 55, 60, 65, 70, or 75 percent of their farm's actual production history yield. In a sense, this determines the "deductible" before an insurance claim would be paid. Selecting a lower yield guarantee lowers the premium. Many farmers, however, think that they would like to have higher levels of coverage available. In response, the 80 and 85 percent coverage levels were introduced for corn and soybeans in many counties this year.

Under the Federal 2000 Agricultural Risk Protection Act, crop insurance premiums for farmers were reduced by 27-41 percent, depending on the level of coverage selected. In addition, the commonwealth of Pennsylvania is paying the $50/crop application fee and reducing producer paid premiums by an additional 11-22 percent in 2002. This means that crop insurance premiums will be 40-58 percent lower in 2002 than they were in 1999.

Catastrophic crop insurance (CAT) was introduced years ago to replace ad hoc disaster assistance programs enacted by Congress and provide a producer safety net based on a farmer's actual production history and insurance principles. The per-acre insurance premium for CAT is paid totally by the federal government. For a flat administrative fee of $100/crop/county, the producer gets a crop insurance yield guarantee of 50 percent of his or her farm's actual production history yield, with any losses reimbursed at 55 percent of the established indemnity price.

Compared to higher levels of coverage, CAT provides only minimal protection against yield losses. For some diversified farmers, this level of coverage is sufficient to protect them against severe cash flow shortfalls. To encourage all farmers to have at least this level of protection, the commonwealth of Pennsylvania is paying the $100 administrative fee in 2002.

To Purchase Crop Insurance For Apples, Peaches Or Grapes

The time period to obtain crop insurance for apples, grapes, or peaches in Pennsylvania for the 2002 crop year is from now until Nov. 20, 2001. Current policyholders likewise have until Nov. 20 to make any changes to their existing contracts.

As a result of significant increases in premium subsidies in 2000, crop insurance is now even more cost effective, especially at the higher levels of protection. Pennsylvania apple producers can also select from various quality options and price elections to help maximize the management of risk for their operations.

Fruit growers are encouraged to contact a local crop insurance agent as soon as possible for more detailed information and premium quotes. For a list of crop insurance agents in your area, contact the local USDA Farm Service Agency office or logon to the following Risk Management Agency Website: http://www3.rma.usda.gov/tools/agents/.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

COMPLEX, YET SIMPLE

Background Scripture:
Matthew 25:31-46.
Devotional Reading:
1 John 4:7-21.

The parable of the last judgment, like all parables, needs to be examined for the big truth it conveys, not the literal details of the story.

For example, as a left-hander, I do not believe God will literally put the unrighteous on his left side, nor even that God has a left or right "side." Nor do I believe that we will literally become "sheep" and "goats." Sheep are not necessarily "righteous" and goats are not necessarily "unrighteous."

I do believe, however, that there will be a judgment of each and every one of us. One of the things that is literally true, I believe, is that Jesus, not us, will do the judging. We will not be invited to join in the judging because we are not capable of doing it — a truth that we all too often forget.

When I was a lot younger, I was confident that I knew the difference between the righteous and the unrighteous. Today I realize that ultimate judgment is too complex for the human brain and spirit. I could select those who I think are righteous and unrighteous, but only God in Christ is truly able.

Think how difficult it is to be a judge in legal affairs today, to decide guilt and innocence when neither guilt nor innocence is as simple and clear-cut as some would want us to believe. Thank God the final judgment is not our responsibility. Not only do I realize that I am not capable of it, but that my judgments here and now are often too simplistic and ignorant.

The Inheritance: Grace

Something else we may miss in this parable is that the "inheritance" of the righteous is still dependent upon God's grace. An inheritance is never "earned."

We do not earn a favorable judgment with our deeds. Those deeds are the willing result of accepting God's grace. The grace is not dependent upon our deeds, but the deeds are dependent upon God's grace. Our deeds indicate to Christ that we have humbly accepted his mercy. We are undeserving of the love he gives us.

That understanding puts our ministry to others in a different light. As we acknowledge that God sheds his grace upon us while yet we are undeserving, so we are called to give grace to others who are similarly undeserving. We serve the needy not because they deserve our ministry, but despite the fact that they do not. Perhaps the "goats" in this parable failed to help "the least of these" because they believed them to be undeserving. But we are all undeserving.

Yet, complex as is the basis upon which the final judgment will be made, there is also an amazing simplicity about it for us. We do not have to be able to understand the intricacies of divine judgment, but only the simple test that Jesus gives us in the parable. The righteous are those who minister to Christ by serving the hungry, thirsty, estranged, naked, sick, and imprisoned — in other words, those in need of help which we can give. The unrighteous are those who withhold that ministry from Christ by failing to serve those same needy people. What could be simpler than that? You cannot serve God if you fail to serve others dependent upon his grace — just as you and I are.

Opportunities To Live

Unlike the early days of Christianity, most of us today are not called upon to be martyrs for Christ. We don't have the opportunities they had to die for our faith. But we are surrounded by myriad opportunities to live for our faith by ministering, not proudly but humbly, to those in need.

If you don't know of any hungry, thirsty, estranged, naked, sick, or imprisoned in your community, you are as tragically, spiritually blind and deaf as the figurative "goat" of the parable! We have an abundance of undeserving needy people in our society and we are an abundance of undeserving recipients of God's grace who can minister to those needs, if we will. What part of that don't we understand?

If the thought of the final judgment unnerves you, as it sometimes does me, don't focus on it. Instead, focus on "the least of these" whom we can and must serve.

Ritchie WaterMaster

WaterMaster has gained approval through extended use in feedlots and dairies across North America. It features heavy-wall roto-cast polyethylene one-piece body construction. Ritchie utilizes UV inhibitors...so it won't pit, crack or deteriorate like concrete. A solid wall of urethane foam insulation keeps water ice-free longer. WaterMaster options include constant flow or electric heat package with a 250 watt immersion heater and a supply line heater.

Open water encourages drinking... Fast and easy to clean
A trough that slopes towards a 3" drain for fast easy cleaning. Emptying, cleaning and refilling a Ritchie WaterMaster takes a fraction of the time most competitors require just to empty.

Meets Grade A dairy requirements
Ideal for free stall dairy operations

Solid, structural built-in mounting holes for bolting unit securely to a cement pad

Weekly Dairy Market Outlook

Ken Bailey
Penn State

Oct. 19, 2001

Markets Overreact To Demand Slowdown

- Blocks fall to within 6.6 cents per pound of support prices.
- Butter falls 20 cents to $1.25 per pound.
- September milk production down 0.7 percent.
- Futures markets reflect lower prices.

The dairy commodity markets appeared to be holding through Wednesday this week, but took a sharp drop on Friday, Oct. 19. Block and cheese prices at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange are now within 7 cents per pound of support price levels.

Grade AA butter prices at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, which were holding at $1.50 per pound, dropped to $1.25 per pound by Friday. Western nonfat dry milk, however, is holding steady at about a nickel per pound above support price levels.

Part of the reason for such sharp drops in commodity prices may be due to market psychology. Market prices were at near-record high levels a month or two ago. The market then overreacted at the first sign that there was a little too much inventory and demand weakness. Buyers held off purchases in anticipation of even lower prices. This led to still lower prices.

The market does not appear to be reacting to any change in the milk supply. USDA announced September milk production in 20 major dairy states was down 0.7 percent relative to a year ago. Cow numbers continued to decline, although at a slower rate than earlier in the year. And production per cow rebounded just 7 pounds per head from a year ago. This indicates more of the same news, that cow numbers have not rebounded and production per cow is still about what it was a year ago.

Demand picture, however, has changed. USDA reports that demand for butter and cheese for retail and fast food service is steady, but demand from travel and upscale restaurants has slowed. This has swelled the pipeline and has caused traders in Chicago to hold off on further purchases. It is likely that this problem will persist through the holiday season. Anyone who has been to the airports since Sept. 11 (I traveled twice) knows that there are fewer people traveling, eating out, and staying in hotels.

Low cheese and butter prices are just now showing up in the weekly NASS survey reports. The NASS report released today for the week ending Oct. 13 shows block cheese prices fell about a nickel per pound from the week before to $1.6597. Thus, it appears that this reflects the drop in cheese prices at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange for the week of Oct. 1-5. (There is a two-week lag between announced prices in Chicago and announced NASS survey prices). That means some of the lower cheese prices experienced in the last two weeks will show up in the Class III price for October.

The Class III futures price for October is about $14.45 per CWT as of Oct. 19, 2001. This is a significant drop from around $15.40 per CWT for an October futures contract a month ago. Most of this is because of the lower cheese prices from the NASS survey. Thereafter, the futures market expects the Class III prices to fall to $10.75 per CWT for November and $10.90 for December. This reflects a NASS cheese price of about $1.20 per pound from now to the end of the year.

It's worth noting that producers who participated in USDA's Dairy Options Pilot Program, or who used forward contracts or hedged milk for October through December, likely locked in significant gains. The November 2002 futures contract fell from a high of $14.50 per CWT during the second and third weeks of September to $10.75 as of Oct. 19, 2001. November, December, and January futures have been under considerable downward price pressure because of lower cash market prices. On the other hand, producers who used the futures markets for March though September of this year likely locked in prices $2-3 per CWT below cash market prices. This shows how volatile the cash market is.

The futures prices still look attractive for dairy producers for the months of January though June. Class III is trading $11.40-$12.20 per CWT and Class IV is trading $12.40-$12.70. A conservative strategy would involve locking in just 10-30 percent of your milk marketings for select months during February-May using the Class III futures. That way, if Class III prices fall to $9-$10 this spring, you will have some price protection. On the other hand, if Class III prices rebound from expected levels, you would receive that higher price on 70-90 percent of your milk marketings. The same strategy could work for Class IV as well, although there may be greater opportunities for higher prices beyond the spring months.

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

BIRD HYBRIDS

OHIO & PENNSYLVANIA'S BEST SEED CORN

Ten Questions!
Before you begin making decisions for 2002

- How many years in the last ten did drought limit your corn yield?
- Have you been able to recover in the good years what you lost in the others?
- Are mid-western hybrids suited to your Pennsylvania soils?
- Is early vigor as important in Pennsylvania as in Iowa?
- What is REALLY more important, bushels per acre or dollars per acre?
- Are the big seed corn companies listening to you or just selling you what they have to offer in the mid-west?
- How can this year's crop affect next year's crop?
- Why are the small regional seed companies continuing to grow while the large seed/chemical mega-companies losing market share?
- Have you ever had a hand in selecting which hybrids would be offered to you in the next season?
- Would you like to hear more???

BIRD HYBRIDS!

- Pennsylvania appropriate genetics
- Drought tolerance
- Roots suited to the varied PA soils

Oklahoma Feeder Cattle Weekly

Oklahoma City, OK
October 24, 2001
Report Supplied By USDA

Compared to last week: Feeder steers and heifers steady. Calves and yearling steers under 700 lbs 3.00-8.00 lower, most decline on 400 weight calves. Demand good for yearlings especially for steers and heifers to finish in April. Demand continues light to moderate for calves as many wheat pastures in need of rain. Many calves are moving throughout the state as grass pastures are short and hay is scarce and expensive. Receipts this week 13,150; last week 11,565; last year 7837. Supply consisted of 45 percent yearlings and calves over 600 lbs; 49 percent calves; 6 percent cows and bulls. Heifers comprised 40 percent of feeder and calf supply.

Prices follow with weighted average weight and price in parenthesis.

East Fluid Milk And Cream Review

Madison, Wis.
October 24, 2001
Report Supplied by USDA

Spot prices of class II cream, dollars per lb. butterfat: F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: 1.5247-1.8031. Delivered Equivalent: Atlanta: 1.5247-1.7768 mostly 1.5910-1.6573.

PRICES OF CONDENSED SKIM, dollars per lb. wet solids, F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: Class II, includes monthly formula prices: 1.0700-1.1100; Class III - spot prices - 1.0000-1.1800.

SPOT SHIPMENTS OF GRADE A MILK: FLORIDA: This week 74; last week 67; last year 44. SOUTHEAST STATES: This week 49; last week 127; last year 54.

The base price for Class I milk for November 2001 is $15.76 per cwt., down $0.17 from October. Class I differentials specific to each order are added to the base price to determine the Class I price. The Class II skim milk price for November is $7.96, down four cents from October.

Milk production is increasing slowly in most of the region. Some of the larger gains are being seen in East Texas and parts of Georgia. Summer-like weather prevailed over much of the Southeast early this week, but winter-like weather is predicted for the later half of the week. Colder weather is also expected in the Northeast. Milk production in the Northeast and Middle Atlantic is slowly increasing along seasonal patterns. Bottled milk sales are holding fairly steady in most parts of the region. A few scattered reports indicate that some bottlers are starting to put up some egg nog. This seems early, but Thanksgiving is only four weeks away. Surplus milk supplies are heavier in the Northeast as less milk is moving into the Southeast this week. Florida's needs did increase slightly, but imports were quite a bit lower in other Southeastern states.

Manufacturing plant schedules are still very light in the Southeast, but increasing at some Northeastern plants. The condensed skim market is little changed, but the November Class II skim milk price did move four cents lower. This may or may not have an effect on Class II condensed skim prices. Class III wet solids orders are often slower as users can purchase NDM at lower, per pound solids prices.

The fluid cream market is little changed. Spot prices are lower as the price of butter at he CME dropped another twenty cents last week. However, the price was unchanged on Monday (10/22) and if it holds through this week, contacts feel that orders for butter and cream will improve. Offerings of cream are more than ample for current Class II demand and more cream is clearing to Class III & IV plants. Ice cream production is seasonally light, but may pick up slightly now that cream prices as low as they have been in quite some time. Some ice cream plants that have been down this week are expected to be back up next week, which may help cream sales. Cream cheese makers appear to be taking more cream this week. Not only is it the prime production period to fill year-end needs, the price-per-pound-fat is as low as its been since early in the year. Bottled cream production eased slightly after increasing last week. Churning activity is about steady and excess cream volumes are still readily available.

Eastern Cornbelt Direct Feeder Pig Weekly

Report Supplied By USDA

FEEDER PIGS: Receipts: 23,078; last week 21,361. SEW 10 lb pigs were mostly steady and feeder pigs were mostly 1.00-2.00 lower. Demand was moderate with moderate offerings. Trading activity was slow to moderate.

Eastern Cornbelt - Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Michigan Receipts: 8,948; last week 14,936. Estimated 50-54% Lean Value.

EARLY WEANED PIGS, 10 Lbs Basis: Lot size 250-270: 3,268 head, 28.37-32.50, wtd. avg. 30.37; 750 or more: 2,770 head, 30.00-33.50, wtd. avg. 31.60. Total Composite: 6,038 head, 28.37-33.50; wtd. avg. 30.94.

FEEDER PIGS, 50 Pound Basis: Lot size 250-750: 1,693 head, 40.89-47.00, wtd. avg. 42.07; lot size 750 or more: 1,217 head, 40.89. Total Composite: 2,910 head, 40.89-47.00, wtd. avg. 41.58.

FOB prices are quoted on a per head basis "picked up" at the sellers farm in Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, and Michigan; these prices do not include freight.

Most lots of 40-60 weight pigs have a sliding value from the negotiated weight basis which is calculated on the actual average weight of the lot plus or minus .30-.40 cents per pound. Some lots of early weaned pigs are discounted 1.00-10.00 per head on pigs weighing under 10 pounds. Early weaned pigs are under 19 days old. Estimated lean value is projected to base slaughter weights with normal confinement feeding conditions. Vaccination and health program values are not included but health status should be disclosed.

Allied Federated Cooperatives Honors Quality Milk Producers

CANTON, N.Y. — Allied Federated Cooperatives, Inc. began a quality milk program this year designed to recognize the top quality dairies in the organization. This program was chosen to honor producers for producing the highest quality milk.

To be eligible, producers were nominated by their fieldman based on their overall scores on farm inspections, their quality records for the year, and comments by their fieldman. A committee reviewed the nominations and chose 20 to receive the award.

The following producers received this award at the annual meeting: Lanco farms chosen were Spring Hill Farm, Melvin Zook, Levi and Sarah Glick, John Petersheim, Mervin Stoltzfus, and Jon Esh; North Lawrence producers Terry and Bonita Fefee; Seaway producers Reggie and Alan Chester; Westco producers Robert and Doug Calkins; Malone Coop producer Harold Allen.

Tug Hill producers Mark and Nancy Gleasman; Grace Sherwood, Producers Coop; Terry Aubertine, Cape Vincent; Covale Holsteins, Brad and Ray Cates, Preble; Jack and Lew Fults and Carl and Cheryl Horton of United Coop.

Marble City's Gene and Diane Mealus; and Deer River producers Steve Eisel, Allen and Kathy Farney, and Roland and Janice Houghton.

Unleash the soybean powered by innovation.

With Asgrow® soybeans, profitability runs wild.

Asgrow® varieties return more and yield higher because they're driven by progress. Asgrow was first to offer the Roundup Ready® trait in soybeans, first to combine that technology with SCN resistance and first to bring you Residue Proven™ varieties.

Today, you'll see Asgrow innovation in action with higher germination rates. Superior seed purity. And yields that have growers choosing Asgrow Roundup Ready soybeans more than any other brand.

There's profit in your fields. Unleash it with Asgrow Roundup Ready soybeans.

Set these Asgrow varieties free on your acres and watch them perform.

Environmental Stewardship Award Nominations Now Being Accepted

WASHINGTON, DC — Applications are now being accepted for the 12th Annual Environmental Stewardship Award Program (ESAP), the National Cattlemen's Beef Association said today. The deadline for applications is March 1, 2002.

Sponsored by Dow AgroSciences, the ESAP recognizes cattle producers who use innovative practices to protect and enhance natural resources while maintaining or increasing the profitability of their businesses.

Any group or organization is eligible to nominate one individual/business; however, the nominee must raise or feed cattle. Individuals and families may not nominate themselves. Nominees need not be NCBA members, but they must support the National Cattlemen's Beef Association's mission: A dynamic and profitable beef industry, which concentrates resources around a unified plan, consistently meets global consumer needs and increases demand.

All nominees will compete for one of seven regional awards based on the state of residency of the nominees; the seven regional winners will then compete for the national award.

NASS Agriculture Counts

By Marc Tosiano
Pa. State Statistician

PA. CASH RECEIPTS AND RANKINGS

Editor's Note: This is a monthly column from the Pennsylvania Ag Statistics Service (PASS), a field office of USDA's National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS) in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA). The Website is www.usda.gov/nass/.

The 2000 cash receipts to farmers was recently released. We all know that milk is the largest single sector of Pennsylvania agricultural production and accounted for about 38 percent of the $4 billion in gross agricultural sales across the state.

After that, cattle and calves had 9.8 percent of sales, mushrooms 8.2 percent, greenhouse and nursery 7.7 percent, eggs 7.1 percent, broilers 6 percent, hogs 3.8 percent, hay 3.4 percent, turkeys 2.8 percent, field corn 2.6 percent, soybeans 1.6 percent, apples 1.4 percent, and other commodities were each less than one percent of the total gross sales.

Pennsylvania mushrooms rank first in the nation with about 57 percent of the national white button mushroom receipts. Compared to other states, Pennsylvania ranks #4 for milk, eggs, and trout sales; #5 for apples and strawberries; #6 for grapes, peaches, and oats; #8 for greenhouse/nursery and hay; and #10 for sales of turkeys and tomatoes.

Extension Uses Ag Counts

I recently attended meetings with extension staff from across the state. Many of them mentioned the value of NASS statistics and how the information is useful in their work serving Pennsylvania agriculture.

NASS data is used to help justify agricultural research projects and obtain the funds needed to conduct studies which benefit Pennsylvania growers. County agents use NASS data to evaluate where extension specialists are needed across the state to support the local producers of various agricultural products.

In general, NASS statistics help extension understand the distribution of small and large farms in our state. This helps agents to develop plans to meet the needs of all growers of various sizes.

2001 Small Grain Crops

Compared to last year, the September Small Grains report shows declines in production of wheat, oats, and barley. Pennsylvania small grain production compared to last year: winter wheat down 19 percent with 8.3 million bushels. Oats was down 10 percent with 7.5 million bushels. Barley was down 21 percent with 4.2 million bushels.

The same trend appeared nationwide with winter wheat down 13 percent from last year, oats down 22 percent, and barley down 22 percent.

In 2001, U.S. production of wheat is the lowest since 1988. Oat production is the lowest on record. Barley production is the lowest since 1953.

2001 Crop Forecasts

The Oct. 1 crop forecasts are in. All crops in the report show Pennsylvania production to be below last year because of reduced acreage and/or drought conditions in some areas. The report includes grain corn, dry hay, soybeans, tobacco, apples, and grapes.

Corn yields as of Oct. 1 are forecast at 94 bushels in Pennsylvania, down 33 bushels from last year's record high level. Nationwide, yields are only down 1 bushel from last year. With reduced U.S. acreage, production is 5 percent less than 2000. If realized, the 9.43 billion bushels expected nationwide would be the lowest production since 1997 but the third highest yield on record.

Alfalfa hay and other hay dry production in Pennsylvania are forecast at 10 percent and 11 percent less than last year, respectively. Nationwide, production levels are expected to be above last year.

It may be interesting to note that New York farmers are expecting a large increase in production for both dry alfalfa and other hay because of increases in both acreage cut and anticipated yields compared to last year. New York may be a source of feed for Pennsylvania farms with low stocks.

Soybean yield is still forecast at 38 bushels per acre in Pennsylvania, which is five bushels per acre below last year. While Pennsylvania production is down two percent from last year, production nationwide is forecast at a record-high 2.91 billion bushels, 5 percent above last year.

Pennsylvania-type tobacco production forecast is still at 18 percent less than last year. Maryland-type tobacco production in Pennsylvania is at 67 percent less than last year. (There is no forecast for Vector-type tobacco because it is not yet part of the USDA estimating program.)

Apple production in Pennsylvania is forecast at 460 million pounds, 3 percent below last year. Nationally, apple production is expected to be 9 percent below last year.

Grape production in Pennsylvania is forecast at 8 percent below last year at 58,000 tons. The national harvest is expected to be down 16 percent from year 2000.

The next update to these agriculture counts will be Nov. 9 for grain corn, soybeans, and tobacco.

MYCOTOXINS: A SILENT THIEF

Dr. Arlen Mills
Extension Veterinarian
Capitol Region

As we start a new feeding season each year, I enjoy asking producers what changes or response they have noticed to the new year's feed.

I know that this year a number of producers have commented that fat has increased, reflecting the growing season of most of the area, with more indigestible fiber in many forages. But one factor of the new feeds which is not readily noticeable may be the levels of mycotoxins.

Problems related to high mycotoxin levels are usually not so drastic as to be quickly noticed, with most toxic reactions appearing as poor weight gain, reproduction problems, reduced feed intake, and reduced milk production. Some other symptoms which have been reported to be related to mycotoxin levels include higher than normal incidence of metabolic diseases such as ketosis, retained placenta, intermittent diarrhea, and pregnant cows displaying heats.

I have had several calls asking if mycotoxin problems are increasing. To answer this, remember first that mycotoxins are dose-related. So a small amount may cause no problem, with problems only becoming evident at higher amounts.

Within the past 25 years or so, we have almost doubled the intake of the dairy cow while the size of the cow has stayed about the same. This results in a much higher dose of mycotoxin per pound of animal, even if feed levels have stayed the same. Higher intake of toxins coupled with the increased stress of higher milk production could be blamed for an apparent increase in mycotoxin problems.

Some of the primary toxin producing fungi found in feed include Fusarium, Penicillium, and Aspergillus. Several toxins of concern are produced by Fusarium and include vomitoxin (DON), fumonisin, Zearalenone, and T-2. Actually, there may be hundreds of toxins produced, but these are toxins which have been identified and are routinely tested for.

All fungi have three critical environmental requirements to grow. These are 1) temperatures above freezing, 2) moisture above 20 percent, and 3) oxygen. Limiting any one of these three requirements will reduce or prevent the growth of fungi, hence the formation of toxins. Limiting temperature and moisture may be difficult, so limiting oxygen in ensiled feeds is key. Oxygen is like a light switch turning toxin production on and off during storage.

Much of the toxin may be formed in feeds before harvest. The longer corn is allowed to stand in the field after maturity, the greater the likelihood of toxin development. In the case of corn silage, corn harvested after frost is at even greater risk of toxin contamination. Remember that the level of toxins is usually greater in the cob than in the kernel and levels are not decreased by ensilement.

Just as you would not eat moldy food, a good rule to follow is to not feed moldy hay, haylage, or corn to your animals. There is no way to distinguish between toxic and nontoxic fungi by sight. However, the absence of visible mold does not guarantee that a feed is safe. Dangerous levels of mycotoxins can accumulate earlier during growth of the crop and often will not be visible.

Once mycotoxins are present in feeds, there are no practical means of decontamination. They may be diluted out with clean feed to an acceptable level or one of several binders may be tried. If the change is successful, increased feed intake and milk production are usually evident within a matter of days. I have also seen situations where one absorbent did not work but another did the job.

Review the following check list of practices that may assist in preventing mycotoxin problems:

- Purchase corn and grain varieties resistant to disease and insects.
- Harvest corn and haylage at the recommended maturity and moisture levels for your storage system.
- Do not let corn stand in the field after maturity or a killing frost.
- Be sure chopper knives are sharp and cutting at the correct length to pack properly.
- Harvest crops as quickly as possible, pack well to exclude oxygen, and cover or seal.
- Since toxins are water soluble, do not allow rain to wash through upper layers of spoiled feed.
- Discard obviously spoiled feed or layers of feed.
- Clean out leftover feed from feed bunks before adding more feed.
- Match the rate of silage removal from the silo face with the size of the herd. This is 4 to 6 inches for bunker silos and 3 to 4 inches for upright silos.

With your veterinarian and nutritionist, consider the use of a toxin absorbent if a problem is identified. Mycotoxin problems are usually hard to identify and may be even harder to fix. Don't let mycotoxins rob you of profits.

Blue Valley Farm Show Dedicates New Barn

DEANNA CUNFER
Carbon Co. Correspondent

BANGOR (Northampton Co.) — Prior to the start of the open dairy show State Representative Rich Grucela was on hand to assist with the dedication of the new pole barn at the Blue Valley Farm Show, Bangor. Erected by Paul Achenbach, Pen Argyl, the funds for the 102 foot by 30 foot barn were made available by a Department of Community Economic Development (DCED) grant. Grucela was instrumental in obtaining the grant money for the Bangor Exchange Club who organizes and runs the Blue Valley Farm Show.

Bob Werner, president of the fair association, said he was dedicating this barn to all the exchange members who served before them as Grucela, fair association business manager Patti Brey and Randy Snadt, ag department chairman, cut the ribbon held by Dave and Terry Kromer, co-chairs of the dairy department.

Judge Christine Williams, of Chris-Da-Will Holsteins, Lebanon, and ag teacher at Tulpehocken school district judged the open dairy show at the Blue Valley Farm Show recently.

Williams selected the Jersey junior calf, Brew-Line Berretta Daisy, of Krissa Brewer as her junior champion of the colored breed show following with the Jersey senior calf, BDK American Mistycal, of Brian Kromer as her reserve junior champion.

Vall-Haven Berretta Daffodil, the Jersey junior 2-year-old of Brewer was then named the senior champion and later the grand champion female of the colored breed competition. The senior 3-year-old Guernsey of Diane Hahn, Brookside Goliath Rose, went on to be named the reserve senior champion and reserve grand champion female by Williams.

In the open Holstein competition, Williams selected Brew-Line Bestow Jangle, the intermediate yearling of Stephanie Brewer as the junior champion with Amanda Fehnel's junior yearling, Farvu Farmstead Windsor Violet, rising to the reserve junior champion spot.

As her senior champion and grand champion female of the Holstein show Williams chose Stacy Brewer's junior 2-year-old, Brew-Line Judge Melissa, the March 1999 daughter of Bermaneil Astar Otter and Rich-Ru Mica Exit. Williams said you had to admire the correctness of the mammary system with lots of bloom to the udder when selecting her grand champion female.

The reserve senior champion came from the dry cow class with Brandy Hahn's Lynns-Brandy Skittles later advancing to the reserve grand champion female position. Williams admired the stature and length of the reserve champion of Hahn.

The next morning judge Tom Smith, American Dairy Association Dairy Council — MidEast (ADADC-MidEast), Palmyra, reviewed the entries of the youth dairy show. In his message to the exhibitors, Smith said all exhibitors are ambassadors of the dairy industry and must educate the public.

Final year 4-H member Brian Kromer set a goal for himself at the beginning of the summer and that was to earn the titles of champion fitter and champion showman at the two youth dairy shows that his club competes at during the summer. Those being the Northampton County 4-H dairy roundup and the youth show at the Blue Valley Farm Show.

Kromer and his family knew he had accomplished his goal as judge Smith announced his selection of Kromer as champion fitter and champion showman. Smith then selected Stacy Brewer as his reserve showman and Amanda Fehnel as his reserve fitter. Brewer, 8, is in the third grade at Washington elementary in the Bangor school district and is a first year 4-H member.

In the colored breed competition, Kromer's Jersey senior calf, BDK American Mistycal, was tapped for the junior champion spot with Miss Winding Acres Mambo, the Guernsey junior yearling of Diane Hahn taking reserve junior champion honors.

Kromer repeated his success as his Jersey dry cow, Prosper Jester Misty, was selected as the senior champion and later the grand champion female of the colored breeds. This champion is also the dam of Kromer's junior champion of the day. This pair went on to be the first place winner of the colored breed dam and daughter class.

Hahn then moved into the reserve senior champion spot with her Guernsey senior 3-year-old, Brookside Goliath Rose, dam of Hahn's junior champion. This pair received the red ribbon for Hahn in the dam and daughter class.

Moving into the Holstein youth show Smith selected Stephanie Brewer's intermediate yearling, Brew-Line Bestow Jangle, as his junior champion with the reserve junior champion title going to Stacy Brewer's senior calf entry, Scottland Cels Flair. Stephanie, 10, is the fifth grade at Bangor DeFranco elementary and this is her third year as a 4-H member.

Lynns-Brandy Skittles, the junior 3-year-old dry cow entry of Brandy Hahn went on to capture the senior champion title and easily moved on to be named the grand champion female of the Holstein show. Hahn, 18, a senior in the Pen Argyl school district said this is her first champion that she can remember ever owning. Brandy and her sister Diane live on the family farm where they milk around 50 cows with Brandy owning 18 of her own and Diane owning five. Brandy said her favorite part of owning her own animals is watching them grow from babies to full grown.

Stacy Brewer followed by leading her junior 2-year-old Brew-Line Judge Melissa into the reserve senior champion spot. This entry was then named the reserve grand champion female of the show for Brewer.

The grand champion of Hahn then took the first place position in the dam and daughter class with her May 2000 calf, Lynns-Brandy Snickers.

At the conclusion of the youth show co-chair of the dairy department, Terry Kromer, announced the winner of the Danielle Palmer award. Palmer was a 4-H member the club lost at a very young age. This award goes to the member who not necessarily is tops of the show but shows great leadership and is there for the club whenever needed. The award this year went to Bailey Reichard, 15, of Finken Farms in Pen Argyl. Kromer described Reichard as showing the most improvement this year and helping with most every club event and always being there for the club. Reichard, in the 10th grade at Pen Argyl school district, owns six cows of her own and said the best part of her involvement in the dairy project is "just being with the cows."

Beaver Fair Features Snyder County Youth Livestock Fair

BEAVER SPRINGS (Snyder Co.) — Members of the Happy Valley 4-H Livestock Club, Backyard Bunnies 4-H Club, Selinsgrove FFA, Middleburg FFA and West Snyder FFA sold their market project animals at the annual Youth Livestock Fair during the 73rd annual Beaver Community Fair last month.

A total of 156 lots were sold on the auction including 11 meat pens of rabbits, 11 single fryer rabbits, 40 market lambs, 70 market hogs, seven dairy beef steers and 17 market steers.

The grand champion meat pen of rabbits was owned by Ronnie Hauck of Winfield. David Petroski purchased the meat pen for $300. The owner of the reserve champion meat pen was Matthew Shea, Mt. Pleasant Mills. Tyler's Livestock purchased the reserve champion meat pen for $140. Ronnie is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hauck and a member of the Selinsgrove FFA. Matthew is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Brian Shea of Mt. Pleasant Mills. He is a member of the Backyard Bunnies 4-H Club.

The grand champion single fryer rabbit was owned by Melissa Long, Selinsgrove and purchased by Roger Moyer's Garage and Motorcycle Repair for $310. Melissa is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orvis Long and a member of the Selinsgrove FFA and the Backyard Bunnies 4-H Club. The reserve champion single fryer was exhibited by Ronnie Hauck. The successful bidder was Larry Snook/Winfield Supply with a final bid of $350. The buyback bid on rabbits was provided by S.J. Costa and Son Trucking of Sunbury.

Charles Kessler, III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kessler, II of Beavertown exhibited the 99-pound grand champion market lamb. His lamb sold for $525 to M. L. Bowersox Livestock, Winfield. Chuck is a member of the West Snyder FFA. Keith Kessler Jr., Middleburg, exhibited the 126-pound reserve champion market lamb. Hoss's Steak and Sea House was the successful bidder with the final bid of $400. Keith is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Kessler Sr. He is a member of the Happy Valley 4-H Club. The lamb buyback bid was provided by M. L. Bowersox Livestock.

The grand champion market hog was exhibited by Derek Fetterolf, RR1 Beavertown. The 243-pound crossbred hog sold to Keystone Show Pigs, Mifflinburg for $675. The reserve champion market hog, a 227-pound crossbred hog, exhibited by Jodi Fetterolf, RR1 Beavertown, was purchased by Wiand Enterprises, Inc., Mifflinburg for $625. Derek and Jodi are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Fetterolf and members of the West Snyder FFA. The buyback bid for hogs was provided by Peachey Meats.

The 400-pound grand champion dairy beef steer was exhibited by Dexter Herman of Beaver Springs and sold to Roger Moyer's Garage and Motorcycle Repair for $475. Amelia Herman exhibited the reserve champion dairy beef steer. The 434-pound steer was sold to Hoober, Inc. for $525. Dexter and Amelia are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert

Fall Beef Quality Assurance Certification Trainings Announced

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Beef Quality Assurance (BQA) Certification Program will hold six classroom trainings during the months of November and December.

The training locations, dates and times are listed below. These trainings will be the first of a two-part educational program. The Pennsylvania BQA program trains, certifies and recognizes beef producers who adopt and maintain BQA guidelines and best management practices.

To become certified, producers must complete both parts of the two-part training. The second part consists of a chute-side hands-on demonstration of quality assurance practices.

Certified producers must also sign an agreement outlining the BQA practices they will adopt on their farms and agree to an on-farm evaluation every two years to keep their certification status current.

Certified producers receive a Pennsylvania BQA reference manual, which includes helpful management information and blank record keeping forms for copy, use and adaptation in the farm operation.

They also receive a certificate of completion, a "Certified Producer" sign emblazoned with the program's blue and gold logo for display on their farm, and ear tags or back tags to identify their cattle as coming from the farm of a "Certified Producer."

Chute-side trainings will take place spring 2002. To date, over 650 producers have completed the classroom training and over 450 producers have completed both trainings and are certified. The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, the Pennsylvania Beef Council, and the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association are sponsoring the program.

Producers must make reservations with the extension office in the county in which the training will be held. For more information on the certification program visit the web site at HYPERLINK "http:/www.pa-bqa.org" www.pa-bqa.org or contact the Pennsylvania Beef Council at (717) 939-7000.

A schedule of BQA classroom training programs follows:

• November 6
Wayne County (contact extension office for exact location), 7:00 p.m.

• November 7
Montrose Firehall (Susquehanna Co.), 7 p.m.

• November 8
Knoxville Community Center (Tioga Co.), 7 p.m.

• November 13
Days Inn Meadville (Crawford Co.), 7 p.m.

• November 14
Fiddler's Building (Fayette Co. Fairgrounds), 7 p.m.

• December 4

Claycomb Named NAILE General Superintendent

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Officials of the North American International Livestock Exposition (NAILE) have announced that long-time NAILE supporter and volunteer, James E. Claycomb, has been named general superintendent of the expo.

Claycomb's agricultural background includes being raised on a family farm in Kentucky's Breckinridge County. He graduated from Western Kentucky University with a B.S. degree in agriculture and did post-graduate work in dairy nutrition. His distinguished career included 20 years with the Kentucky Department of Agriculture. He went on to serve as the associate director of the University of Kentucky Tobacco and Health Research Institute, then as the executive director of the Governor's Task Force On Agriculture. He completed his career as the director of community development with the Kentucky Department for Local Government, retiring in 2000.

Claycomb has been married for 35 years to Betty Davis and they share a part-interest in her family's farm, which has a Revolutionary War land-grant heritage. He and Betty live in Frankfort, Ky.

The NAILE has been a routine part of Claycomb's life since the expo's beginning in 1974. He has worked at the show every November. His list of assignments through the years includes setting up and arranging stalls, working dairy and beef cattle show check-ins, working the makeup ring, doing weigh-ins, mouthing, tagging and branding of steers, processing market lambs, announcing shows, serving as acting sheep division superintendent and taking bids as auction ring man. In 2000, he served as auctioneer at the NAILE Sale of Champions.

Last November Claycomb received the 2000 Newell Hicks Vision Award. This prestigious recognition is presented annually to an individual who has helped the livestock exposition grow by providing leadership in both the livestock and commercial arenas.

Claycomb is the second NAILE general superintendent. Garland Bastin, who held the position since the first expo in 1974, passed away last November.

The annual NAILE is produced by the Commonwealth of Kentucky at the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center, Louisville, Ky., under the auspices of the Kentucky State Fair Board. During the expo's two-week run Nov. 3-16, the facility's 1,000,000 square feet of climate-controlled exhibit space is used. Shows and sales for nine livestock divisions are conducted. Nearly 22,000 livestock entries from across the U.S. and Canada compete for a total of $650,000 in premiums and awards at the world's largest, purebred livestock show.

Chester County Holds 4-H Dairy Roundup

HONEY BROOK (Chester Co.) — The Chester County 4-H Dairy Roundup was conducted at the Romano 4-H Center on Rt. 322, Honey Brook. Forty-two members, including five first year 4-H'ers, showed 130 animals.

Tom Arrowsmith, Peach Bottom, judged type for the Holstein, Red and White, and Guernsey shows. The Holstein show was the largest breed shown at Roundup, with 49 animals exhibited.

The judge chose senior yearling Century-Oak Encore Jessi, exhibited by Christy Guest, Pottstown, for the junior champion of the Holstein show.

In the Guernsey breed, Kevin Sollenberger took both senior and grand champion and reserve senior and reserve grand champion with French Creek Henry Raisin, a senior 3-year-old, and Green Slopes Melinda Mykayla, a junior 2-year-old, respectively.

The showing and fitting contest, always a closely contested event, was judged by Karen Vail of Port Clinton, Pa. and Mandy Arrowsmith of Peach Bottom, Pa. In the first year class, champion showmanship honors went to Eric Mills of West Chester. Eric's sister, Caroline, was the reserve champion first year showman.

For the first year fitting honors, the judges chose Caroline for champion while her brother Eric received reserve champion.

The intermediate division was targeted at youth 12-14 years of age. Becky Baily of West Chester was named champion showman while Mike Hicks of Unionville took the reserve ribbon. Kevin Sollenberger of Spring City was awarded champion honors in the fitting competition, with Patricia Harrop of Chester Springs taking reserve.

The senior division, ages 15-18, saw Meredith Baily of West Chester win the champion showmanship award, while Erica Lloyd of Pottstown took reserve champion. Eliza Walton of Kennett Square was awarded the champion fitting prize, while Meredith Baily took reserve.

Committee Prepares Recommendations For Farm Bureau Meeting

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — Where do farmers stand on issues concerning agriculture, such as government regulations, farm prices, or other matters affecting their future?

Each year the members of a farm group called Pennsylvania Farm Bureau (PFB) examine farm issues and decide on policy goals to be pursued by the organization with a unified voice. PFB represents more than 28,000 farm and rural families.

PFB moved a step closer to final adoption of policy for the coming year as the State Policy Development Committee met Oct. 25 - 26. The committee examined more than 350 suggested policy proposals forwarded from PFB's 54 county farm bureaus. The policy proposals were approved at county farm bureau meetings conducted around the state earlier this fall.

PFB Vice President Carl Shaffer of Mifflinville chaired the statewide committee during its two-day session which opened at the Holiday Inn West in Mechanicsburg and concluded at the PFB office in Camp Hill. "Our organization strongly believes farmers should have a big say in helping solve the problems that impact us," Shaffer said. "This meeting is the next to final step in our grass-roots policy development process."

The State Policy Development Committee is comprised of county Farm Bureau policy development chairmen. It will be reviewing proposed new policy resolutions and possible changes in existing Farm Bureau policy. Some of the policy suggestions the bureau will be looking at concern land use issues, water resources management, commodity marketing, and Game Commission and wildlife management concerns.

The committee will review the policy proposals and will consolidate them into recommendations for final consideration by voting delegates at PFB's upcoming annual meeting. Several hundred farm leaders, including 171 Voting Delegates, will meet at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center, Nov. 12 - 14, to set policies for the organization and elect leaders.

Dairy One Honors High Quality Milk Producers

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Dairy One honored producers that have excelled during the past year in the areas of quality, overall milk production, fat production and protein production at its annual meeting on Oct. 9 and 10, in Liverpool, N.Y.

Topline Holsteins of Pittsfield, N.H., received the award for high herd milk production; Makarvich Farms of Columbia, N.J., received top honors for high herd fat; and Maple Lane Farm of Apulia Station, N.Y, earned the high herd protein award. These awards are based on the farms' DHIA annual rolling herd average production.

Recognized for high milk quality and low somatic cell counts were: Dewalt Farm of Argyle, N.Y.; David Hewitt of Petersburg, N.Y.; Tollgate Holsteins of Ancramdale, N.Y.; and Roderick and Kathleen White of N. Haverhill, N.H. Winners of the high milk quality awards are chosen based on their average tank somatic cell count.

Farms receiving recognition attributed their award-winning results to having placed importance on breeding, cow comfort, cleanliness, and consistent milking procedures.

Formed in 1997, Dairy One is an information technology cooperative that provides farm management information services throughout the Northeast and mid-Atlantic regions of the U.S. Dairy One operates several milk testing laboratories, the Dairy One Feed and Forage Laboratory, DHIA records service and dairy management software and support.

Agribusiness Professionals Attend Workshop

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — We do not want dairy producers to do things the "same old way," John Park of Management Development at Penn State explained during his presentation at the recent Skills for Successful Teams Conference.

More than 60 agribusiness professionals attended the conference, which enhanced their skills in forming, leading, and working with teams.

Advisory teams are one way that producers can initiate change in their businesses. Applying the team concept to dairy businesses means working together with the producer, much like a board of directors, to plan and monitor for increased profitability.

The conference was conducted Oct. 9 in Lancaster and Oct. 10 in Carlisle. Speakers from Pharmacia U.S. Animal Health, Genex/CRI Inc., Monsanto, and Penn State University taught interactive workshops in interpersonal skills/listening skills, goal setting, coaching skills, conflict resolution, and facilitation. Participants had the opportunity to practice the skills learned in the workshop before applying them to their own teams.

Several conference attendees were participants in the dairy advisory team program at Penn State. More than 100 teams were formed in the past five years of the program.

If you have not started a team for your business, ask your consultants or local extension agent about getting started. For more information, contact Beth Moore, project manager, at (717) 375-2639. The Dairy Advisory Teams Website http://dat.das.psu.edu is now under "reconstruction." The new site will be completed by January 2002.

Crop Insurance Deadline Nears

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The USDA Risk Management Agency is reminding fruit growers that the final date to obtain crop insurance on apples, grapes, or peaches for the 2002 crop year is November 20.

Current policyholders likewise have until Nov. 20 to make any changes to their existing contracts. As a result of significant increases in premium subsidies in 2000, crop insurance is now even more cost effective, especially at the higher levels of protection.

An additional premium subsidy may also be available in some states. Fruit growers are strongly urged to contact a local crop insurance agent as soon as possible for more detailed information and premium quotes.

For a list of crop insurance agents in your area, contact the local USDA Farm Service Agency office or logon to the following Risk Management Agency Website: http://www3.rma.usda.gov/tools/agents/.

Shore Resigns

RESTON, Va. — As Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers moves forward from its discontinued merger discussions, Robert Shore has resigned from his position as general manager.

Maryland and Virginia's board of directors voted unanimously in support of Shore last month, but he decided not to continue with the organization.

Shore said, "I have enjoyed working for dairy farmers for more than 20 years and recognize Maryland and Virginia's value in the marketplace. As the dairy industry continues to change, I wish you well in positioning yourself for success. You are fortunate to have a competent and committed staff. I have complete confidence that they will move forward in running a strong organization."

President Jack Hardesty said, "Robert's four-year tenure at Maryland and Virginia has been positive and productive. He was instrumental in the consolidation with Carolina Virginia Milk Producers, a pro-active change in strengthening our milk marketing program and increasing pay prices for members. His work in creating Advantage Dairy Group and the Valley Milk Products joint ventures has been invaluable. Robert is a leader and a visionary and has made significant contributions to Maryland and Virginia and the dairy industry."

Shore will continue to work for Maryland and Virginia on several special projects through the end of the year. The board appointed Allen O'Hara to serve as the interim general manager. O'Hara has a 24-year history with Maryland and Virginia and has experience in all areas of the cooperative's business. He will work with the management team in running the day-to-day operations of the business until the board of directors selects a new general manager.

Hardesty said, "I am confident in O'Hara's abilities to manage the cooperative during this time of transition."

Nov. 13 Is Date For Lancaster Farming's Free Farm Seminar

(Preregistration Required)

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — As a way of thanking readers for 46 years of support, Lancaster Farming has scheduled a free event for the entire family, with a no-cost lunch included!

On Tuesday, Nov. 13, Lancaster Farming will host its first "Family Farm Transitional Seminar," open to everyone, at the Farm and Home Center in Lancaster.

Along with the seminar, with nationally recognized speakers, are free coffee and donuts in the morning and free lunch, courtesy of Lancaster Farming.

"The seminar is our way of thanking readership for more than 46 years of support, and a chance to gain knowledge of the latest information in transitioning the farm and farm product marketing," said Andy Andrews, editor of the newspaper.

But, Andrews acknowledged, those who wish to attend need to sign up so arrangements can be made for seating and lunch. Use the form or call Karen Hoffer, (717) 721-4416.

The seminar, at the Farm and Home Center in Lancaster, includes registration from 8 a.m.-8:50 a.m. and the program from 8:50 a.m.-3 p.m.

"More than ever, farmers must begin to more fully market their farm products to stay alive," Andrews said. "And more importantly, they must consider strategies to help turn the operations and ownership of the farm over to their children."

Scheduled speakers are Dr. John Lord, a respected and widely known product marketing expert from St. Joseph's University in Philadelphia; Elizabeth Brown, a farm accountant from Shippensburg; Brad Hilty, Penn State Dairy Alliance, with an expertise in dairy management and marketing; and Dr. Cindy Iannarelli, Bridgeville, who operates a consultant company, "Business Cents."

Seating is limited to 400, and the seminar will be no cost to those who sign up. Call Karen Hoffer at (717) 721-4416 or use the enclosed sign-up form by Oct. 29. Families will be notified by mail only — no names will appear in the newspaper.

For more information or to sign up, contact Karen Hoffer at (717) 721-4416.

ANDY ANDREWS

ECCENTRIC ISLANDS, by Bill Holm. Milkweed Editions, 2000, 347 pp., $22.95.

Given a choice, author Holm could have simply visited and reported back on those conventional, boring islands like those in Hawaii or the Caribbean. They have been reported about before, written about, visited to death.

Holm had other plans.

He writes: "The most tedious places on the planet are the artificial colonies of tourists assembled — usually in poor though dependably warm countries — for fun in the sun: condos, timeshares, duty-free shopping, happy hours, gift shops with cutesy stuff peddled by colorful natives, tireless street hawkers, sunset harbor cruises with canapes and muzak . . ." And all that.

Holm, like I mentioned, had other plans.

Rather than visiting Cancun one dismal February (being from Minnesota, where snowstorms are a constant at that time), he took a trip to nearby Isla Mujeres, the "Island of Women" It's a "sleepy shrimp-fishing and tourist island," Holm writes.

The beautiful thing is, Holm writes about how truly memorable and entertaining it can be to stay off the beaten path and explore "islands" no one would think to explore.

But Holm, in many places, gives us true histories of islands, reflections on what western civilization has done to islands, and about how islands were treated as places of refuge or as prisons. Instead of Waikiki, in Hawaii, he visits Molokai, the Island of Lepers, and provides fascinating history; The Piano Island, in China; a trip to Iceland in 1979 and again in 1999; Madagascar, the "Red Island of Music," in 1997; and Mallard, the Island of Civilized Wilderness.

Those are just the islands marked by geography. But Holm also propels us to islands of the mind, created by situations that cause us to turn inward, to our own islands, or use the islands we have as gifts (what Holm calls "The Necessary Island" of the imagination).

These are visits and speculations and thoughts about being a tourist in unheard-of places, of keen observations along the way, of what makes a travelogue greater than a tour book and turns ordinary diaries into Melville-like voyage extraordinaires.

If you go to visit these islands, take Holm's words to heart: "Islands do not want laptops or cell phones or any ringing or buzzing noise except the brass bell to summon you to dinner in the Wanigan or the buzzing of moths around a kerosene lamp or a candle. Islands want you to read old editions of 'Leaves Of Grass' or eighteenth-century travel books or maybe Joseph Conrad's novels. Islands want you to wash in shallow coves that warm up enough on sunny days . . . ."

ENCYCLOPEDIA OF MONEY, by Larry Allen. Facts on File/Checkmark Books, 2001, 341 pp., $18.95. ISBN 0-8160-4602-6

Did you know:

• The "term 'dollar' is apparently a variation of the term 'thaler,' a common term for coins in Germany and Eastern Europe that may have been derived from a valley named Joachimsthal where coins were minted in the sixteenth century."? (page 98).

• That, according to ENCYCLOPEDIA, the "modern English word 'bank' can be traced to the moneychangers' bench of the Middle Ages."? This comes by way of the word "trapesite banking," a term for private banking that arose during the mid-fourth century in ancient Greece, according to this encyclopedia. "The trapesite bankers themselves were called 'trapezitai,' and the banking concerns were called 'trapezai.' The Greek word 'trapeza' means 'table,' a reference to the moneychangers' tables of the ancient world." (page 283).

• Where the words "salary" come from? (see page 245). How about the Suffolk system in the U.S.?

• Page 280 even provides details about where names such as "money" and "mint" came from (temple of Juno Moneta).

ENCYCLOPEDIA shows that though much of the culture of our country comes from Europe, the "dollar is one institution borrowed from the Spanish, a descendent of the Spanish milled dollar that circulated in the American colonies." (page 65).

This book holds some fascinating history for the coin collector, the money buff, and those fascinated with how our financial institutions, and our very way of life, came to be.

THE FACTS ON FILE DICTIONARY OF WEATHER AND CLIMATE, ed. By Jacqueline Smith. Facts on File, 2001, 250 pp.

For the climatologist in us, this book serves a great purpose: it defines those terms we might not understand, such as "laminar flow" and "temperature-humidity index" and "warm occlusion."

WEATHER AND CLIMATE provides a great deal of charts and graphs to explain the terminology. It proves that simple weather forecasting is not so simple, and can get pretty technical at times.

Correction

In the Oct. 6 issue, Lancaster Farming incorrectly reported this Ephrata Fair Livestock Sale result. World Welcomes First Sex-Selected Sheep

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. — The U.S. biotechnology firm, XY, Inc. recently announced its success in producing sex-selected sheep through the use of advanced sperm-sorting techniques. The lambs are the first ever to be conceived using low doses of sperm that were sorted, frozen, thawed and artificially inseminated into ewes.

Sperm sorting involves separating sperm that carry female-producing X chromosomes from sperm that carry male-producing Y chromosomes. The procedure sorts the sperm, but does not genetically alter them, thus not harming the animal in any way.

Cloning could save endangered animals Scientists have successfully cloned a European Mouflon lamb, paving the way for saving threatened and endangered species, and even bringing back animals from extinction.

The Mouflon is a wild breed of sheep found in dwindling numbers in Cyprus, Corsica and Sardinia.

— News from American Sheep Industry Association (ASI) week ending Oct. 19, 2001.

Pesticide Security, Safety Critical

NEWARK, Del. — The possibility of chemical weapon strikes or attacks on food and water supplies, coupled with recent temporary bans on agricultural aircraft use by the Federal Aviation Administration, is prompting a new awareness of proper pesticide storage and security measures.

"We all need to go about our normal routines in the safe and proper use of pesticides, with perhaps a bit more attention paid to safe and secure storage due to the terrorism threats we now face as a nation," says Dr. Susan Whitney, Cooperative Extension pesticide coordinator at the University of Delaware. "The events of the past few weeks bring a need for higher levels of awareness and responsibility among pesticide applicators."

Whitney urges growers, agrichemical dealers, aerial applicators, lawn care operators, pest management professionals and others who regularly store and use pesticides to review their management practices associated with storing pesticides and pesticide application equipment.

"These are simple, appropriate and justifiable steps to take," Whitney says, suggesting a personal check-list of proper pesticide storage procedures that include the following 10-step review:

1. Ensure pesticide storage is secure and locked.

2. Be aware of who has keys and access to pesticide storage areas.

3. Post all storage areas (i.e., "Pesticides — Keep Out").

4. Post names, addresses and telephone numbers for contact persons at the primary entrance to the storage area (list at least two people, if possible).

5. Regularly inspect storage facilities and maintain an inspection log.

6. Commercial pesticide applicators should be aware of who has access to pesticide storage areas during business hours.

7. Keep inventory records of pesticide products current and readily available.

8. Secure pesticide application equipment to prevent unauthorized access.

9. Ensure pesticide label and Material Data Safety Sheets are available on all stored pesticides.

10. Keep a list of emergency telephone numbers readily available, including fire, law enforcement and medical contacts.

"The above points are most important," said Whitney, "Our initial thoughts on pest management have taken a turn that we may not have considered only a month ago. Today we all have a responsibility to more closely monitor proper storage and use practices."

With that thought in mind, she recommends that homeowners likewise evaluate safe storage practices for their lawn, garden and household pesticides.

Dairylea Cooperative Honors Members

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Dairylea Cooperative Inc. packed a lot of relevant information for its members on the latest production practices, animal health issues, and legislative issues affecting the dairy industry into its two-day annual meeting recently at the Holiday Inn in Liverpool, N.Y.

Keynote speaker for the general session Tuesday was Gary Hanman, president and chief executive officer of Dairy Farmers of America. Other speakers were Gregg Engles, chairman and CEO of Suiza Foods, Corp. and Mary Kay Haben, president of Kraft Cheese, Meals and Enhancers.

Legislative update was provided by Bob Gray, executive director of the Council of Northeast Cooperatives. "Our annual meeting provides our busy producers with an opportunity to gain a better insight into the activities of the industry," said Rick Smith, Dairylea's chief executive officer.

High Quality Milk Producer Awards

For the past 17 years, Dairylea's quality program has recognized members who produce outstanding raw milk. Each month, milk samples from every Dairylea member-farm are tested based on strict industry criteria.

Monthly criteria includes somatic cell count of 300,000 or less, no added water, no growth inhibitors, and no off flavor, odor or questionable appearance.

The Dairylea member farms with the top quality milk in the 2000-2001 Milk Quality Management Award Program honored at the meeting were Raymond and June Alleger, Duane Alleger, and Douglas Alleger, Cameron, N.Y.; Barry Bloss, Wapwallopen, Pa.; Louis DesJardins, Munnsville, N.Y.; Feagles Farm, St. Johnsville, N.Y.; William and Allan Shoemaker, New Woodstock, N.Y.; Gerald and Linda Smith, Martinsburg, Pa.; James and Donna Walker, Susquehanna, Pa.; and Willett Farms, Inc., Hunt, N.Y.

Members receiving recognition attributed their high quality results to placing importance on cleanliness, consistent milking procedures and cow comfort.

Youth Leadership Awards

Genie Bruce, of Knoxville, Pa.; Pam Cornell of Genesee, Pa.; and Gregory James White, of Clymer, N.Y., were presented with the Dairylea Leadership Award, which is given annually to Dairylea youths who exhibit outstanding service and leadership skills and show a demonstrated spirit of cooperation.

Genie Bruce attends the Arnot Ogden School of Nursing, where she is working to become a registered nurse. Bruce is the fourth generation in the family to live and work on the farm — home to their herd of registered Jerseys. Bruce helps with calves, heifers, feeding cows, fieldwork, and sometimes lends a hand milking. In high school, she was a member of FFA, National Honors Society, and played softball.

Pam Cornell is in her freshman year at Alfred State University working toward a veterinary technology degree. On the family's farm, So-No-Co Farm, Cornell is responsible for milking, bedding, and feeding calves, and tending to animal health. She says working with the cows as she grew up inspired her to pursue a vet tech degree. In addition to her many responsibilities on the farm, Cornell was very active in 4-H, FFA, and school organizations during her high school years and maintained honor roll grades.

Gregory James White plans to attend the State University of New York at Buffalo to work toward a degree in elementary education. He hopes to teach at his hometown school — Clymer Central. White's grandfather, uncle, and father run Cabhi Farms with 300 registered Holsteins. His responsibilities on the farm are tending to the heifers, milking when needed, and assisting with fieldwork. White is also very active off the farm having served as New York State District 10 president of FFA, a member of 4-H, and captain of the high school football team.

Five Farms Honored

Five member farms were recognized during the annual meeting for having achieved 50 years of membership. Each year Dairylea takes the opportunity to give special recognition and thanks to the members that have achieved the half-century benchmark.

This year's 50-year members are John Snoddy and Terry Snoddy of Snoddy Farms in Allenwood, Pa.; John Turnbull of Mount Vision, N.Y.; Raymond and Mary O'Neil of New Albany, Pa.; Gary Wade, Jim Wade, and Faye Wade-Sharp of Lost Acres Farms in Oxford, N.Y.; and Alva Van Derwerker of Cherry Valley, N.Y.

Veteran Ayrshire Breeder Passes On Tradition

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — In 1950, Kennard Henley, Jr. wrote the following words as his entry in a national FFA contest: "Selecting, breeding, and developing a purebred dairy herd are an everyday challenge and responsibility, with intriguing suspense and immeasurable rewards found in no other vocation."

Those 25 words won Henley the 1950 National FFA Project Calf.

At the 2001 All-American Dairy Show here Sept. 23-27, Henley said that the statement he made in 1950 could be repeated with the same enthusiasm today.

Henley, his wife Betty, and their three children first began showing purebred dairy cattle in Harrisburg in 1964 at what was then called the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show. Through the years, the Henleys continued to maintain a rigorous show schedule while running their farm in Chester County.

The family tradition is continuing through Henley's daughter Sharon, her husband Rob Nolan, and their four children. This year Craig and Rebecca Nolan, ages 23 and 16, brought seven Ayrshires to the All-American, taking home a first place ribbon in the aged cow class in the youth show.

The Nolans maintain a show string including about 12 mature cows on their farm, Dreamnol Ayrshires, near Cochranville.

Henley now travels from his home in Florida to attend the annual All-American event.

Belgian Show Results

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The 2001 Belgian Horse Show was conducted on Oct. 4 during KILE. At the completion of the show, several champions were named.

In the gelding champion classes, Jay, owned by Mark Barie of East Bethany, N.Y. was selected as the grand champion gelding. Taking home the reserve champion rosette was Major owned by Larry and Carol Hitzfield from Roanoke, Ind.

L&C Titan, owned by Lee Eller from Arcadia, Ind., was selected as the grand and junior champion stallion. Pulling into the reserve grand champion and senior champion spot was Stoney Lake Clifford owned by Darrell Drain from Ontario, Canada. The reserve junior champion stallion was Harbor Haven's Extrene owned by Tom Steinbrick of Marblehead, Ohio. The reserve senior champion, Eberspacher's Gerret, was owned by Duane and Jackie Farr, Jeddo, Mich.

PCC Members Vote For Merger At Annual Meeting

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — This week's Pennsylvania Council of Cooperatives' (PCC) annual meeting included the giving of awards, a keynote speaker, several shorter presentations, a business meeting, and a board of directors' meeting.

Joe Coffey, Midlothian, Va., a consultant in the U.S. and Africa and agricultural policy professor at Perdue University, was the keynote speaker.

"Vision of the Future" was the theme for the gathering, and in keeping with this theme PCC members voted on the merger between Pennsylvania and Maryland cooperative councils. Approximately 30 members voted unanimously for the merger. Maryland membership will vote Dec. 10. The targeted effective date is January 1, 2002.

The council hopes to include other nearby states in the new organization, which will be named the Mid-Atlantic Alliance of Cooperatives.

This June a meeting had already been conducted with board of directors from both organizations. During the meeting board members discussed issues such as bylaws, dues structure, programming, and education and approved the merger concept.

Almost 70 industry representatives attended Wednesday's luncheon, which was followed by the meetings at the Penn Stater Conference Center Hotel.

Awards

Sam Minor, Washington, is the winner of this year's Hal F. Doran Cooperative Business Education Award. David Blandford, head of Penn State's department of agriculture economics and rural sociology, presented the award.

Minor, along with his wife Beverly, operate a dairy and vegetable farm and retail farm market and restaurant. The couple has five children, three of whom are partners in the business. A former director of the PCC and an Agway director since 1987, Minor is active in leadership of many agricultural organizations and has helped guide Penn State's cooperative business education and research program.

John Schwartz's wife, Kathy, and two children, Katie and John, accepted the Cooperative Educator Award for Schwartz, who passed away Aug. 20, 2001. Schwartz was an extension director in Lancaster County for 10 years and then York County since March 2001.

He attended the PAFC Summer Institute as a young adult and later served on the Lancaster Region Cooperative Council, Ag Horizons Committee, and Summer Institute staff.

The Horizon Award honors a young leader involved with cooperative activities and programming. This year Jeff Stoltzfus, Atglen, won the award.

Stoltzfus, an adult farmer advisor at the Eastern Lancaster School District, also attended the PAFC Summer Institute as a young adult. In 1997 he became youth director for the institute, where he continues to serve. In addition he helps to plan the one-day Business Leadership Training Seminars and serves on the Southeast Council and Ag Horizons Conference Planning Committee. His wife, Rhonda, also helps Stoltzfus during the institute.

Jeff Stoltzfus accepts the Horizon Award.

Keynote Address

Joe Coffey, Midlothian, Va., a consultant in the U.S. and Africa and agricultural policy professor at Perdue University, was the keynote speaker. Besides being active in many state and national professional organizations, and years of service at Virginia Tech, the Agricultural University of Peru, and the University of California at Berkeley, Coffey worked in the office of the secretary of USDA. For 18 years, he was the vice president of economics and planning at Southern States Cooperative.

In his presentations, "Cooperative Trade Associations and Their Future," he laid out his ideas for how cooperatives will fit into the future.

Basic economic laws, such as cycles and consolidations, and consumer sovereignty, will remain the same, said Coffey. New factors such as terrorism and anthrax fears will increase an emphasis on biosecurity and food safety.

"How will cooperatives fit into this business environment?" asked Coffey.

"The first law of business, and the fundamental part of my message, is find out what your customer needs and wants and sell it to them at a profit," he said.

Be local, advised Coffey. Capitalize on your local knowledge and relationships. "You must know the local situation better than anyone else," he said. "Be close to your customers. Customer relations are one of your most important assets," he said.

Coffey also recommended involvement with the information highway.

"Invest in being able to deliver information," he said.

Leverage the resources of alliances and partnerships, said Coffey.

Cooperatives will play a positive role on the marketplace in the future, said Coffey. "You can make a difference in the future, and I applaud you for that."

Presentations

The afternoon's events included several informative presentations covering various topics on cooperatives.

Beverly Minor accepted the Hal F. Doran Cooperative Business Education Award for her husband, Sam.

Richard Poorbaugh, program manager of Penn State's cooperative business education and research program, presented the educational needs of large and small cooperatives, information derived from the survey conducted for the Keystone Development Center.

Robert Cohen, regional manager for Columbus, Ohio-based ACDI/VOCA, discussed operating strategies of cooperative councils in the mid-Atlantic region.

"There are few examples of the type of merger we're about to see here, although some councils operate jointly in administration," he said. Despite the lack of precedents of mergers, councils have worked jointly, formally or informally, to sponsor programs, which increases participant numbers.

Kathy Schwartz, along with children John and Katie, accept the Cooperative Educator Award on behalf of their husband and father, John Schwartz.

Cohen discussed four areas of cooperative council programming: the youth program, young cooperative leader program, director training, and employee training. Jay Rush, consultant, presented his findings from a survey conducted of 26 cooperatives for the PCC.

The project, said Rush, was to define membership expectations with programming and service needs, dues level and structure, and commitment of membership staff. He conducted 24 interview representing 26 cooperatives.

Quarter Horses Take Center Stage At KILE

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Quarter Horse breed took to the large arena on Sunday Oct. 7 to continue the horse show at KILE. Over 70 horses competed in the show.

After review by two judges several entries were selected as champion class winners of the show. The grand champion stallion of Quarter Horse Show A and B was Twist of Array owned by Thomas E Hunter of Arbion. Entering the winner's circle for the reserve champion stallion was Advanced Copy owned by Victoria Doyle, Waynesboro. Advanced Copy was selected as the reserve champion of both shows.

Kid Bartime owned by Gregory Sexton, West Farmington, Ohio was selected as the grand champion gelding in both Quarter Horse shows. The reserve champion award of Show A and B went to GM Wild Streak from Hamilton, Ohio. Jared Holden owns the reserve champion.

Taking the victory lap in the mare classes of the Quarter Horse show was Cool As Ace owned by Wilson Clapsaddle of Gettysburg. Completing the championship Class was A Obvious Earlette owned by Floyd Sholder Jr., Linden.

New Scholarship For Tomorrow's Beef Industry Leaders

WOOSTER, Ohio — For the first time a junior-or senior-level student enrolled in a four-year institution will receive a $1,500 Colvin Scholarship award during the fall 2002 school term. Applicants will be judged on activities, scholastic achievement, communication skills and reference letters.

The scholarship fund was developed in 1999 to honor Louis M. "Mick" Colvin when he retired from the Certified Angus Beef LLC (CAB). Colvin co-founded CAB in 1978 and directed the beef brand for more than 20 years. The scholarship is designed to benefit young adults who have shown interest in the beef industry, have established themselves as leaders, and excel academically.

Applications, including references and an essay, must be postmarked no later than Dec. 1. The 1,000-word essay should address the challenges facing the beef industry in delivering a desirable eating experience 90 to 100 percent of the time. For further information visit www.certifiedangusbeef.com, or contact Dena Krumwide, scholarship coordinator, by e-mail dkrumwide@certifiedangusbeef.com or call (916) 362-0528.

The recipient will also be considered for a paid internship.

"Accepting the internship is not a requirement of the scholarship," said Deborah Leonard, director of marketing-communications, CAB. "The linking of the internship and scholarship offers a unique opportunity to get first-hand experience with the industry leader."

The Colvin Scholarship Advisory Committee is responsible for all fund-raising, judging criteria and award selections. Applicants will be notified of results in January 2002. The 2002 winner will be publicly announced at the Certified Angus beef LLC Annual Conference.

"The most rewarding part of this scholarship will be seeing some of the brightest young leaders rewarded for their outstanding efforts and given a chance to launch a career in the branded beef industry," said Colvin.

The committee plans to award a second scholarship within three years. Timing will depend on the growth and interest earned.

Tax-deductible donations can be made to "Angus Foundation-Colvin Fund" and forwarded to CAB at: Colvin Scholarship Fund, C/O Certified Angus Beef LLC, 206 Riffel Rd., Wooster, OH 44691.

In addition to The Colvin Scholarship Fund, a $1,000 CAB/National Junior Angus Association scholarship is awarded to a student each July. Applications for this scholarship are due by May 15 of each year. Interested students should contact: Junior Activities Dept., C/O American Angus Association, 3201 Fredrick Blvd., St. Joseph, MO 64506, or visit the Association's Website at www.angus.org.

Steven D. Murphy New Chief Executive Officer

DES MOINES, Iowa — The National Pork Board has selected Steven D. Murphy of Des Moines, Iowa, as its new chief executive officer. Murphy had been president/chief operating officer of AgWeb.com, Inc.

"The pork checkoff has been successful in increasing consumer awareness of pork, building demand for pork, providing education programs for pork producers, and coordinating and sharing research on swine health, pork quality and safety," said Murphy.

"The producers' investment in the pork checkoff has played an important role in laying the foundation for a strong pork industry. I look forward to the challenge of building on these accomplishments and examining new initiatives that continue to deliver the tools producers need. I also am excited about working side by side with the many producers who direct the pork checkoff program."

Murphy will manage the National Pork Board staff, which operates checkoff-funded programs. The new position was created in the pork checkoff settlement agreement with USDA.

The National Pork Board CEO will implement the budget as approved by the National Pork Board and U.S. Department of Agriculture, communicate with producers, and oversee staff.

Hugh Dorminy, National Pork Board President and CEO Search Committee chair, said, "Murphy will be committed to the pork industry and driven by the desire to efficiently and effectively administer the pork checkoff program priorities as established by pork producers and pork importers."

American Angus Association History Book Available

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — The first-ever published history of the American Angus Association is now available in a book titled "A Historic Angus Journey American Angus Association, 1883-2000."

The book contains more than 350 pages of history and photographs that track the evolution of the world's largest beef breed organization and highlights the people and events that made the Angus breed a success.

PCC Conducts Annual Meeting

The youth programs, said Rush, are a declining priority, as evidenced in the staff reduction in that area. The young cooperator program is used by only five cooperatives because of recruiting issues. "It needs to be marketed to co-op leaders," he said. Interviewees suggested an in-house module for employee education.

The director institute was the highest utilized program. Ag Horizons, found Rush, was at a crossroads as members are questioning the value of the program.

Half of the interviewees desire a reduction of dues and the other half, "mostly the smaller payers," are fine with the dues amount and structure.

The merger was a central topic of discussion for several presentations.

James Barnett, president of the PCC, and John Stump, Maryland Council of Farmer Cooperatives, jointly presented the vision for the new "Mid-Atlantic Alliance of Cooperatives."

Dave Zimmerman, PCC treasurer, presented the need to plan for local councils in the newly-formed alliance. Later Barnett returned to speak about governance for the new alliance, and Bruce Stainbrook, vice president of PCC, discussed financing the new alliance.

After the presentations PCC members conducted their annual business meeting, followed by a board of directors meeting.

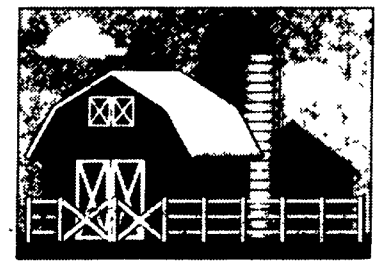
USDA Announces National Dairy Board Appointments

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The USDA has announced nine new appointments and four reappointments to the National Dairy Promotion and Research Board. All except one will serve three-year terms from Nov. 1, 2001, through Oct. 31, 2004. One member will serve a one-year term, filling a vacancy that ends on Oct. 31, 2002.

Newly appointed were Marlin J. Rasmussen, St. Paul, Ore. (region 1); Robert R. Bignami, Chico, Calif., Margaret A. Gambonini, Petaluma, Calif., and Patricia M. Van Dam, Chino, Calif. (region 2); Rosalie M. Geiger, Reedsville, Wis. (region 6); Alice S. Moore, Frazeysburg, Ohio (region 9); Deborah A. Benner, Mt. Joy, Pa. (region 11); David E. Hardie, Lansing, N.Y. and Audrey G. Donahoe, Frankfort, N.Y. (region 12). Ms. Donahoe will fill the vacancy for a one year term.

Reappointed to serve second terms were William R. Ahlem, Jr., Hilmar, Calif. (region 1); Steve P. Frischknecht, Manti, Utah (region 3); Lynda S. Foster, Ft. Scott, Kan. (region 4); and Robert K. Herman, Taylorsville, N.C. (region 10).

The National Dairy Promotion and Research Board, composed of 36 dairy farmers representing 13 regions of the contiguous U.S. administers a coordinated program of promotion, research and nutrition education.



Dairy Family Demonstrates Five-Star Care For Cows, Environment

quality of cull animals sold for beef.

Jason Swallow, a dairy nutritionist and certified DQA consultant from Columbia, reviewed Winterspring Farm for the program.

Swallow was already working with the Martzes on balancing their feeding rations. He saw the DQA program as "a great way to delve into other parts of the farm."

According to Swallow, the DQA review not only recognized areas where the operation excelled, but also outlined a plan of action for points that could be improved.

The Martzes are an innovative dairy family who are always looking for ways to do things better, he said. "They're a real pleasure to work with."

As a young man, Bill Martz worked with his father who managed a dairy farm in Baltimore County, providing milk to Mt. Wilson State Hospital, a facility for tuberculosis patients at that time. The family later purchased a dairy farm in the Eldersburg area.

After the death of Bill's father, and with increasing development coming into the area, his mother sold the farm. Bill Martz spent some years working in the construction business, then managed a dairy for four years for a state senator in Frederick County before purchasing Winterspring Farm in 1977.

The Martzes made the move with four children to the Keymar homestead. Bill gave it the name Winterspring Farm for the large number of year-round springs on the property.

The family went to work establishing a dairy operation there that would sustain them through cycles of low milk prices and droughty conditions during the '80s, '90s, and into the '00s.

According to Jamie, the soil in the area is a challenge because of its tendency to hold water.

"You have to know when to (work it), and when to sit still," he said.

The Martzes have installed drainage tiles on a large part of the farm.

They grow corn, alfalfa, and mixed hay as well as some wheat for chopping, grinding their own TMR from the forages, high moisture corn, soybean meal, and mineral supplement.

Jamie Martz said that the TMR mix is changed according to conditions, including the cost of soybean meal and other supplements, and with a goal of keeping the cows at their healthiest.

Milking cows are also given free-choice mixed hay.

The feed is not mixed for highest possible milk production because the Martzes would rather see the cows live longer, produce more calves, and make more lifetime milk.

According to Jamie, "hot" rations also tend to make hooves grow faster, requiring more attention to foot care. The family keeps a close watch on hooves and trims them as needed, without having to rely on outside help.

"We've only had a hoof trimmer in once," he said.

Other keys to good cow care on Winterspring Farm are keeping the animals off cement and allowing them to exercise whenever possible.

When it comes to choosing sires, the ones that produce good feet and legs are first pick, Jamie said.

"If a cow can't walk, she can't milk," he said.

Sires are chosen from various sources, including semen suppliers in Canada and the U.S. Semen is stored on the farm, as Jamie has been breeding cows by AI since 1980. Several registered bulls are also kept as "clean-up" breeders and for breeding some of the heifers.

The Martzes use sand for bedding in the freestall barn.

Sand does not heat up like other types of bedding such as wood shavings, Bill said. The result is less bacterial growth and a generally cleaner environment for the cows.

The sand also sticks to the hooves, preventing slippage on concrete.

Winterspring Farm cows produce an average of about 62 pounds per day, with milkfat generally at about 3.9 percent. Typical somatic cell counts (SCC) in the milk run about 250,000.

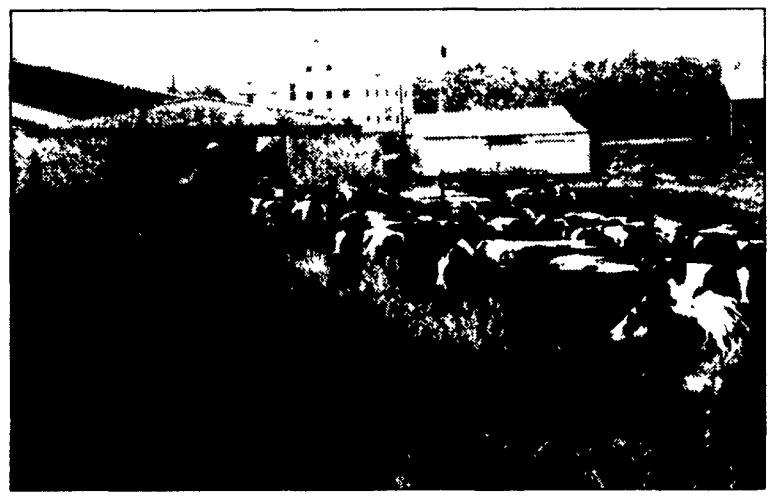
Swallow said that he is working with the Martzes to lower the SCC even more.

According to the DQA Center, Winterspring Farm provides daily milk to nearly 6,000 people, via the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative where the milk is shipped.

Swallow said that the Five-Star recognition will help assure those people they are buying a quality product.

"It increases the confidence level of the consumer," he said.

The DQA program was formed to increase public awareness of milk quality issues and is funded by various private industries and milk producers. Its administration is funded in part by grants from the Environmental Protection Agency.



The Martzes turn the cows outside for exercise as often as weather conditions allow.

Walker Selected Granger Of The Year

to. To be an inspiration in your lifework is a pleasure when you love what you're doing."

Walker said church, family, and the Grange have been the center of her life. She remembers traveling around the state to take on new members.

The 129th annual session of the Pennsylvania State Grange opened in Altoona last Saturday when Grange Master (president) William A. Steel delivered his opening remarks. Secretary of Agriculture Samuel Hayes, Jr. also spoke.

Grangers attended seminars and business sessions on Sunday and Monday and concluded the convention on Tuesday. The presentation of awards highlighted the All-Granger Banquet.

Steel presented the Recruiter of the Year Award to Raymond Gross of the Plumsteadville Grange in Bucks County. Gross secured 15 new members. Community Service chairpersons Michael and Janet Pratt reported that Grangers throughout the commonwealth contributed more than 123,000 hours to improving their communities. Although the dollar amounts donated totaled more than $58,000, the Pratts believe the figure is much higher because not all Granges submitted reports.

The top four Subordinate Grange winners were, in alphabetical order, Fort Granville in Mifflin County, Middletown in Bucks County, Schneeksville in Lehigh County, and Virginville in Berks County. The Middletown Grange donated more than $30,000 to local fire departments. The top three Pomona winners were Centre County, Lebanon-Northampton, and Montour-Northumberland-Union.

Ruth Walker, center, of the Buffalo Grange in Washington County was given the Granger of the Year Award. Congratulating her are, left, Harold Steeley, 2000 Granger of the Year, and, right, William Steel, Pennsylvania State Grange Master.

The County Recognition Award of Police Officer of the Year went to Deputy George Palombo of Beaver County. Firefighter of the Year went to Andrew Moffie, Jr., of Beaver County; and Teacher of the Year went to Roger Bowman of Berks County.

Pa. Milk Premium Set At $1.65

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board voted recently to set the statewide premium price at a total of $1.65 per hundredweight for the months of November and December.

The premium represents the amount paid above the federal order price to Pennsylvania milk producers for Class I (beverage) milk that is produced, processed, and sold in Pennsylvania.

The decision increased the premium by $.30 per hundredweight from the previous level of $1.35 set in June.

The board had conducted an emergency hearing Oct. 3 to hear testimony from dairy industry representatives concerning the premium level.

Edward Gallagher of Dairy Marketing Services, Dairylea Cooperative, and Dairy Farmers of America, was among those requesting the $.30 increase.

Gallagher cited several reasons for upping the premium, including a decline in Pa. milk production, dry summer weather, and intense competition for milk in the marketplace.

Joining Gallagher in his petition were representatives of the Pa. State Grange, Lehigh Valley Dairies, and the Pa. Association of Milk Dealers.

The $1.65 premium includes a $.25 fuel compensation — same as it was before the new decision.

Schweiker Requests Federal Aid For Farmers

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) - On Thursday, Gov. Mark Schweiker asked the USDA to aid farmers in 49 Pennsylvania counties whose crops have been impacted by dry weather conditions this summer. Low levels of precipitation have caused crop damage estimated at more than $300 million.

In a letter to the USDA, Gov. Schweiker certified that these counties "have suffered over 30 percent reductions either in the normal dollar value of all crops grown in the county, or from the normal value of a single crop or group of crops grown in the county."

"During the summer of 2001, 49 Pennsylvania counties received little precipitation," Schweiker said. "As a result, farmers in these counties have experienced significant crop damage, resulting in reduced harvests. Agriculture is the No. 1 industry in Pennsylvania, and it is critical to the state's economy and to these farmers that assistance is provided to our agricultural community."

The Farm Service Agency within the USDA provides assistance to eligible farmers to help cover production and physical losses in counties declared as disaster areas by the President or designated by the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture. The effect of adverse weather conditions qualifies as a natural disaster.

A favorable response by the USDA could make low-interest emergency loans and other federal disaster assistance available to farmers in a county designated as a "natural disaster area" or in any contiguous county.

for the association.

Monies to provide educational events are possible from several of the association's fundraisers. The primary fundraiser is the foodstand the association operates at the Ephrata Fair. Clair and Shirley High oversee the food stand and reported that despite unexpected costs in maintaining equipment, the stand grossed $7,146. After expenses, a $3,368 check was presented to the organization.

For many years, Dr. John Schwartz served as adviser to the Poultry organization and as the director of the Penn State Lancaster County Extension. In memory of Schwartz, who recently passed away, the association helped establish the John Schwartz Foundation in cooperation with PennAg Industries. Money contributed to the fund will be used for scholarships to county students pursuing degrees in agriculture.

The association's annual golf tournament has also been renamed the John Schwartz Memorial Golf Outing in honor of Schwartz, who was an avid golfer.

Jay Irwin, extension director emeritus, said that Schwartz was often heard to say that it's important to keep farmers making money so that they won't sell their farms, and the county will maintain its farmland.

Rebecca Highley, Denver, was introduced as the newly-appointed poultry ambassador for the county. (See page B12 for more about Highley).

Treasurer Becky Petit reported the Association's balance is $8,031.

Bradford is assisted in duties by board members Nelson Groff of Heritage P.M.S. Inc., vice president; Guy Martin of R. W. Sauder Eggs, secretary; and Becky Petit of Hy-Line International, treasurer.

Board members include Ted Bowers, First Union Bank; Ronnie Clark, C&M Farm Service; Jeff Eisnebise, egg producer; Ed Hoffman, Kreider Farms; Phil Good, broiler producer; Roxanne Kirst, Tyson Foods Inc.; and Jay Sensenig, Northeast Agri Systems, Inc.

Entertainment was provided by Cyndi Garber, solist and a poultry producer with her husband Phil, Mount Joy.

Mowrer, along with my grandparents had a farm in Spring City. My mother worked in the Spring-Ford School District. My dad was the sixth generation on that family farm. Due to housing developments, construction, and an overall increase in population, my parents decided to move into a more agricultural area. They found a farm in Petersburg, and in 1990 we moved to that area. I was five years old.

My grandparents, Horace and Bernice Mowrer, saw a farm that was only two miles from ours, and they bought it and also moved to the Petersburg area. When we moved, my mother, brother, sister, and grandparents took all the household goods for both our homes, calves, and heifers. My dad arrived a few days later with four tractor trailer loads of dairy cows. This was an exciting day for my dad. Mowrer Farms was now in Huntingdon County.

I still have many relatives in Chester County. Some are living in the Spring City area and some are living in the Oxford area where my mother was raised. Her parents, Ellsworth and Doris McAllister, live on a small farmette outside of Oxford and raise vegetables.

I am excited and pleased to be able to represent the dairy farmers of Huntingdon County and the State of Pennsylvania. There have been many opportunities to share the dairy message. I have been in parades, talked to school children, and attended many meetings. Now that I am representing the dairy industry of the entire state, I will do my best to clearly inform all ages of the benefits of including dairy in their diet.

Becky Mowrer
Pennsylvania Dairy Princess

Editor:

For the past few months, dairy farmers have witnessed an increase in their milk checks. These prices finally reached a level that was realistic and rewarding.

However, this time, as every other time when milk prices increased to dairy farmers, it didn't take long for the people who control the wholesale dairy markets to lower the boom on dairy farmers. Because of the dramatic and sudden drop in the wholesale price of butter and cheese, area dairy farmers will probably see a decline in the prices they received by at least $4 per CWT (roughly 40 cents per gallon).

In November 2000, milk handlers that bought milk to be used for cheese paid roughly the same price as they did in 1979. While current milk prices may not decline to the November 2000 level, the prices will be low enough to wreck the spirit of many dairy farmers. It doesn't have to happen!

The recent passage of the new Farm Bill by the U.S. House of Representatives is a clear illustration that many members of the House are ignoring the inadequate roller coaster prices that are paid to dairy farmers. The representatives allocated $170 billion for 10 years to shore up grain prices, but did virtually nothing for dairy farmers. The sad part is that dairy farmers don't want government money. They simply want a realistic pricing formula that allows the dairy farmer to receive a fair price out of the marketplace.

Congressman Don Sherwood (R-Pa.), Tunkhannock, was joined by many other legislators in an attempt to have the North East Dairy Compact attached to the Farm Bill. However, their efforts failed as the leadership of the House returned the Compact to the Judiciary Committee, where it will probably stay buried. Even though 165 congressman have co-sponsored the Compact, the leadership prevented a vote on the Compact.

Doesn't it seem practical, when 165 legislators sponsor a bill, they should be entitled to have a vote on the bill? Isn't it time for Congress to evaluate some of their archaic rules and give everyone a fair chance for a vote on an important bill?

At the same time the House was sending the Dairy Compact to the Judiciary Committee, Congressman Bernie Sanders from Vermont introduced a proposed amendment to the Farm Bill that would have helped to stabilize the prices paid to dairy farmers. The proposed amendment lost by 27 votes. However, it would have taken only 14 legislators to vote the opposite way and the amendment would have passed.

Apparently, many organizations are not doing their jobs. How can a Farm Bill which calls for $170 billion to be spent on many farm commodities be passed by a large majority, and, at the same time, the same legislators deny the dairy farmers a fair pricing formula that wouldn't cost the USDA any real money? Many eastern legislators joined Congressman Sherwood in voting against the Farm Bill because members of the House neglected the American dairy farmer.

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Summary

St. Joseph, Mo.
Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL FEEDER CATTLE SUMMARY - Week ending Oct. 19, 2001. Receipts: 216,000; last week 210,300; year ago 231,300. Feeder steers and heifers sold steady to 3.00 lower this week, according to USDA Livestock and Grain Market News Service. A few places in the winter wheat country of the Southwest steady to 2.00 higher. Calf country of the Southeast remains very erratic and as much as 10.00 lower this week after being as much as 10.00 higher last week. Increased receipts the past week has indicated the beginning of the late summer and early fall calf run as a larger percentage now weighing under 600 lbs. Consumer beef demand suffering from a sagging economy. Cattle slaughter well under a year ago but the finished market continues to work lower. Direct trade 2.00 lower this week, mostly 66.00 and 106.00 in the beef. Boxed beef cutouts lower again this week with heavy carcasses a burden on the trade and 115.65. However, good late week beef movement. A year ago we had 68.00 slaughter cattle and the kill was over 700 thousand. Year to date beef production down 4 percent. Hog slaughter over two million head this week. After corn production figures were revised upward, price losses were substantial with off rail country elevators bidding under 1.75 per bushel. Live cattle future quotes dropped again today and far-out months hit the hardest with nothing past April of next year over 68.00.

Today's Cattle On Feed report had numbers at 101 percent but September placements down 20 percent. This pattern has prevailed for the past several months but with reduced slaughter turn around time and clean up of liberal front end supplies prolonged. Downturns in the feeder cattle market and the economy may look harsh but they had reached all time record high levels. Supply this week 31 percent over 600 lbs.

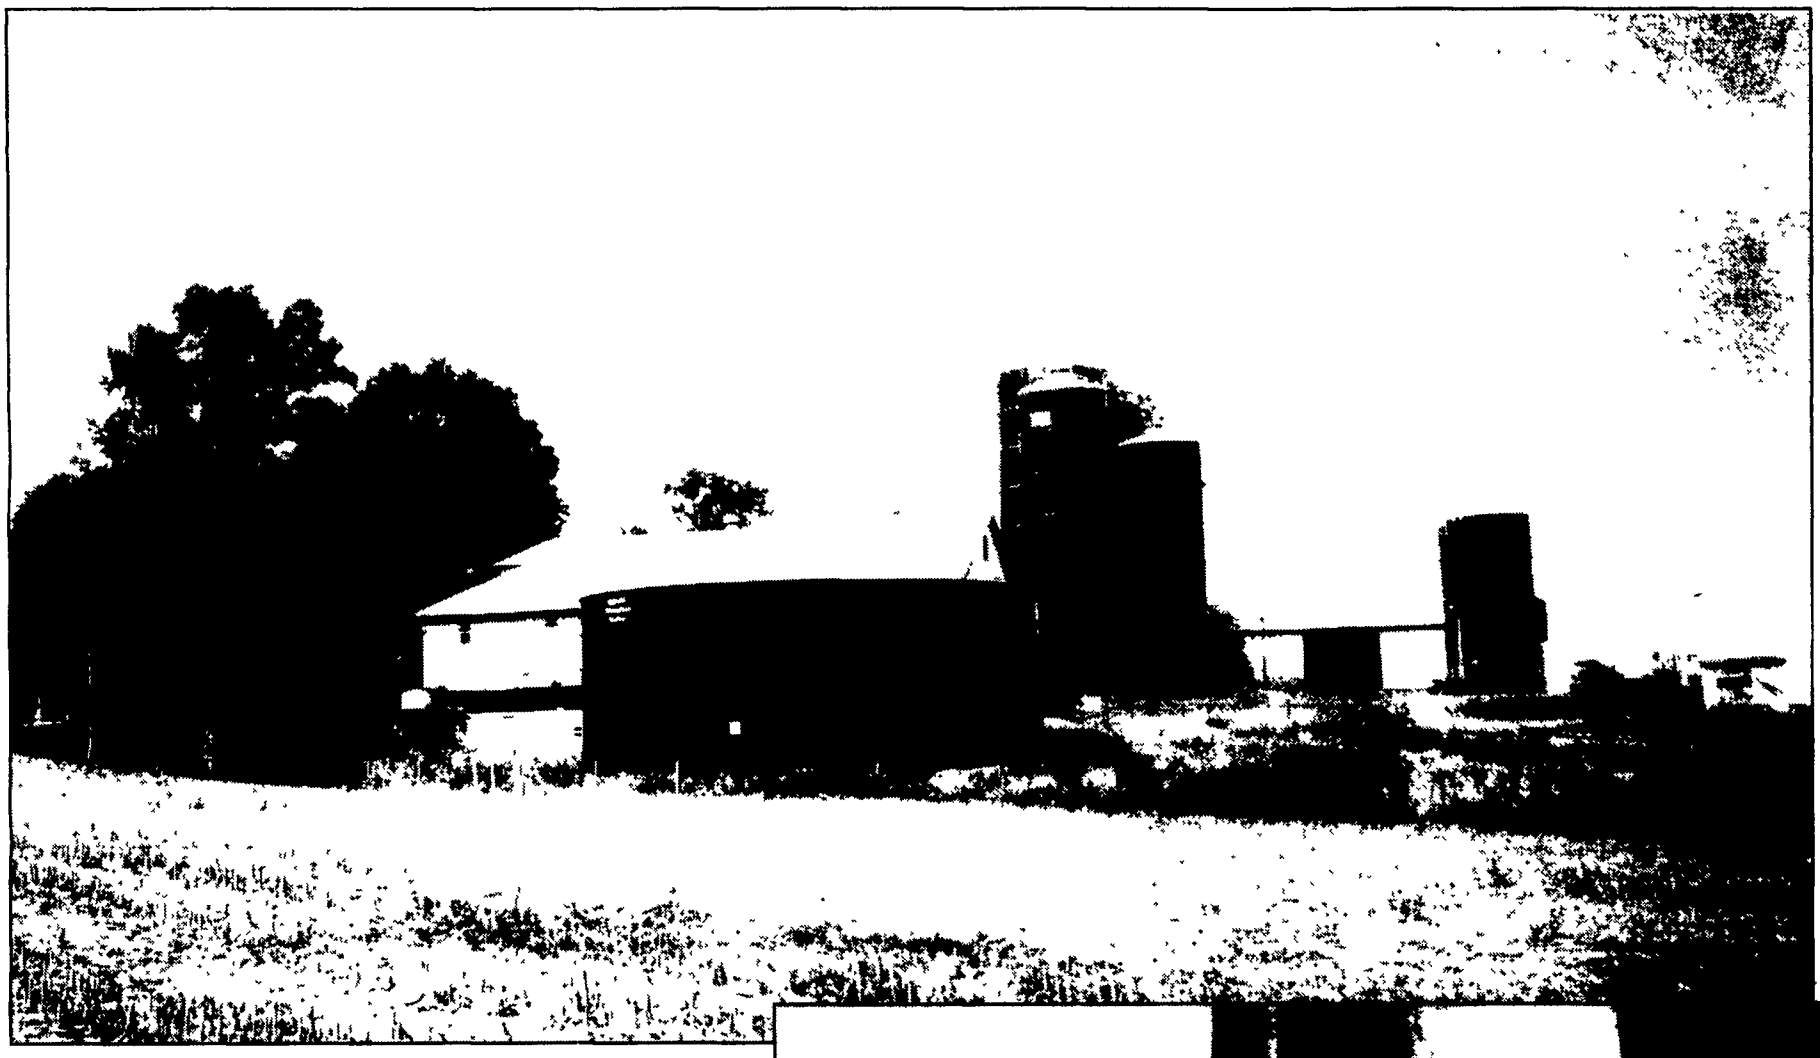
BEEF & HOGS

Ken Meck, Willow Street, PA

Ken has managed his cattle operation with forage processed through the Harvestore® System since 1971. The Slurrystore® waste handling system and Harvestore grain unit for the hogs were added in 1980. Ken says that what he likes most about the Harvestores is the ease and convenience of the system, as well as being able to design feeding programs around the nutritionist's requirements, not how much must be fed to keep ahead of spoilage.



Pictured are Ken, center, with a newly erected 2040 Harvestore structure built at the cattle feeding facility rented from Norman Leaman (right), which is operated by Ken's son-in-law Duane Martin (left).

THE MANY WAYS OF Pumpkin

Pumpkin Toffee Cheesecake

Round, oval, tall, wide or some endearing combination in between, pumpkins are an American original. Cooked and puréed, pumpkin is an ingredient used in seasonal baked goods, especially that seasonal favorite, pumpkin pie. For many folks, a forkful of silky-smooth pumpkin filling with whispers of ginger, cloves and cinnamon sitting atop a flaky crust is bliss in one bite For them, a can of pure pumpkin or pumpkin pie filling is a pantry staple

But the surprise is discovering that pumpkin can be used as an ingredient in many other exciting dishes besides traditional items Versatile and flavorful, pumpkin adds moisture to an entire range of baked goods It's also a superb carrier for the flavors of subtle spices. Hardly restricted to traditional or seasonal uses, pumpkin is appearing more often than ever in new and nontraditional ways on the menus of white-tablecloth restaurants and adventuresome home cooks

To start your adventure using pumpkin in a new way, try one of the delicious recipes suggested here Perhaps a soothing soup that's comforting on a blustery night or an easy purée that's a stylish side dish will intrigue your taste buds. Pumpkin waffles are sure to please the gang invited for a weekend brunch. If a show-stopping dessert is what you have in mind, try a luscious cheesecake given a novel twist with pumpkin purée and crushed toffee candies.

Whether your cooking style is traditional or adventuresome or a combination of both, cooking with pumpkin offers rewards in great taste, texture and audience appeal Variations that take a delicious twist on classic pumpkin pie—like a delectable Sour Cream Orange Pumpkin Pie or a change from pumpkin cranberry bread to moist Pumpkin Carrot Raisin Bread—will introduce a whole new world of pumpkin.

Pumpkin Carrot Raisin Bread

Makes 2 loaves

- 3 cups all-purpose flour
- 1 tablespoon plus 2 teaspoons pumpkin pie spice
- 2 teaspoons baking soda
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 3 cups granulated sugar
- 1 can (15 oz) pumpkin
- 4 large eggs
- 1 cup vegetable oil
- 1/2 cup water
- 1 cup shredded carrot
- 1 cup raisins

PREHEAT oven to 350° F Grease and flour two 9 x 5-inch loaf pans
COMBINE flour, pumpkin pie spice, baking soda and salt in large bowl. Combine sugar, pumpkin, eggs, oil and water in large mixer bowl, beat until just blended Add pumpkin mixture to flour mixture, stir just until moistened Fold in carrot and raisins Spoon batter into prepared loaf pans
BAKE for 60 to 65 minutes or until wooden pick inserted in center comes out clean Cool in pans on wire racks for 10 minutes, remove to wire racks to cool completely

Creamy Pumpkin Soup

Makes 5 servings

- 1/4 cup (1/2 stick) butter or margarine
- 1 small onion, chopped
- 1 clove garlic, finely chopped
- 2 teaspoons packed brown sugar
- 1 can (14 1/2 oz) chicken broth
- 1/2 cup water
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1 can (15 oz) pumpkin
- 1 can (12 fl oz.) evaporated milk
- 1/8 teaspoon ground cinnamon

MELT butter in large saucepan over medium heat. Add onion, garlic and sugar, cook for 1 to 2 minutes or until soft. Add broth, water, salt and pepper; bring to a boil, stirring occasionally Reduce heat to low, cook, stirring occasionally, for 15 minutes Stir in pumpkin, evaporated milk and cinnamon Cook, stirring occasionally, for 5 minutes. Remove from heat. TRANSFER mixture to food processor or blender (in batches, if necessary), process until smooth. Return to saucepan. Serve warm

Sour Cream Orange Pumpkin Pie

Makes 8 servings

- 1 unbaked 9-inch (4-cup volume) deep-dish pie shell
- 2 large eggs, lightly beaten
- 1 can (15 oz.) pumpkin
- 1 can (14 oz.) sweetened condensed milk
- 1 tablespoon pumpkin pie spice
- 2 1/2 teaspoons grated orange peel, divided
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 1/4 cups sour cream
- 2 tablespoons granulated sugar
- 2 teaspoons thawed orange juice concentrate

PREHEAT oven to 425° F

COMBINE eggs, pumpkin, sweetened condensed milk, pumpkin pie spice, 2 teaspoons orange peel and salt in medium bowl, mix well Pour into prepared pie shell
BAKE for 15 minutes Reduce temperature to 350° F; bake for 30 to 35 minutes or until knife inserted near center comes out clean Cool for 10 minutes on wire rack.
COMBINE sour cream, sugar, orange juice concentrate and remaining orange peel in small bowl. Spread sour cream topping over pie.
BAKE for an additional 8 minutes. Cool completely on wire rack.

Sweet Pumpkin Purée

Makes 6 to 8 servings

- 2 cans (15 oz each) or 1 can (29 oz.) pumpkin
- 1/2 cup packed brown sugar
- 1/4 cup (1/2 stick) butter or margarine
- 1/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1/8 teaspoon ground nutmeg
- Salt
- Toppings: toasted coconut, toasted walnuts, pecans or pumpkin seeds, grated fresh orange peel, dried cranberries, raisins, honey, miniature marshmallows and/or maple syrup (optional)

COMBINE pumpkin, brown sugar, butter, cinnamon and nutmeg in medium saucepan. Cook over medium heat, stirring occasionally, until mixture comes to a boil. Reduce heat to low; cook for 1 to 2 minutes Season with salt. Top as desired. Serve along with beef, pork or chicken.

FOR SWEET PUMPKIN PURÉE WITH MARSHMALLOW-PECAN TOPPING:
PREHEAT oven to 350° F Prepare purée mixture as above, do not top with toppings. Pour hot mixture into ungreased 1 1/2-quart casserole dish. Top with 1/2 cup miniature marshmallows and 1/4 cup toasted pecans Bake for 4 to 5 minutes or until marshmallows are puffy.

Pumpkin Toffee Cheesecake

- 1 cup (8-oz. container) sour cream, at room temperature
- 2 tablespoons granulated sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract
- caramel ice cream topping (optional)

PREHEAT oven to 350° F.

FOR CRUST·
COMBINE cookie crumbs and butter in small bowl. Press onto bottom and 1 inch up side of ungreased 9-inch springform pan
BAKE for 6 to 8 minutes (do not allow to brown). Cool on wire rack for 10 minutes.

FOR CHEESECAKE:
BEAT cream cheese and brown sugar in large mixer bowl until creamy. Add pumpkin, evaporated milk, eggs, cornstarch and cinnamon; beat well. Pour into crust.
BAKE for 60 to 65 minutes or until edge is set but center still moves slightly. Remove from oven; top with toffee candy pieces.

FOR TOPPING:
COMBINE sour cream, granulated sugar and vanilla extract in small bowl; mix well. Spread over warm cheesecake.
BAKE for 8 minutes. Cool completely in pan on wire rack. Refrigerate for several hours or overnight. Drizzle with caramel topping before serving.

Nutty Pumpkin Waffles

Makes about 6 to 8 waffles

- 2 cups all-purpose flour
- 1/4 cup granulated sugar
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 2 large eggs, separated
- 1 3/4 cups milk
- 1/2 cup pumpkin
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
- 3/4 cup chopped nuts, reserve some for topping, if desired
- pumpkin maple sauce (recipe follows)

COMBINE flour, sugar, cornstarch, baking powder, cinnamon, salt, ginger and nutmeg in large bowl. Combine egg yolks, milk and pumpkin in medium bowl; mix well Add to flour mixture. Stir in butter Beat egg whites in small mixer bowl until soft peaks form. Gently fold into pumpkin mixture.
PREHEAT waffle iron according to manufacturer's directions. Depending on size of waffle iron, pour 1/2 cup to 1 1/2 cups batter onto hot iron. Generously sprinkle with nuts. Bake for 4 to 5 minutes or until steaming stops Repeat with remaining batter and nuts. Serve with Pumpkin Maple Sauce

FOR PUMPKIN MAPLE SAUCE:
HEAT 1 1/4 cups pure pumpkin, 1 cup maple syrup and 1/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon in small saucepan until warm.

On Being a Farm Wife

(and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

"Grandma...?"

The query floats down from above my head. Close to my right ear, a branch jostles, setting into quivering a section of leathery green leaves.

I stretch to reach a cluster of three yellow fruits, grasping two of them in my hand while the third lets loose of the tree, thuds on the ground and tumbles down the steep grade. At the bottom, it comes to rest at the pasture fence, along with countless of its fellows.

"Grandma, this is apple heaven."

Overhead on this stunning fall afternoon, the sky is a clear, endless blue; and bright sunshine counters the brisk breeze. In the lush pasture grass just beyond the fence, fuzzy sheep graze, stopping to sample apples which have escaped under the fence and kept going down the slope.

Yes. This might be Apple Heaven. Or at least pretty close.

Hanging six feet above the ground in an apple tree, gathering red and yellow fruits on this perfect afternoon, has convinced one 6-year-old of the heavenly resemblance of this pasture hillside. It belongs to neighbors Bill and Kathy, who have generously permitted us to glean the bounty of apples ripe and falling to the ground in the small orchard on a steep incline of their pasture hill.

So three generations of us, including baby Sarah snoozing in her mom's backpack, are "bobbing" for apples, stretching up into the trees, then bending low to pour the contents of our picking buckets into larger buckets scattered among the trees. Only slender Josh is actually in a tree, handing down his pickings for us to add to the gathering. As each bucket is rounded full, one of the crew lugs it to a pile of plastic feedbags grandpa has gathered and dumps them in. Lumpy, filled bags go into the back of the pickup.

"Me, up, grandma."

Grandma figures that a 2-year-old probably doesn't belong up in a tree, although Rachel always wants to be part of whatever her bigger brothers are up to. Instead, she is persuaded to help dump the small buckets into the bigger buckets, with only an occasional plea to be moved up into the heady heights of the orchard's lower limbs.

Partway through this endeavor, the owners join us, collecting "drops" deteriorated beyond use, treats for the flock. By late afternoon, Apple Heaven's trees have far fewer fruits hanging on them, the pickup is aromatic with their perfume, and we have all munched enough apples for the day to keep the doctor away for some time. So long as no one tumbles out of any trees.

Back home, we focus on the day's goal: cider making. At age 12, The Farmer became intrigued with an old cider press owned by a neighbor; when he learned it might be for sale, he inquired. The neighbor's price was right — $2 — and it's been The Farmers ever since.

Several apple harvest seasons have passed since we last hauled the press out of storage, so it goes under the high-pressure hose for major clean-up. Sunshine has been chased off by deepening clouds and battering wind before the first drops of aromatic brown juice drip from the press of chopped apple pulp.

Despite the increasing chill, the kids delight in "slopping" in tubs of water, helping to wash the apples, trying to bob for them, splashing each other, and generally getting wet. We grab a quick snack of sandwiches and cookies as dusk deepens, adding layers of coats, sweatshirts, hoods, even before the raindrops begin to patter down. But several gallons of sweet, pure, natural apple liquid have been coaxed out of the apples before we all seek home's warmth and shelter, leaving the remaining bags for another session.

Apple Heaven has teased all our senses: we have felt sun and the tickle of fluttering leaves, heard the wind in the branches and the laughter of the children, seen the beauty of blue skies, colorful fall leaves, frolicking sheep, inhaled the heady fragrance of sweet, ripe apples. And now we know what Apple Heaven tastes like.

Fresh cider.

Count To Five For Better Health

NEWARK, Del. — Although consumer awareness of the health benefits of fruits and vegetables has increased dramatically over the past decade, most Americans still don't get their recommended minimums of five daily servings.

Mary Wilcoxon, Cooperative Extension educator for family and consumer sciences at the University of Delaware, said it shouldn't be hard to fit those five servings into your life, no matter how busy your schedule or how finicky your taste buds.

"Start the day off with banana or berries on your morning bowl of cereal," she suggests, "and that's one serving under your belt. Have a glass of 100 percent fruit juice, too, and chalk up another serving."

Other ways to have fruit with breakfast, she says, include fresh melon or grapefruit halves or cut-up fruit in a compote. Whirl fruit in the blender with yogurt, milk, or juice for a nourishing "smoothie."

"Refresh throughout the day by snacking on cut-up fruit and veggies. Easily 'portable' items are grapes, bananas, apples, pears, oranges, carrot and celery sticks, radishes and green pepper strips," Wilcoxon said. "Munch on fresh fruit during your morning and afternoon break instead of indulging in sugary pastries or candy bars. Have salad with your lunch — even fast food restaurants offer salads on their menu. Drink fruit or vegetable juice instead of afternoon coffee or tea and you chalk up another hit on the five-a-day intake."

"Having fruit for breakfast and break time, then choosing veggies for lunch and snack time adds up fast," Wilcoxon asserts. "With just breakfast and lunch, you easily can be up to four servings. From there, it's a cinch to hit your quota by having vegetables with dinner."

Most people have cooked vegetables with their dinner, she notes, and yes, they do count. Mashed potatoes and green beans; peas and carrots; roasted red bliss potatoes; onions and mushrooms — vegetables all.

"Eating right shouldn't be a chore," says Wilcoxon." And it isn't. A little planning and making wise choices will help you ensure you'll get those five-a-day fruits and veggies and reap the health benefits you need."

Tips To Tone Up Listening

We know about heart transplants, liver transplants, kidney transplants, but what about an idea transplant. Idea transplant is the simple definition of "communication."

Two persons — one a speaker and the other a listener — transplant an idea from one to the other. Have you ever thought of communication in that manner?

In a typical day, most people send from 300 to 1,000 verbal messages. That's a lot of speaking and listening. The biggest problem in communicating is that most people spend more time speaking than listening. In William Shakespeare's "Hamlet," Polonius cautions people to stop talking, "Give every man thine ear, but few thy voice." While listening and speaking go hand in hand, you can't listen and speak at the same time.

Today, everyone is busy. To get everything done, a person will do many things at one time. They think they can listen and do at the same time. It may seem easy, but is it? Research states a person listens at 400 words per minute. A person speaks at 125 per minute. So, that gives a person 275 words per minute to do something else. What does this say to the speaker?

Good listening is an art. A true listener takes an interest in the talker. He or she establishes eye contact by looking and not staring at the talker. The listener stops what he or she is doing and listens. How often do you try and talk with someone while he/she is watching television, reading the paper, peeling potatoes, or many other activities?

The typical response of the multi-tasked listener is "Uh, hum" or "whatever." By putting down the paper or turning off the television, the listener is saying non-verbally "you are important. I want to listen to what you say."

The payback is a stronger relationship. Also, the talker may not have to repeat him or herself.

Remove distractions. Don't doodle, tap, shuffle papers, or clear the table while someone is talking. If necessary, move to another room or shut the door. Physically move in and out of the conversation. As you become more interested or concerned, move forward. As you become more relaxed, sit back. Acknowledge the speaker's feelings.

You might say, "You're confused right now. Let's talk about it."

Listening more than speaking helps a person clarify a problem before rushing in to a solution. Good listeners help children and adults to solve their own problems. By repeating what is heard, a listener reflects on what is said.

"You sound angry, frustrated, excited..."

If the reflection is correct, the listener affirms what the speaker is saying. If it is not correct, encourage the speaker to elaborate further until the listener and speaker understand each other.

How often do you say, "You don't understand." What is needed is time and a chance to listen, reflect, speak, and listen again. Just like an artist takes time to paint a masterpiece, a good listener takes time to communicate effectively.

If you are pressed for time, be honest. Tell the speaker. Schedule a time when both parties can talk. "Give me 10 minutes to finish washing the dishes and we can talk." Then devote your attention to the conversation.

A good listener asks questions. The questions start with "how," "what if," "why," and "tell me about."

These words and phrases evoke detailed responses that are open ended. They open the conversation to further development. After asking a question, a listener gives the speaker time to frame the response.

Good listeners are slow to speak and quick to listen. When questions begin with "did you," "are you," "can you," it requires only a one word responses such as "yes" or "no."

Little or no information is shared. Closed ended questions sound accusatory. It is like going on a very long fact finding mission.

Hold your temper. Angry feelings get in the way of listening. Anger takes over listening. It clouds the communication. Just as an artist puts down his or her brush when emotions take over, a good listener asks for a break. Take a break. Have a glass of water. Do something else. Again, be honest. Admit your anger. Admit that you can't commit yourself to listening and be angry at the same time. Angry speakers use emotionally charged words. Angry listeners feel the emotions and hear the emotionally charged words and not the true message. Step away. Move back when the anger subsides.

Finally, ask yourself: "Would I listen to me right now?" Nature gives people two ears but only one mouth. This is a gentle hint that people should listen more than they talk. Listen more. You don't know what you are missing.

Plenty Of Pennsylvania Pumpkins Available

Despite the dry weather across much of the state this summer, farmers are finding plenty of pumpkins in their fields this fall. The dry weather did, however, affect the average size of the individual pumpkins so there will be fewer large pumpkins. Still, consumers can expect to find a wide range of sizes and shapes of pumpkins and squash to meet their fall decorating needs at farm markets, farmers' markets and garden centers.

Pumpkins and their cousins, winter squash, are one of Pennsylvania's major vegetable crops. Pennsylvania growers produce over 4,500 acres of pumpkins plus about 500 acres of squash, making them the fourth largest vegetable crop in Pennsylvania in terms of acreage. While the production is centered in the southeast corner of the state, acres of pumpkins and squash are grown all over the state. As the Halloween and Thanksgiving seasons near, farmers are bringing wagon and truck loads of pumpkins and squash to the wholesale produce auctions, retail farm markets and garden centers for sale. Pennsylvania pumpkins have also graced the White House in recent years.

Pumpkins come in all shapes and sizes. The most common is the jack-o'-lantern type that generally range from 10 to 30 pounds. Small pumpkins, usually about the size of a cantaloupe, are popular for indoor decorations as well as eating. Mini-pumpkins, such as the variety "Jack-be-Little," are a relatively recent addition to the pumpkin industry. They are about the size of a large tomato and also are extremely attractive for indoor fall decoration. Giant pumpkins, which are actually squash varieties, weighing from 50 to 200 pounds and larger are also available for special eye-catching displays.

Choosing a pumpkin is mostly a matter of taste as to the shape and size. In general, pumpkins should have a rich orange color indicating full maturity although the shade varies between varieties. For long-term fall displays, it is important to choose a pumpkin which is free of any unhealed skin punctures or soft areas. The stem should be firm also. While pumpkins can withstand frosts in outdoor displays, they will last longer if they are protected from the frost.

For jack-o'-lanterns, it is not as important to find a pumpkin that has no skin punctures since carving the pumpkin subjects the flesh to decay-causing organisms more than small punctures. Many farm markets offer pumpkins that have colorful faces painted on the pumpkin. These will usually keep longer than a carved jack-o'-lantern.

While large jack-o'-lantern-type pumpkins can be cooked for pies or other recipes, their flesh is stringy and the eating quality is poor compared to the smaller pie-type pumpkins, often called sugar pumpkins because of their sweetness.

Pumpkins are close relatives to winter squash and most commercially prepared "pumpkin" is actually winter squash. Neck pumpkins (which are really squash), butternut and Hubbard squashes all make tasty "pumpkin" dishes, such as pumpkin pie or pumpkin bread.

Pumpkin or squash can be cooked a number of different ways. After splitting the fruit and removing the seeds and attached strings, the flesh can be cut of the rind and cubed. The cubed flesh can then be boiled, steamed or microwaved until tender, drained and then mashed. For the smaller squash varieties, the fruit can be cut in half. After scooping out the seeds, the halves should be placed cut-side up in a shallow pan with a small amount of water or simply on a baking sheet, covered with foil and baked in a hot oven until the flesh is tender. The halves can also be partially covered and cooked in a microwave oven until tender. The cooked flesh can then be scooped out and mashed for use in recipes. Or for a quick vegetable a little butter and brown sugar can be placed on top of the halved squash during the baking process and the squash served as is.

Pumpkin and squash are both good sources of vitamin A although squash generally has more than pumpkin. They also have good amounts of fiber and help fulfill the recommended three to five servings of vegetables per day recommended by nutrition experts. Betty Groff, noted Lancaster County cookbook author, offers the following pumpkin and squash recipes:

Pumpkin-Maple Pie

½ cup brown sugar, packed
¼ cup maple syrup
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon allspice
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon salt
3 eggs, lightly beaten
16-ounce can pumpkin (or 2 cups cooked until tender, drained, and mashed pumpkin or winter squash)
1¼ cups evaporated milk
9-inch unbaked pie shell
½ cup heavy cream
1 to 2 tablespoons of maple syrup
1 teaspoon vanilla

Blend together the sugar, syrup, cinnamon, allspice, nutmeg, and salt with the eggs. Stir in the pumpkin and milk. Pour ingredients into the pie shell and bake in a preheated 450°F oven for 15 minutes, then at 300°F for another 25 to 30 minutes. Do the knife test an inch in from the rim of the crust. If it comes out clean, it's done. Before serving the cooled pie, whip the cream, adding the syrup and vanilla, and top each portion with a dollop of the cream.

Pumpkin Bars

2 cups sugar
2 cups flour
16-ounce can of pumpkin (or 2 cups cooked until tender, drained, and mashed pumpkin or winter squash)
1 cup oil
4 eggs
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon salt

In a mixing bowl, combine the sugar, flour, pumpkin, oil, eggs, baking powder, soda, cinnamon, and salt and beat thoroughly. Pour into a greased jelly roll pan, 15¼-inch by 10½-inch, or a cookie sheet with sides. Bake in a preheated 350°F oven for 25 to 35 minutes. Cool and frost with Cream Cheese Frosting and cut into bars before removing from the pan.

Cream Cheese Frosting

6-ounces cream cheese
¼ pound butter
2 cups confectioners sugar
1 tablespoon vanilla

Cream all of the above ingredients together until smooth.

Betty Stewart's Squash And Cranberries

Serves 8

New recipes for hard-shell winter squash are always welcome, since the vegetable is available in prolific quantities during its winter season. This recipe is unusual and colorful. Furthermore, the casserole can be frozen after baking. Serve it with your Thanksgiving turkey, or roast pork or chicken.

2 pounds butternut squash
Salt
2 cups water
2 eggs, beaten
⅓ cup melted butter
¼ cup light brown sugar, firmly packed
1 teaspoon salt
Freshly ground black pepper to taste
1½ cups raw cranberries, halved
Freshly grated nutmeg

Peel the squash and cut into cubes. Cook in lightly salted water until tender. Drain well, then puree by putting through a food mill. There should be about 4 cups. Mix well with the eggs, butter, sugar, salt, pepper, and cranberries. Put in a buttered 1½-quart casserole. Grate nutmeg over the top. Bake in a preheated 350°F oven for 45 minutes.

Acorn Squash With Hamburg Stuffing

A pretty entree for a fall or winter luncheon.

3 acorn squash
4 tablespoons butter
1½ pounds ground chuck
3 tablespoons onion, chopped
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon lemon pepper
1 teaspoon chervil
⅓ cup crabapple jelly

Wash and cut each squash in half and scoop out the seeds. Trim the little point off the bottoms so they will stand straight while cooking. Melt 2 tablespoons of butter and brush the inside of each cup. Sprinkle with a little salt and place the 6 servings in a baking dish. Add water half-way up the dish and bake in a preheated 375°F oven for 45 minutes. Melt the other 2 Tablespoons of butter in a skillet and brown the onion. Add the meat and stir to break it up while it's cooking. Don't overcook since it will be cooked more. Drain and stir in the salt, lemon pepper and chervil. Put ¼ cup of the hamburg mixture into each squash cup and continue baking for another 15 to 20 minutes. Top with the crabapple jelly, a heaping teaspoon on each, for the last 15 minutes.

Golden Harvest Soup

Serves 8

¼ pound bacon or 4 slices
1 medium onion, chopped
2 stems celery, with leaves, chopped
1 small clove garlic, minced
½ teaspoon curry power
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon white pepper
½ teaspoon salt
8 cups water
2 pounds butternut squash or neck pumpkin, peeled, seeded, and cut into 2-inch chunks
3 large; carrots, scrubbed and sliced (peeled if you prefer)
1 medium white potato, peeled and sliced
1 medium rutabaga, peeled and sliced (if unavailable, use white potato)
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon fresh dill
¼ teaspoon fresh thyme
¼ teaspoon fresh basil (chop all three herbs finely-if using dried herbs, a pitch of each will do.)
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice-zest the rind for garnish
1 tablespoon sugar
Spiced whipped cream and lemon zest for topping, or sprigs of the fresh herbs

Fry the bacon until crisp in a heavy stockpot. Remove the bacon, place on paper towels to drain, and crumble. Set bacon aside. Add the onion, celery, garlic, curry, nutmeg, white pepper, and salt to the bacon fat and saute over medium heat for 5 minutes. Add the water, squash, carrots, potato, rutabaga, and herbs.

Cover with lid and cook over medium heat for 45 minutes. Cool slightly and pour by batches into a food mill, food processor, or blender, pureeing thoroughly. Pour back into stockpot and stir in the rum flavoring, lemon juice, and sugar. Check for seasonings, adding salt and pepper if needed. Simmer slowly over low heat until bubbles appear on top, approximately 10 minutes. Do not bring to a full boil.

Serve hot with a dollop of Spiced Whipped Cream, or Spiced Sour Cream.

Pennsylvania Pumpkins And Squash

Spiced Whipped Cream

Place 1 teaspoon curry powder and ½ teaspoon nutmeg in a small skillet or saucepan and heat over low heat until slightly dark and it smells great, approximately 2 minutes. Cool and fold into the whipped cream.

Spiced Sour Cream

8 ounces sour cream
2 tablespoons light brown sugar or honey
Dash of nutmeg
Dash of cinnamon
Pinch of salt

Mix all the ingredients in a bowl until well blended. Cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate for a few hours.

Quick Buying Tips For Pennsylvania Pumpkins

The Pennsylvania Vegetable Marketing and Research Program offers these tips when buying pumpkins:

- Select pumpkins that have a rich orange color with no green.
- Look for a good solid stem.
- For long-term displays, avoid pumpkins with unhealed cuts or bruises.

PUMPKIN ROLL

3 eggs, beaten 5 minutes
Slowly add:
1 cup sugar
⅔ cup pumpkin
¾ cup flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
2 teaspoons cinnamon

Beat together ingredients. Pour into greased jelly roll pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 10-15 minutes. Remove from oven and flip immediately onto wax paper. Roll up as jelly roll and let cool. When cool, unroll, spread with the following filling and roll back up. Chill overnight. Sprinkle with powdered sugar and serve.

Filling:
4 tablespoons butter
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 cup confectioners' sugar
8-ounces cream cheese

Coatesville

PUMPKIN PIE

3 cups brown sugar
3 cups pumpkin
2 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour (heaping)
5 eggs, separated
5 cups hot milk
Pinch each of salt, cinnamon, and vanilla

Combine sugar, pumpkin, butter, flour, egg yolks, milk, and seasonings. Fold in beaten egg whites. Pour mixture into 4 unbaked pie shells.

Bake at 400 degrees for 10 minutes, reduce heat to 350 degrees, and bake until done.

WALNUT AND PUMPKIN PUDDING

½ cup sugar
1 pound pumpkin, cubed
⅓ cup chopped walnuts
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup heavy cream or yogurt

Make a syrup by dissolving sugar in ½ cup water over low heat. Increase heat and boil hard, stirring continuously, until mixture thickens but does not caramelize, 5-10 minutes. Stir in pumpkin cubes, cover and cook gently one minute. Uncover and continue to simmer, stirring occasionally, until pumpkin is cooked and has absorbed almost all the syrup. Stir in walnuts, transfer to serving dish; sprinkle lemon juice over mixture. Serve hot or cold with cream or yogurt. Makes four servings.

Lancaster 4-H Honors Members, Leaders

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANDISVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — 4-H'ers were honored for their work this past year during recognition night here at the Four Seasons with several categories of awards given during the evening.

Also honored with special recognition were the leaders of 4-H. Joann Siegrist and Mary Alice Wolgemuth have served as leaders for 20 years; Fern Huber, Kervin Martin, and Connie Rutt have been leaders for 25 years, and Thomas Smith has been a leader for 35 years.

In addition, 15 teen leaders helped with the 4-H program in the past year, besides the many adult leaders who lent their expertise to 4-H'ers in a wide variety of disciplines.

State 4-H Achievement Days winners included James Snyder and Justin Snyder, advanced orienteering team; Kim Dietrich, photography; Bonnie Johnson, junior small animal essay; and Tiffany Dean, Joelynn Donough, Abby Funk, and Adam Zurin, junior livestock judging team.

Bryan Eberle, representing Hy-Line Hatchery, was honored for their support of the 4-H embryology school enrichment program.

Interspersed with awards were several talent selections from Peter Schaum, Jared Snyder, Kaeti Rosenberg, Jen Wgner, and Rachel Kark.

35 Years

Thomas Smith, Denver, received an engraved desk set in appreciation for his 35 years as a 4-H leader.

Leader awards went to, from left, Joanne Siegrist for 20 years of service as a leader, Connie Rutt, 25 years, and Thomas Smith, 35 years.

The friend of 4-H award went to Hy-Line Hatchery for its annual support of the 4-H embryology school enrichment program. Pictured are Hy-Line representative Bryan Eberle and Lori Little, 4-H animal science agent.

Being a leader seems to run in Smith's family. "My family was in 4-H in New Jersey," he said. "I couldn't wait to turn ten years old, because I knew the next calf born was mine," said Smith, who watched four older sisters show dairy animals before he was old enough to participate, also. A younger brother and younger sister also exhibited animals through 4-H. "It was just the thing to do," he said. Parental support, such as his father driving the truck to shows, was a big part of the family's commitment to 4-H.

After Smith grew too old to be a 4-H'er himself, he became a junior leader for the dairy club. In addition to the dairy 4-H club, he participated in a state exchange and spent a week in Maine. His family also hosted 4-Hers as part of an exchange.

Joined by his wife, Dale, the couple moved from Mercer County, New Jersey to Pennsylvania. After the move Smith was planning to take a break from 4-H leadership. However his past involvement was found out after the family had been in Pennsylvania only a few months, according to Smith. He didn't hesitate to get involved again, however, and began to organize the dairy club for the northern Lancaster County area, now the "Kows 'R' Us" club.

"When I was in 4-H, there was an older gentleman who had the leadership of the club. When I started leading a club, somebody said, 'why are you doing this?', and I said, 'somebody did it for me. The need was there.'"

"It is fun to see what the kids get out of it," he said. "I think they give us more than we give them." His own four children have exhibited or are exhibiting cattle through 4-H. The Smith's son Brian, who has Downs Syndrome, has also shown cattle as a 4-H'er. "It gave him a lot of confidence," said Smith's wife Dale.

Their daughter, Liz, not only showed animals as a 4-H'er but also has experience in leading clubs. "I became a leader as soon as I graduated from 4-H primarily because of watching my parents work with our clubs over the years," said Liz. "Both my parents are responsible for instilling the value of volunteering and giving back to the community in me and I feel I'm a better person for it."

The couple own and operate 91-acre King and Queen Farm, a 100-head Holstein, Brown Swiss, and Guernsey operation in Denver. As organizer of Lancaster County's dairy princess program, Dale is also involved in the dairy industry. Additionally she has several years of experience in leading 4-H clubs.

Do You Suffer From Fibromyalgia?

When I was introduced to New Image I was 50 pounds over weight and suffered from fibromyalgia I was so depressed and in pain the majority of the time I was taking steroids and four other medications, one of which made me so 'groggy' I could hardly get out of bed and another gave me ulcers I began taking New Image secretly because I thought my family would make fun of me After a month, I discovered I had lost eight pounds and seven inches Wow! Then it dawned on me, I was feeling better, the depression and pain were gone In two months I was off all medications "I feel SUPERIFIC!" Now, two years later I have lost 43 pounds and 30 inches Thank you New Image for giving me a new life again Judy Swift - Mt Washington, KY

QUESTION — Debbie Nolt, Peach Bottom, wants recipes for baked goods and breads sweetened with pure fruit juices (no molasses, honey, sugars or artificial sweeteners allowed).

QUESTION — A reader wants instructions for freezing raw goat's milk so that it doesn't curdle after it is thawed and is drinkable.

QUESTION — A reader writes that in early July a recipe for jelly or jam using kiwi was printed in this paper. Due to a tragedy in the reader's family, she did not cut it out. Does anyone have a copy to send in so we can print it again?

QUESTION — A reader requests a recipe for Broccoli Ham Chowder, which includes celery, chicken broth, cheddar cheese. The recipe had been printed in this column a number of years ago, and was this family's favorite until it was lost. The reader thinks the original recipe had been submitted by Priscilla Grube.

QUESTION Maggie Keeler, Charlestown, W.V., requests recipes for making jams and preserves from zucchini, summer squash, and tomatoes. She especially would like a recipe for tomato butter.

QUESTION — Evelyn Bowers, Johnstown, is looking for recipes to use in a bread making machine.

QUESTION — Hilbert Snyder, Germansville, writes that he has some quince apples for sale. I know many of our readers are interested in this old fruit, which is seldom found in this area. If you want some for jelly or quince butter, contact Snyder at (610) 760-0248.

QUESTION — Barbara Fanning, Southampton, N.Y., wants a recipe for vidalia onion relish. She is grateful for the person who sent in the recipe for Concord grape ketchup, which she made and heard raves about from her husband and brother-in-law. The grape ketchup is very good on pot roasts, hamburgers, and pork.

QUESTION — C. Clayville, Greenwood, Del., requested a recipe for turnip pie.

QUESTION — E. H. Martin, New Holland, writes that approximately two weeks ago an article was printed about apple preservation hints that suggested using ascorbic acid to prevent discoloration. She asks where tablets or a crystalline form of ascorbic acid can be found.

QUESTION — L.S. Shahan, Millington, Md., writes that about 20 years ago, she clipped a recipe for pizza crust from this column. She used it for years, but lost this "great" recipe that was easy to make. Does anyone else have a great recipe for pizza crust?

QUESTION — A reader wants nutritious recipes to make in a hurry.

QUESTION — A reader wants recipes for one-dish meals.

QUESTION — Barb Reed, Punxsutawney, wants recipes for bread, cookies, biscuits, pizza dough, and other baked items that do not contain yeast or wheat. She also wants lunchbox ideas to pack for her grandson who has wheat and yeast allergies.

QUESTION — Mrs. King, Christiana, wants to know where mincemeat can be purchased that tastes similar to the homemade variety that contains apples, vinegar, sugar, and salt. She does not want raisins in it.

ANSWER — Here is the recipe for slow cooker apple butter from Lois Matter, Perry County.

Slow Cooker Apple Butter

6 pounds apples
Dark brown sugar (see instructions to determine amount needed)
2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
Juice of one lemon

Wash unpeeled apples and remove core, and seeds, cut into quarters. Place in slow cooker. Do not add water. The apples draw their own liquid. Cook on low for 8-10 hours.

Puree fruit in blender. Add ½ cup dark brown sugar to every cup of pureed fruit. Add remaining ingredients. Return to slow cooker. Cover and cook on low 8-10 hours.

Seal in preheated jars with preheated lids.

Note: Be sure to use dark brown sugar and do not peel apples. The peels give the apple butter a good taste and will blend very well when placed in the blender.

ANSWER — Thanks to Rachel Glick, New Holland, for sending this recipe requested by J.T. Houdyshell.

Black-eyed peas
Small white beans
Baby lima beans
Split green peas
Pearl barley
Kidney beans
White kidney beans
Cranberry beans
Pink beans
Small red beans
Black beans
Yellow split peas
Lentils
Navy beans

Pack 2 cups of the mixture into a bag or a jar to give as a gift.

Include the following directions for making the soup: Combine 2 cups assorted dried beans in a pot with 2-quarts water, and 2 tablespoons salt, and soak overnight. Next day, drain. Add 2 quarts fresh water, 1-2 ham hocks. Simmer until soft. Remove meat. Add a 21½-ounce can tomatoes, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 large chopped onion, 1 teaspoon chili powder, 1 clove garlic, and black pepper. Simmer until hot. Enjoy.

ANSWER — Thanks to Maggie Keeler for sending in a recipe for Spiced Tomato Relish, but she writes that since she is a student of early American cooking, she recognizes it as a "confit," which is a mixture of chunky fruit and spices.

Spiced Tomato Relish

3 cups scalded, peeled, fully ripe tomatoes, crushed (but not to a puree)
¼ cup lemon juice
1½ tablespoons grated lemon peel
1 teaspoon ground allspice
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
1 box Sure-Jel pectin
1 teaspoon butter, optional
4½ cups granulated sugar

Put prepared tomatoes in large kettle; bring to a boil. Cover, lower heat and simmer 10 minutes. Stir in lemon juice, lemon peel, and spices. Add pectin and butter; bring to a full rolling boil, stirring constantly. Add sugar quickly, boil one minute, stirring constantly. Stir down foam with a metal spoon. Fill clean, hot jars with screw top lids with hot preserves; fasten lids on tight. Invert jars on lids for five minutes. Store jars in a cool place. Makes about six cups.

ANSWER — A reader wanted a recipe for breaded deep fried cauliflower similar to that served at Shady Maple Restaurant. Thanks to Melba Sheffer, Glen Rock, for sending a recipe that her family enjoys, although she isn't sure if it tastes like that served by the restaurant.

Breaded Cauliflower

1 small head cauliflower, broken into florets (about 5 cups)
4 egg yolks
1 teaspoon garlic powder
1 teaspoon onion powder
1 teaspoon minced parsley
½ teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 cup seasoned bread crumbs
3 tablespoons grated parmesan cheese
¾ cup butter

Place cauliflower and a small amount of water in a skillet, bring to a boil. Reduce heat, cover, and simmer until tender crisp, about 8 minutes, drain and set aside.

In a bowl, whisk egg yolks and seasonings. Place bread crumbs and parmesan cheese in a large resealable plastic bag. Add a few florets at a time to egg mixture, toss to coat. With a slotted spoon, transfer cauliflower to crumb mixture, toss to coat. In a skillet, melt butter over medium heat. Cook cauliflower in batches until golden brown, about 4 minutes. Sprinkle with chopped fresh parsley if desired. Yields: 4-6 servings.

Here is a recipe from another reader.

French Fried Cauliflower

1 head cauliflower, fresh or frozen
2 slices lemon or 2 teaspoons lemon juice
Flour
Eggs, beaten
Italian seasoned bread crumbs
Garlic salt, to taste

Break cauliflower into pieces. Boil with lemon slices until just tender. Drain and cool. Dip each piece in flour, then into beaten eggs, then into crumbs. Fry in deep hot fat until golden brown. Drain on paper towels or on brown bags. Good served with red cocktail sauce.

ANSWER — For those who wanted information on the difference between Clear Jel and Dutch Jel, Doris Brenize, Shippensburg, said you can request a leaflet for the usage of both by sending a request to Country Pantry, 1430 Rowe Rd., Shippensburg, PA 17275.

ANSWER — Virginia Zimmerman, Lititz, wanted a recipe for making beef or pork puddings. Thanks to Esther Martin, Martinsburg, for sending her recipe. She writes that they often cook beef and venison together to cut the grease. The puddings can be eaten with corn mush, potatoes, and in sandwiches.

Our Favorite Meat Puddings

Cook any amount of meat with bones, add half water, put in pressure cooker at 15 pounds pressure for about one hour.

The meat should be soft so the bones can be picked out easily. Use only the best meat and discard the grizzles and fatty stuff before grinding.

Before the meat gets cold, grind it together with some beef broth. Add enough broth to reach the desired consistency. Stir in salt and pepper to taste (about a teaspoon salt per quart meat). Pour mixture into loaf pans and let set in refrigerator until cold. Wrap and freeze.

ANSWER — Shirley Schwoerer, Wysox, wanted a recipe for peach jam using peach Jell-O instead of Certo and Sure Jell. Thanks to a reader for sending a recipe.

Peach Jam

5 cups crushed fresh peaches
7 cups sugar
1 cup crushed pineapple
6-ounces peach or orange Jell-O

Boil peaches, sugar, and pineapple 10-15 minutes. Add Jell-O, and stir until dissolved. Can in jars or freeze.

ANSWER — Thanks to an anonymous reader for sending in this recipe in answer to the request for nutritious recipes.

Broccoli Cheese Soup

2 tablespoons chopped onion
2 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 cups milk
1 cup shredded American cheese
2 chicken bouillon cubes
1½ cups water
10-ounces frozen broccoli or 1 bunch fresh broccoli, chopped

In large saucepan, cook onion in butter until tender. Stir in flour, salt, and pepper. Add milk, cook and stir until thickened. Add cheese. Meanwhile have the broccoli cooking with bouillon cubes. Do not drain. When tender, add cheese mixture, stir until blended, and serve. Makes 5 cups.

ANSWER — In response to Barbara Shank's request, her is one from Pam Eyer, Carlisle.

Hot Pepper Jelly

1½ cups white vinegar
1 medium sweet red pepper, cut into wedges
⅔ cup chopped habanero peppers
6 cups sugar, divided
2 pouches (3-ounces each) liquid fruit pectin
1 teaspoon red food coloring, optional

Place vinegar and peppers in a blender; cover and puree. Add 2 cups sugar; blend well. Pour into a saucepan. Stir in remaining sugar; bring to a boil. Strain mixture and return to pan. Stir in pectin and food coloring. Return to rolling boil over hit heat. Boil 2 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat; skim off foam. Pour hot liquid into hot jars, leaving ½-inch headspace. Adjust caps. Process 5 minutes in boiling water bath. Serve with cream cheese on crackers. Yield: 5 half pints.

World Food Day Highlights Commitment To Food Assistance

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — On behalf of Gov. Mark Schweiker, Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes joined food-assistance agencies and school students from across Pennsylvania to observe World Food Day, Oct. 17, in the Capitol Rotunda.

"I stand here today to affirm that Pennsylvania agriculture will remain strong in the fight against hunger," Secretary Hayes said. "With programs like the State Food Purchase Program and the Farmers Market Nutrition Program, Pennsylvania is a leader in food assistance for our citizens.

"We also rely on community-based food-assistance programs and the volunteers who work in soup kitchens, food banks and pantries. Without the thousands of gracious Pennsylvanians who give freely of their time, it would be difficult to meet the Commonwealth's mission to combat hunger."

Fifteen individuals and groups were honored at the World Food Day celebration with an Emergency Food Program Volunteer Award for their dedication and hard work in the fight against hunger.

Citing their volunteerism, Secretary Hayes presented this year's award recipients with a Certificate of Commendation from Gov. Schweiker.

Hayes also recognized winners of the World Food Day Poster Contest. Students from across Pennsylvania submitted posters interpreting this year's theme — "The Changing Faces of Hunger." The winning posters were selected from an estimated 900 entries from Pennsylvania elementary, middle and high schools.

Through the work of its Bureau of Food Distribution, the Department of Agriculture is committed to fighting hunger in Pennsylvania, and administers several programs to meet this commitment. The Bureau of Food Distribution delivers nearly $40 million in commodities through U.S. Department of Agriculture Commodity programs such as the Emergency Food Assistance Program, the National School Lunch Program, the Summer Feeding Programs and the Charitable Institution Program. The National School Lunch Program supports more than 970,000 meals per school day in Pennsylvania, distributing more than $28 million in food annually.

The Department of Agriculture also oversees two state-run programs — the State Food Purchase Program and the Farmers Market Nutrition Program. The State Food Purchase Program, one of the largest in the United States, provides cash grants to counties to purchase food for distribution to those in need. Nearly $17 million is committed to the program for 2001-02.

The Farmers Market Nutrition Program provides coupons to eligible Women, Infants and Children (WIC) recipients to purchase fresh fruits and vegetables from 525 approved vendors in Pennsylvania. In 2000, $1.5 million in state funds and $1.9 million in federal funds were available for the WIC program. WIC mothers can receive $25 in vouchers, and children ages 2 to 5 can receive $20 in vouchers. A similar Farmers Market Nutrition Program is available for older Pennsylvanians in pilot areas of the state, where seniors receive $20 in vouchers. More than 95,000 seniors are expected to redeem $1.9 million in vouchers this year.

Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes, center, congratulates eighth graders and teachers of D.S. Keith Junior High School, Altoona, Blair County, winners of the poster contest.

For more information about World Food Day or other agriculture programs, visit the Department of Agriculture's website through the PA PowerPort at www.state.pa.us or directly at www.pda.state.pa.us, or call the Bureau of Food Distribution at (717) 787-2940.

Getting Kids to Help Around the House

New York, N.Y. — Why not put kids to work helping you around the house? Getting them involved in the dirty work can be easier than you think.

The cleaning experts at Murphy Oil Soap offer the following tips to make cleaning easy for you and fun for the kids.

Getting into "their" music is a good compromise. Play rock n' roll, country or whatever type of music your kids or teens like, and turn it up!

Kids love a competition. Make it a game for the kids to see who can put their toys away the fastest.

With close supervision, even kids as young as 6-years-old can lend a hand.

Find an old pair of socks and spray some Murphy Oil Soap on them. Then, slip the socks over their hands like sock puppets. Let the kids can run them over those low-to-the-ground, hard-to-reach spots such as lower kitchen cabinets and baseboards.

Set goals to strive for make a list of tasks for each child. When all of the tasks are completed, it's time to celebrate! It can be dinner at their favorite restaurant, a bag of candy or a rental movie of their choice.

Preschoolers Search For Perfect Pumpkins

JOYCE BUPP
York County Correspondent

NEW FREEDOM (York Co.) — A lion and a tiger paced between pumpkins, trying to select a favorite. Winnie The Pooh hugged a shiny orange pumpkin in his furry arms.

The sparkling-blue-dressed ballerina danced from vine to vine, hunting the perfect jack-o-lantern material. And a green-brown-gray, camoflauge-dressed hunter tugged on a wagon loaded down with pounds of pumpkin weighing almost as much as he did.

When each had picked their perfect pumpkin, they pulled red wagons piled high with them back to the ends of the field, with help from moms and dads. Then, the lion and tiger and ballerina and hunter climbed aboard a big farm wagon with their pumpkins for the ride back to Swamp Fox Farms.

The costumed pumpkin-pickers were some of several dozen preschool students from the TLC Montessori School, Jacobus, on their fall field day visit to the pumpkin patches at Swamp Fox Farms. Students, encouraged to come dressed in their colorful holiday costumes, brought moms, dads and grandparents along for a hayride and pumpkin pick at the produce farm on Country Club Road, New Freedom.

Picking pumpkins, complete with a hayride out to the fields covered with the bright orange vegetables, has become an annual event for the school, operated by "Miss Nancy" Hardy and her staff of teachers and assistants. TLC Montessori has 72 students, ranging in age from 18 months to eight years, and specializes in teaching early education and social skills.

The pumpkin and fall harvest season activities are an important time of year at the Swamp Fox Farm, owned and operated by Steve and Mary Klesse. The Klesse family moved from New Jersey in 1996 to assist the farm's previous owner in establishing Swamp Fox Farm. Last year, they purchased the 58-acre produce operation specializing in fresh fruits and vegetables in season and customer-pick business.

Recently, a windmill was added to the farm, to pump water for pond-irrigation for the acres of fresh produce in season. Springtime fills their market area with bedding flowers and vegetable plants. Strawberries and summer berries, like raspberries and blackberries, can be picked by customers or purchased ready to use. Mid-summer, the focus is on favorites like sweet corn and fresh-picked tomatoes.

October is an especially busy month for the Klesse family, when they host morning and afternoon pumpkin-pick hayrides, many of them for groups like the TLC Montessori student body and their families, nearly every day. Guests are also introduced to special farm pets, including a cow and calf, a pair of friendly pigs, and Jack the donkey who shares his pasture with the Klesse's two horses.

For more information on Swamp Fox Farms and their seasonal activities, contact the market center at (717) 235-8712.

Three-year-old Alex, snug and warm in his furry tiger costume, helps big brother Drew make a selection from the hundreds of pumpkins at Swamp Fox Farm's fields.

Finding the perfect pumpkin, in fields covered with bright orange ones in all sizes, took a lot of searching by the preschool pickers.

Caleb Bacha, struggles with a heavy wagonload of pumpkins he has selected.

Pygmy Goats Make Good Pets

Dear Twig:

I saw some tiny goats at the zoo. They looked like they were full-grown, not babies. What were they?

Sounds like they were pygmy goats, which are only about two feet tall at the withers (the point between the shoulder blades).

Pygmy goats used to be called Cameroon dwarf goats. They came to the United States in 1959 from zoos in Sweden and Germany. They're native to west Africa. That's where Cameroon is.

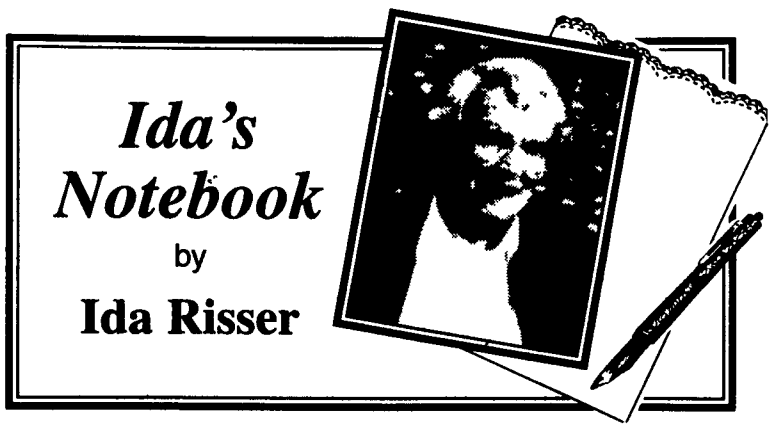
Nowadays they're kept by zoos, on petting farms, and as pets and show animals. They're good-natured, playful, hardy and alert, according to the folks at the National Pygmy Goat Association (http://www.npga-pygmy.com/). They even can be milked (the does, that is).

Pygmy goats need the right food, starting with good alfalfa hay; a draft-free shed or barn; and a safe, fenced exercise area. And they need a friend or two besides you — another goat, a llama or a horse, for instance — since goats are herd animals. A solo goat is an unhappy goat.

Want to know more about pygmy goats? Hoof it to a library or book store. Chew the fat with your veterinarian or Extension agent. Or browse (Get it? Get it?) the Web.

Baa-bye!
Twig

Costumed in his toucan suit for the fall hayride outing, 6-year-old Sage Kreft examines one of the miniature pumpkins on display for customers at Swamp Fox Farms.



My husband and I recently attended an all day meeting of the American Chestnut Foundation. The meeting was conducted in a church in Snyder County. It included a tour of a 118-acre woodland in the afternoon. We saw a sawmill operation and a small plot of American and Chinese chestnut trees.

Up until the early 1900s, the American chestnuts were the dominant tree in forests from Maine to Georgia. They grew to 100 feet and had wood that was used for everything from barn beams to furniture as it was a straight-grained timber.

The chestnuts were feed for animals and they were also roasted and sold on the streets of big cities. It is said that when they bloomed the dry ridgetops of the mountains appeared to be snowcapped.

The foundation is working to reintroduce an American chestnut to the native forests. It is a long process of cross breeding to get a blight-resistant tree.

On our way home, we traveled a 14-mile straight road through Bald Eagle State Forest. This road is not easy to find as it lays between Route 104 and Route 235. We met one car the whole distance, but saw several hunter's trucks parked along the way. The maple leaves were a beautiful red, yellow and orange color.

We too live off the beaten path. But, I do wish I knew someone who could use some quinces. Our tree is loaded and the limbs touch the ground. I also will be letting some flower bulbs in the ground as I have too many. Anyone is welcome to Peruvian lilies, tube roses, Aztex lilies or calla lilies. They will rot in the ground over the winter. I even have lots of horseradish roots to share.

Phosphates Hold It All Together

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Lunchmeat often has sodium or potassium phosphate listed as an ingredient. Phosphates are a type of salt, but they're not added for flavor. When phosphates are added to lunchmeats, hot dogs and similar products, they help the product retain water.

That's important not just because people usually prefer moist lunchmeat, but because phosphates' water-retaining ability actually helps the product hold together.

Processed meats are really a mixture of finely chopped meat, with protein, fat and other ingredients all mixed up together. Phosphates are part of the reason that you can bite into a hot dog and not have it crumble into pieces. The ability of the product to retain water helps that happen, but phosphates also help in a number of other ways.

For one thing, phosphates help turn muscle into meat. More specifically, they extract meat proteins from fibrous muscle tissue and make those proteins soluble. Meat scientists say the soluble proteins act like instant tea — mix them with liquid and they dissolve. Then, when the product is cooked, this solution gels up, which also helps bind the final product together.

Phosphates also help reduce the meat mixture's viscosity — a complex property that involves the product's ability to flow. This is important because reducing viscosity allows the mixture to be chopped and mixed for longer periods than would otherwise be possible. Without phosphates, long chopping or mixing times would result in an unstable product.

Phosphates also have a number of other effects on processed meats — you can learn all the details on Ohio State University's Meat Science Lab website, http://www.ag.ohio-state.edu/~meatsci/archive/phoschap.html.

Poultry Ambassador Does More Than Crack Eggs

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

DENVER (Lancaster Co.) — Why is a 17-year-old Rebecca Highley—with no farming roots—named the Lancaster County Poultry Ambassador?

Rebecca might not have farm family roots, but she certainly has more hands-on agriculture involvement than most students.

She works on two neighboring dairy farms—which means milking cows and baling hay. And she raises a Brown Swiss heifer.

Of course, milking cows has nothing to do with chickens, turkeys, or eggs. But Rebecca is also immersed in poultry knowlege.

This year she joined the FFA poultry judging team. After hours of studying stacks of information on eggs and the poultry industry, Rebecca and her teammates (Brandon Gingrich, Dan Fox, and Sarah Nolt) placed first in the state and headed for national competition in Louisville, Kentucky on Tuesday. (However, no results were available by presstime).

Today Rebecca is quite versed in explaining such subjects as the interior and exterior of eggs, culling, broilers, and laying hens.

"I have a good memory if I want to use it," Rebecca said of her ability to retain scientific details related to eggs and poultry.

Another plus is that Rebecca wants to be a teacher. As the poultry ambassador, she is required to present programs through the Ag in the Classroom program.

"I'm really looking forward to that. I have some ideas on some things I might do," Rebecca said. She especially is eager to don the chicken outfit she's been offered and looks forward to hamming—or is that "clucking it up" a bit.

Poultry Ambassador Rebecca Highley serves Savory Eggs and provides the recipe to readers.

In addition to competing nationally in poultry judging, Rebecca raises a Brown Swiss heifer, and milks cows on two farms.

"Farming is a good fit for her," Patty Highley said of her daughter. "She's always been a hard worker and she never minded getting dirty, unlike her two sisters."

Patty, her husband Robert, and two other daughters are a bit amazed at how quickly and thoroughly Rebecca immersed herself into the farming industry.

Although Rebecca was born with a love for the outdoors, dirt, and work, it wasn't until she chose an ag science class in ninth grade at Garden Spot High School that involvement in farming-related activities became a part of her life. She was so intrigued by the subject matter, impressed by the ag teachers (Robert Lauffer and Cliff Day) that she joined FFA.

"I love FFA. It opened so many doors for me. I wouldn't be the same without it," she said.

In FFA she needed a supervised ag experience project. She applied for a job on a dairy farm. She was the first girl hired to milk cows. During the summer she worked seven-hour days six days a week.

"I like working on a farm because every day is different. Some days, you get kicked by a cow and the next day she's nice to you. Some days there's hay to bale — every day is different — that's what I love about it," Rebecca said.

Rebecca is now a senior, vice president of her FFA chapter with about 100 members, and still milking cows.

She also plays on the school volleyball and softball teams, is a member of school band, jazz band, orchestra, chorus, and marching band.

Scheduling conflicts are common in the fall, but Rebecca said her teachers are very understanding and compromise their requirements to allow her to participate in so many activities at the same time.

With so many activities, Rebecca makes a startling confession. She said, "I'm a procrastinator. I end up studying lots of late nights and Sunday afternoons."

At Pine Grove Mennonite Church, Rebecca is active in the youth group and participated in a mission trip work camp to Puerto Rico.

"It was called 'The Hole' where we went. People lived in houses that looked like a hut that a kid could build. But the people are so kind, gentle, and open," Rebecca said.

She even got to practice speaking Spanish, which she had studied three years in high school.

After high school graduation, Rebecca wants to study ag education at Penn State.

She said that by becoming entrenched in farming activities, she has more appreciation and respect for farmers than ever.

She plans to portray that message while encouraging others to use more poultry products. While most ambassadors learn to make the perfect omelet, Rebecca sees her role encompassing more than cracking eggs. Nonetheless, she hopes readers will enjoy this family recipe.

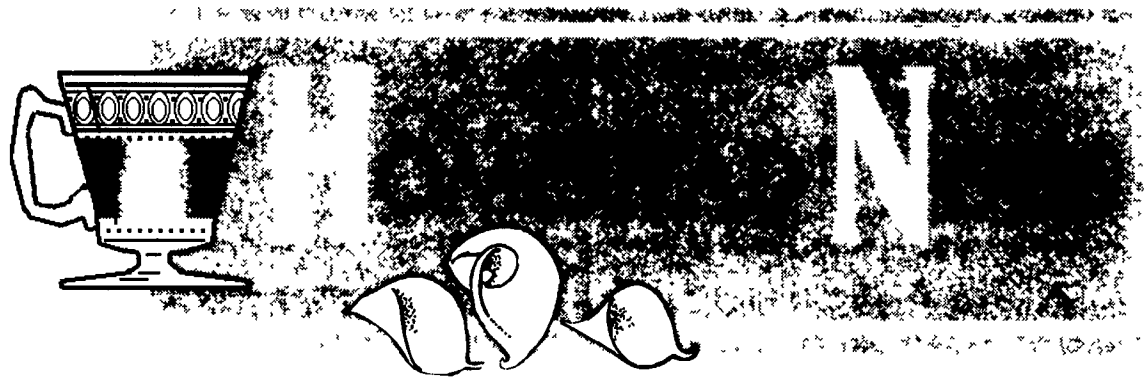
Savory Eggs

¼ cup butter
2 cups grated American cheese
¼ pound chipped ham
1 dozen eggs, beaten
Cream mixture:
¾ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1½ teaspoon dry mustard
1 cup light cream
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

• Spread cheese and ham on bottom of 9x13-inch pan.
• Dot with butter.
• Pour half the cream mixture over the cheese and butter.
• Add beaten eggs
• Pour remaining cream mixture over the eggs.

Bake at 30-35 minutes in 350 degrees. Savory eggs are finished when the mixture is stable and set.

Rebecca, her mom, Patty, and a sister, Rachel, check out FFA literature.



Grants Available For Agricultural, Rural Youth Organizations

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes recently announced that grants through the department's Agriculture and Rural Youth Grant Program are available to foster educational projects and activities for Pennsylvania's youth.

"We continually need to develop innovative educational programs to provide our youth with the tools they need to succeed and to keep our agriculture industry strong," Hayes said. "Our Agriculture and Rural Youth Grant Program helps us accomplish this goal by awarding grants to 4-H and FFA organizations and vocational agricultural programs, to fund educational projects, seminarsm and field trips that increase awareness of agricultural and rural issues."

A total of $100,000 is available for direct and matching grants to qualifying projects. Organizations can apply for matching grants of up to $10,000 and direct grants of up to $2,500. Applications must be postmarked by Nov. 15.

A 13-member Agricultural and Rural Youth Grant Advisory Committee will review the applications.

For more information about the program or to receive an application, contact the Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Market Development at (717) 787-3181 or visit the department on the Web through the PA PowerPort at www.state.pa.us or directly at www.pda.state.pa.us.

You ask ou answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

Or, you may e-mail questions and answers to lgood.eph@lnpnews.com

Please clarify what question you are answering when responding.

Do not send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a reply. If we receive the answer, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details. We will not publish your phone number unless you request it.

QUESTION — Janet Stauffer requested the words to the song, "I Heard the Bluebird Sing." Thanks to several readers for mailing the words, which appear to be similar.

I Heard The Bluebirds Sing

I met a girl out in the hills,
she gave my lonely heart a thrill

Her beauty seemed just like a breath of spring

And when I looked into her eyes, I saw the blue of summer skies

And when I held her hand in mine, I heard the bluebirds sing.

They sang of wondering—wondering if she loves you

Will she marry—marry if you ask her

Will her heart beat—heartbeat ever after

As since the day we met,

And though she's lonely, lonely is he near her

When there's sadness—sadness will he cheer her

Will they always—always be together

Until the end of time.

I courted her for months on end, until she promised we would wed

We planned on being married in the spring

All through the long, cold winter months, it seemed that spring would never come.

It sang of waiting—waiting for the flowers

And of counting—counting every hour

Till the bluebird—bluebird bids a welcome

And though we're waiting—waiting for the sunshine

We keep hating—hating every storm cloud

That has gathered—gathered over the mountain

To keep us far apart.

And when at last spring touched the earth, we're married in the village church.

Our wedding seems just like a dream come true.

So many years have come and gone, our love is still as true and strong

They sing of loving—loving every hour

That I'm married—married to my flower

We'll be happy—happy ever after

As since the day we met;

And though we're older—older love is sweeter

We grow fonder—fonder of each other

We'll be sweethearts—sweethearts ever after

Fresh Soybeans Available In Supermarkets

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Fresh soybeans for sale in supermarkets are relatively new in the United States, but Asian countries have been enjoying green soybeans for just about forever.

While soybeans vie with corn as the numer one crop in the United States, they are different than the specialty soybeans grown just for the ready-to-eat market.

Consumers are also finding the plant in catalogs or garden centers for their home gardens.

Called "edamame" (pronounced ed-ah-MAH-may), there are hundreds of varieties, but each are different than what's normally grown across the nation. They don't have several enzymes that other varieties have, and they're harvested while the pods are still green instead of when they're brown and dry.

The result is a bean that's slightly sweet and nutty. They can be eaten raw, boiled, or in any number of recipes showing up in cooking magazines and on the Internet.

You can open one end of the pod and pop the two or three beans in your mouth, or shell the beans and enjoy them one at a time. (Don't eat the pod, though. It's sort of like eating a banana skin.) Consumers in Japan, Taiwan, China and other parts of Asia eat edamame beans as a snack, much like Americans munch on peanuts or pretzels.

Edamame can normally be found in specialty or organic areas of the produce aisle of larger grocery chains, and in Asian or organic markets. Edamame that's already shelled is often marketed as "sweet beans." Both shelled and unshelled green soybeans also can be found in the frozen section.

A half-cup of green soybeans contains about 125 calories, 11 grams of protein, six grams of fat, and nearly four grams of fiber. They're also a good source of calcium (130 milligrams), potassium (430 milligrams), and other vitamins and minerals. Plus, as with other soybeans, they are also high in phytosterols and other compounds that help fight cancer, heart disease, and many other diseases.

Well Preserved

The Well Preserved news column is prepared by Lancaster County Cooperative Extension. It includes food preservation information and questions.

Sauerkraut

Fall cabbage is excellent for making sauerkraut because it is higher in sugar than earlier varieties.

Recommended varieties include King Cole and Danish hybrids. Prepare and start the fermentation one to two days after harvesting the cabbage.

What containers are suitable for holding the fermented cabbage? The traditional stone crock as well as glass and food grade plastic containers are suitable. The five gallon plastic pails that restaurants receive food in make ideal fermentation containers. Do not use plastic containers that contained chemicals or other non-food items, and do not use garbage bags or trash liners.

How is sauerkraut made? Place five pounds of shredded cabbage in the fermentation container, and add and mix thoroughly 3 tablespoons of canning or pickling salt. Pack it with clean hands until the level of natural juices drawn from the cabbage covers its surface. Continue preparing and packing five pound quantities of shredded cabbage and 3 tablespoons of salt at a time until finished. Leave 3 to 4 inches from the top of the container for a cover.

What is a good method of covering the sauerkraut while it ferments? A large sealed food grade plastic bag containing 4½ tablespoons salt and 3 quarts of water may be used as a weight to hold the shredded cabbage under the surface of the brine during fermentation. You may also use a plate just small enough to fit inside the container and weighted with jars of water. Place two or three clean quart jars filled with water on the plate to keep it under the brined surface. Covering the weight and container top with a heavy clean bath towel reduces mold growth on the brined surface. If you use jars as a weight, check the sauerkraut two to three times each week and remove scum if it forms.

How long does it take for sauerkraut to ferment? At 70 to 75 degrees Fahrenheit sauerkraut will be fully fermented in about three to four weeks. Normal fermentation is completed when bubbling ceases.

What's the best way of keeping sauerkraut after it is through fermenting? It may be kept tightly covered in the refrigerator for several months or it may be canned or frozen. To freeze, bring the sauerkraut and liquid slowly to a boil in a large kettle stirring frequently. Remove from heat and cool. Fill freezer bags, squeeze out air, seal, and label. To can sauerkraut, bring the sauerkraut to a boil, fill the jars rather firmly with sauerkraut and juices leaving ½ inch head space. Process pints in the boiling water bath for 10 minutes and quarts for 15 minutes. Sauerkraut may be raw packed and pints processed for 20 minutes and quarts for 25 minutes. Persons living at higher altitudes need to increase the processing time,

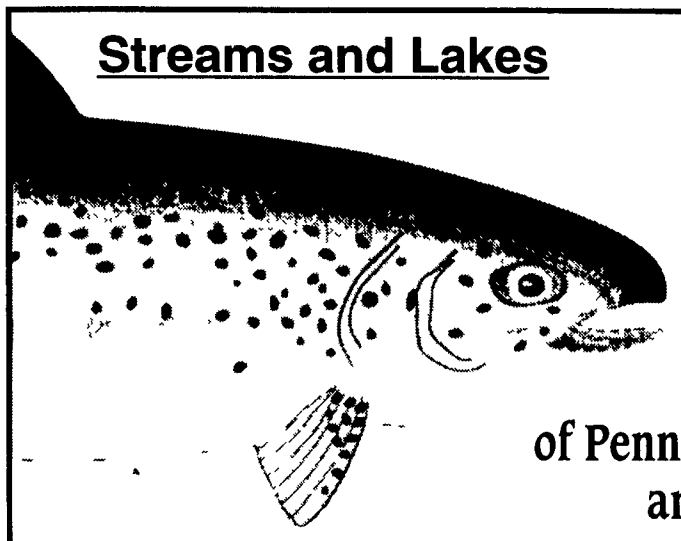
Why does sauerkraut sometimes turn pink and how can it be avoided? Pink sauerkraut is normally caused by the growth of undesirable yeasts on the surface of the sauerkraut nearest the crock top. Molds may be growing on the surface at the same time. Yeast growth is harmless, but it changes the flavor of the sauerkraut. Excessive mold growth on kraut may be harmful if the growing species produce mycotoxins. It can be avoided by using USDA guidelines which describe suitable containers and covers, salt concentration, fresh cabbage, fermentation temperatures, steps in preparation, and canning practices. Can or freeze the sauerkraut as soon as it is fully fermented.

More information about sauerkraut is available by calling your local extension office and asking for the publication Let's Preserve: Sauerkraut.

If you have food preservation questions, a home economist is available to answer questions on Wednesdays 9 a.m.- 1 p.m., call (717) 394-6851 or write Penn State Cooperative Extension, Lancaster County, 1383 Arcadia Rd. Rm. 1, Lancaster, PA, 17601.

Streams and Lakes

Great Gift!



Stream MAPS

of Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio, Michigan and New England (CT, MA, VT, HR, RI)

Why every fisherman and boater needs these maps

It is estimated that 10% of all the anglers catch 90% of the fish Regardless of which group you fall into – there's a sure way to up your odds – simply try new fishing waters Fish where few ever fish

Pennsylvania is loaded with great fishing waters – many of them overlooked From Lake Erie tributaries to the Delaware River – thousands of miles of streams lakes and rivers are now easy-to-locate on one map

Professor Higbee's Stream Map of Pennsylvania is the first and only highly detailed map of its kind

Professor Higbee's STREAMS

The STREAM MAP OF PENNSYLVANIA was completed in 1965 after a thirty-year effort by Howard Higbee, a former Penn State Professor.

The map is known as the LOST STREAM MAP to some anglers.

Professor Higbee succeeded in creating a map of the highest detail possible. a map that shows every stream and lake He painstakingly plotted by hand the location of 45,000 miles of streams onto a 3x5 map.

The map sold extremely well – until it was lost several years later Incredibly, the printer entrusted with the original drawing and printing plates declared bankruptcy, then carelessly hauled Higbee's 30 years of work to a landfill

The few remaining dog-eared copies became a prized possession. Professor Higbee was offered $400 for one of his last maps. And state agencies were forced to keep their copies under lock and key.

Experts told Professor Higbee that reprints were impossible, because the maps were printed in non-photographic blue.

Then, in 1991, at the age of 91, Howard Higbee's dream came true. Computers made it possible to reprint the map. Howard said, "I never thought I'd live to see this day."

FREE GUIDEBOOK WITH ALL MAPS

A guidebook is included FREE with each state map It will pinpoint the "select waters" for specific species of fish in each state Locate STREAM and LAKES both alphabetically and geographically

RAVE REVIEWS

"It is amazingly detailed and names some creeks in the Mohawk Valley that can't even be found on topographic maps."
- John Pitarres, OBSERVER-DISPATCH-Utica

"If you're looking for the most definitive maps ever created depicting every single creek, river, stream, pond and lake...then "Professor Higbee's Stream Maps" are without question the finest."
- Howard Brant, THE NEWARK STAR-LEDGER

"It is in showing where to find out-of-the-way trout streams that makes the map such a treasure to the fisherman."
- Joe Gordon, TRIBUNE-DEMOCRAT-Johnstown

4-H HAPPENINGS

Montgomery County 4-H Shooting Sports

With an estimated 200 million firearms in homes in the U.S., it's more important than ever to teach young people about gun and archery safety, because teaching about it saves lives. That's the primary emphasis in 4-H shooting sports programs. Young people in the program learn to always be aware of people around them when they're shooting and to treat every gun or bow as if it is loaded. They also develop good sportsmanship. By striving to improve their marksmanship, participants also get experience in establishing goals and working toward them. They learn that practicing is the only way to excel.

Boys and girls ages 11 and older are invited to join the 4-H Archery program that meets at the Montgomery County 4-H Center. The program, under the leadership of volunteer, Jerry Dewhurst, Chris McMahon and Tracey Mousely, assisted by teenage volunteers, Jason Dewhurst and Meghan Plenert, is starting its tenth season this fall. If will begin on Tuesday, Nov. 13 and will meet weekly on Tuesdays through the spring from 7:15-8:30 p.m. All experience levels are invited.

All bows, arrows and safety equipment are provided, however, members may also bring their own equipment at the instructor's discretion. If you intend to bring your own, please bring it to the first meeting so that we can assess whether or not it can be used on our range. Also, a parent must attend the first meeting with their youngster. The cost for this program is $30 for the season. Partial scholarships are available if needed. The funds are used to maintain and purchase new equipment, as well as provide for medals for each member who participates in the year-end tournament.

For more information, or to register for the 4-H Archery program, please call Helaine Brown, 4-H agent at (610) 489-4315, from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

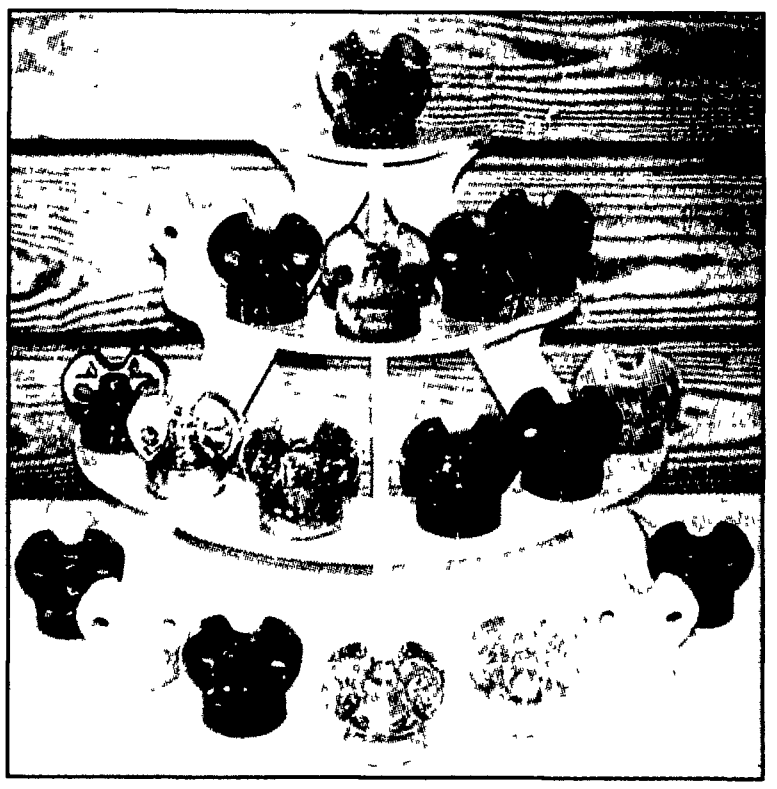
Old Bottles Reveal History

Louis Simon, organizer of the Bedford Show, admires a crystal and ruby red glass bottle.



These glass insulators are owned by Wade Popelish. Glass in colors such as cobalt blue, ruby red, or gold are worth more than clear glass insulators or bottles.

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) For almost a quarter century, a bottle show has been a part of Bedford's Fall Foliage Festival.

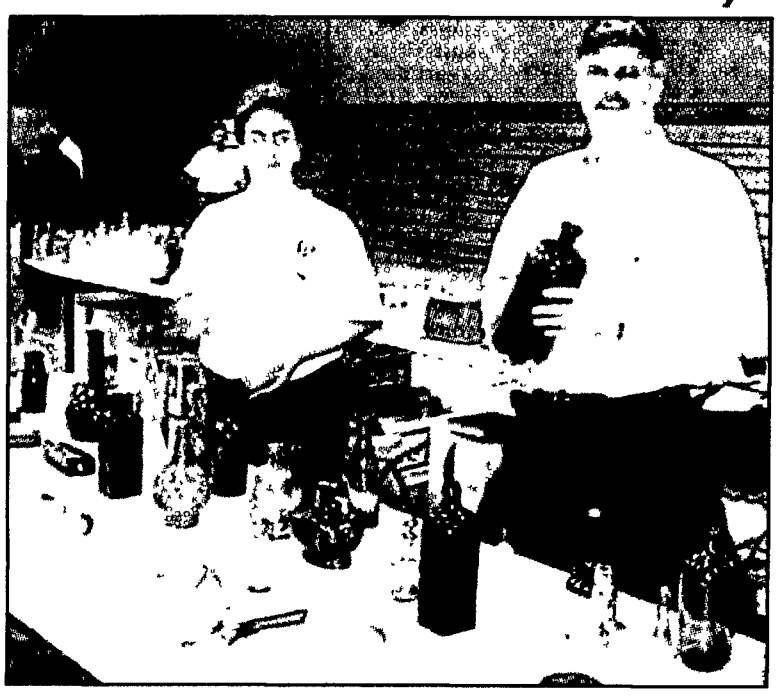
Locals who participate include Wade Popelish and his stepson, Andrew. Wade has been collecting bottles for 20 years, and Andrew easily adapted to his stepdad's hobby.

"It just grows on you," said Andrew, 15. Andrew enjoys attending the shows and adding to his own collection. "I really like red glass," he says, "and have centered my private collection around anything red."

Andrew has about 250 bottles in his collection while Wade has 800 to 1,200.

Wade's interest dates back to the days when he was younger then Andrew. "My dad collected bottles, finding them the hard way. He didn't have extra money to buy them, so we went digging. We would look behind old, abandoned properties or follow the railroad tracks. We didn't find many, but when we did, it was usually a good one," Wade explains.

Here's a closeup of an interesting amber-colored face-shaped bottle.



Wade Popelish passed his love for collecting glass on to his stepson, Andrew.

"Old dumps on farms are a great place to find valuable bottles. It's a lot of work. You have to throw away the bed springs and a lot of other stuff to even start digging."

Collecting bottles is an easy hobby to start. Bottles at bottle shows can range in price from a quarter to thousands of dollars. You might also find old bottles in utility sheds, in attics, or auctions.

"You have to do some research to find out what the true value is," Wade explains. "But almost all glass bottles will eventually go up in value."

"Early glass is crude. Most bottles were utilitarian and were turned out pretty fast. Therefore, they will be wavy, or full of bubbles, not perfect, but that adds to their beauty."

"Very old bottles, those made before the Industrial Revolution were made from two molds," he continues. "The main part of the bottle had a seam, but the top was just a blob of glass socked on the top. Therefore, if you have a bottle where the seam does not go the whole way to the top, it will probably date back to at least the early 1900s."

"Another give away to old bottle is the fact that everything had a cork. Bottles with screw tops were made in modern times."

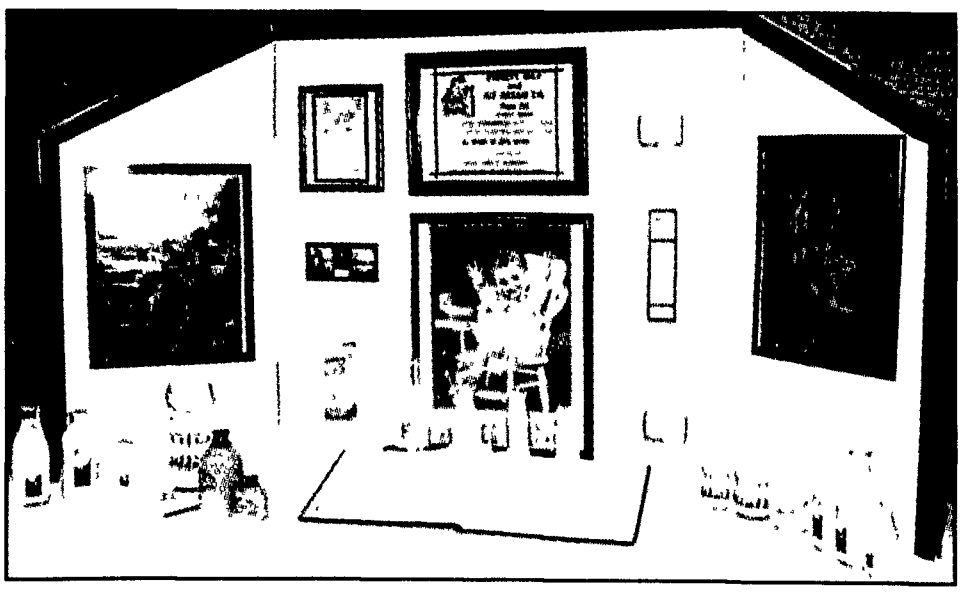
Most collectors enjoy finding bottles which were made in their own geographic locations. Bedford County had two excellent bottling works which were active into the late 1800s. One was located in Bedford and one in Everett.

Detwiler's Dairy in New Enterprise has produced some valuable collectible bottles as did Ritchey's Dairy, which is still in existence and got its start prior to World War II. This year's Fall Foliage Bottle Show featured a prize-winning display from the Everett Milk and Ice Cream Plant.

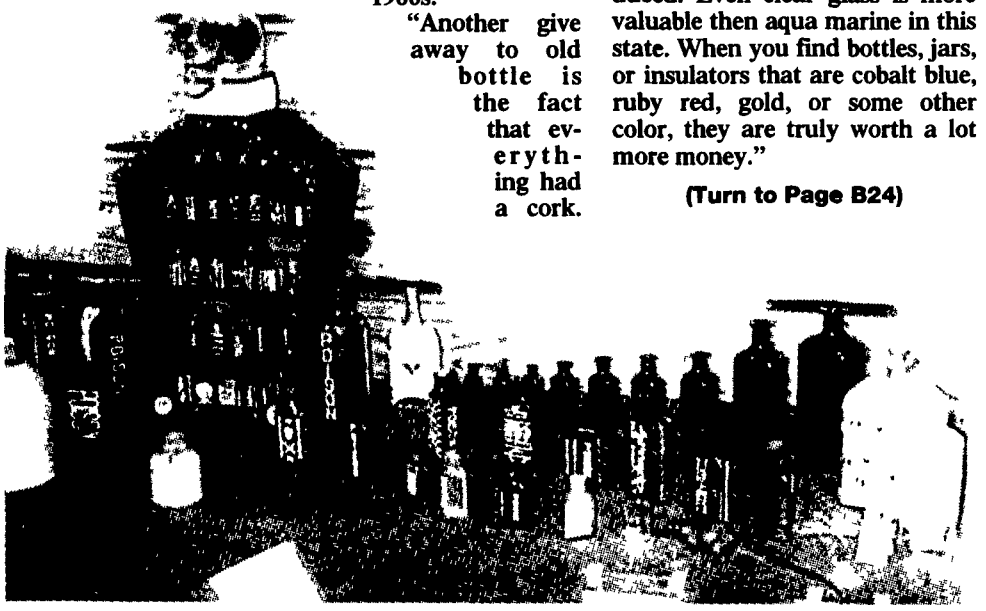
A number of local distilleries produced valuable collectible spirits bottles. There was the Fyan, Hughes, and Brumbaugh Distilleries located in Schellsburg, Bedford, and New Enterprise.

"The number one thing that determines the value of a bottle is color," says Wade. "Most utilitarian glass made in Pennsylvania is aqua marine in color because that is what Pennsylvania sand produced. Even clear glass is more valuable then aqua marine in this state. When you find bottles, jars, or insulators that are cobalt blue, ruby red, gold, or some other color, they are truly worth a lot more money."

(Turn to Page B24)



A collection is even more valuable if it includes original cartons and associated memorabilia. This display shows Christmas advertising gifts offered by Everett Dairy and an original ledger.



Old poison bottles reveal the beauty of old glass, which was usually crude and utiltarian. Today, glass that is bubbly, wavy, and imperfect is of more value.

THE ANTIQUE DETECTIVE

Anne Gilbert

Early English Pottery Museum-Worthy

What started out as a modest Christmas stocking stuffer in 1972 was the beginning of a unique collection of 17th to 19th century English pottery recently been donated to the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation.

The 725-piece collection of salt-glazed stoneware and refined earthenware belonging to Henry H. and Jimmy (June deH.) Weldon has an appraised value of over $5 million. This collecting story offers a good example for beginning collectors who may have hoped for a quick-fix for adding objects. Patience and perseverance are needed. For instance the Weldon collection took a quarter of a century to assemble. In fact, it was only after many years of searching that Mrs. Weldon found the mate to a salt-glazed figural, crane candlestick...creating a rare pair.

Weldon who was born in Holland came to the United States during World War II and served as an intelligence officer with General George Patton. It was during the following years that he made his fortune in his farm products business.

According to Weldon, the donation is because "I wish to recognize the wonderful things America has done for me and repay my debt through this gift to the Museum."

One of the most unique pieces is a figural tea-table group of lead-glazed earthenware.

It shows a family at the table (mother, father, two children) and a black servant. The table is set with tea equipage. Made in Staffordshire, c.1750-1760. It set an auction record for English pottery when it was sold in 1993. Its companion piece, a tavern party scene in the Colonial Williamsburg foundation collection, is the only other known English figural group fashioned in the round.

Although hundreds of pieces of 18th to early 19th century pieces of English pottery were made, it was well used and today it is rare, and expensive. It was made in England around Stoke on Trent in Staffordshire. Pieces were not only decorative but unitarian.

(Turn to Page B25)

Bottles

"The color of glass is pretty dependent on the geographic location which produced it. "

The classifications for bottles include "spirits," "medicinal," lightning rods, glass insulators, soda bottles, milk bottles, poison bottles, and target bottles. "There are few of the latter," explains Wade. "Target bottles were used for, just that, target practice. Therefore there were not many which survived."

Bottle shows are very popular in Ohio because the Buckeye State produced a lot of glass, which makes them a little easier to locate. Baltimore has a large show each year. "One of the largest in this state used to be held in York," Wade says. "However, due to high expenses and fewer participants, it has closed down."

"The internet has given bottle shows a lot of competition," said Wade. "That's bad for bottle shows, because they draw in a lot of people who might not otherwise have developed an interest. However, it is also a lot easier for collectors. I have found some good bottles on the net and have likewise made some good deals selling. I think the net will continue to be the wave of the future."

Sauce boats, tureens, baking dishes and jugs were among them. Colorfully decorated, yet rustic, they mirrored the unsophisticated country life of the day. Adding to their charm were commissioned pieces with inscriptions, dates and names, given for special events. Biblical quotations, mottoes and sayings were popular and painted on the pottery in the 18th to 19th centuries. Any patriotic and historic event was also documented on the pottery.

Because tea was expensive in the 18th century, teapots were small.

By the 19th century, tea was affordable to all and teapots became larger. The decorative motifs became more fanciful and detailed on the large pots. Even the handles, spouts, and knobs depicted various animals and birds.

One of the more unusual teapots in the Weldon collection is earthenware, attributed to Enoch Booth, Tunstall, Staffordshire, England, dated 1743. The base is inscribed with the name and town of its original owner, "F★organ,Tunstall" and the date "Oct.20th, 1743." It is the earliest documented English cream-colored earthenware teapot known today.

Booth was and is considered a master potter.

The earliest type of English pottery was tin-glazed earthenware, named Delftware, after it was brought to England from Holland, where it was known as Delft. When tapped with a finger it rings.

The big change in appearance came when potter Thomas Whieldon began experimenting with glazes. Now known as Whieldon ware, it has a cream-colored earthenware body covered with colored glazes. The colors were sponged on to the body and then covered with a clear lead glaze, When fired the colors melded together and are known as tortoise-shell ware.

When Whieldon formed a partnership with Josiah Wedgwood a strong green glaze was created. Pieces made with this glaze are known as cabbage ware, cauliflower ware and pineapple ware.

Pieces of the Henry H. Weldon Collection displayed at Colonial Williamsburg Foundation.

CLUES: Many of the Staffordshire potters copied the glazes developed by Whieldon.

labeled "Whieldon style", the price should be considerably lower. For example a Staffordshire Whieldon-style sauce boat, c.1765 is listed in the Miller's International Price Guide as having an estimated value of $2,400-$2,800. It would have a considerably higher value with a positive Whieldon attribution. In the same Miller's Guide a pair of Whieldon figures of a cow and bull, decorated with brown mottled glaze, and green-glazed leaves and flowers on the base, even with restoration, were valued at $9,500-$11,500. Prices in general depend on the type of piece, and the glaze.

The subject matter for some of the figures was a bit macabre. Some represented persons who had been involved in criminal acts and had become notorious.

They were so well known that when depicted their names were inscribed on the front of the pottery.

The name "spill vase" has been long out of use. But into the 19th century decorative animal figurines , with a tree trunk spount became utilitarian and used to hold "spills" — thin slips of paper or wood for lighting pipes and candles.

Pratt ware, is a lead-glazed earthenware also made in the late 18th century by William Pratt. It can be recognized by relief decorations and underglaze colors including a brownish ochre, dull blue and green. Most of the wares were oval plaques and jugs.

Mid-19th century examples were decorated with polychrome transfer-prints.

Farm animals and fowl, such as cockerels were made by Pratt and his copiers. In fact, Pratt ware was the name given to any cream-colored earthenware made from around 1790 to 1830 with underglaze colors that could tolorate high firing temperatures.

The 19th century Staffordshire and Prattware figures are still being reproduced.

Gillespie Hired By MidAtlantic Farm Credit

WESTMINSTER, Md. — Jim Aird, regional vice president, has announced the hiring of Gregg Gillespie as a commercial loan officer for MidAtlantic Farm Credit's MidMaryland region.

The MidMaryland region includes Baltimore, Carroll, Cecil, Frederick, Harford, Howard, Montgomery, and Washington counties. Gillespie will assist in the marketing, development, and analysis of large agricultural accounts.

Gillespie has previously held various positions with financial organizations, including lending and credit positions within the Farm Credit System. He is originally from Butler County, Pa., where he grew up on a beef and swine farm. Gillespie is a graduate of Penn State University.

Gregg Gillespie

Gregg resides in Westminster, Md., and in his spare time enjoys reading and history.

Precision Agriculture Not Just For Conventional Farming

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Precision agriculture techniques, generally applied to field crops such as corn and soybeans, are being used to improve production of high value commodity crops.

Ohio State University agricultural engineers have developed a mechanical strawberry yield monitor system prototype that accurately measures fruit yield as the crop is being harvested. It can also be connected to a GPS (Global Positioning System) to create yield maps that document field yield variability.

Reza Ehsani, an Ohio State precision agriculture state specialist and one of the project researchers, said the device could be used as a management tool to increase profits.

"The yield monitor has the ability to quantify yield variability on a farm with the help of GPS. If the variability is too much, then a farmer can search for the cause, like disease or lack of soil nutrients, or pests, and can then manage his field accordingly on a site-specific basis," said Ehsani. "Strawberries are such a high value crop. They have a better return per acre than corn or soybeans, but lack of an appropriate yield monitor and smaller farm size have caused precision agriculture technology to be generally ignored. At least in theory it just makes more sense to use that technology for high value crops. The more accurately you can manage your field the more you can increase your profits."

The yield monitor is designed to install on a strawberry harvesting aid machine. Apart from the GPS system, it acts as a scale that measures the weight of the strawberries as they are placed on the monitor. When the batch reaches a specific weight, a pound for example, the monitor then dumps the strawberries into an appropriate container that is then packaged for sale. The system, simple and low in cost, effectively measures yields as the crop is being harvested.

Ehsani said that although it is possible to measure yield manually in the field, it is time consuming and infeasible. "If a farmer has 10 acres and measures his yield manually every three feet by three feet, it's technically impractical," he said. "That's just too time consuming."

A strawberry harvesting aid machine, most commonly found in Florida and California where large strawberry production takes place, has not been designed for use in the Midwest. But Matt Sullivan, an OSU Extension program specialist, helped develop a semi-automatic mechanical harvesting aid machine for use on his 15-acre family strawberry farm near Columbus, and has been pleased with the results.

"On our farm we are finding that new production systems and cultivars enable running a semi-automatic mechanical harvesting aid possible, " said Sullivan.

The harvesting aid machine houses a platform on each side of the machine where pickers sit and harvest strawberries as the operator drives the machine through the field. The strawberries are then placed on a conveyor belt, located in the middle of the harvesting aid, and are carried to the back of the machine where another person inspects the berries and then dumps them in the yield monitor to be measured and then packaged.

Sullivan said the harvesting aid machine improves efficiency by decreasing the time it takes to harvest a field and saves on labor costs, since it only takes half the number of people to harvest using the machine than to do it by hand.

"We are also selling a higher quality berry for the consumer because there are several people on the machine who evaluate the berry before it gets packaged," said Sullivan. "Quality control is one of the biggest issues when harvesting berries."

Sullivan's family has used the harvesting aid machine for two years to pick and plant strawberries and cultivate other crops. "I think this machine has really improved our production and our yields," said Sullivan.

The family plans to use the harvesting aid machine for other research projects, such as evaluating production systems and cultivars that best fit their agricultural practices.

Hoober Adds Supreme To Support Dairy Farmers

INTERCOURSE (Lancaster Co.) — Hoober Inc. has recently added Supreme Feed (TMR) Processors to extend its line of products for dairy producers.

Supreme is the first company to introduce a vertical mixer and has maintained the lead in patenting its design. The Supreme benefits farmers by increasing their productivity and efficiency while reducing their costs.

Using Supreme's TMR will allow producers to feed their livestock a healthier, more standardized diet. The Supreme thoroughly mixes the roughage (hay or silage) and commodities (such as nutritional supplements) so cattle cannot choose to eat some parts and not others. Thus, nothing is wasted. Plus, each cow gets the same consistent meal.

According to Charlie Hoober, "The Supreme is the top-of-the-line feed mixer. If a dairy farmer invests in the right product initially, he will save money for years. We wanted to be the first to offer this quality product to our dairy customers."

Hoober Inc. has recently added Supreme Feed (TMR) Processors to extend its line of products for dairy producers.

Forage Quality Data Confirms Radiant Alfalfa Claims

PANA, Ill. — Eric Denton from rural Pana sent in forage quality reports on Radiant alfalfa produced on the Denton Stonehenge Farm.

The field was established in April 2001 to sell hay to high-producing dairy farms in the Midwest.

Denton said that on the first two cuttings, Radiant was 15-20 points higher on RFV than a competitor's "high quality" variety. On the third cutting the varieties were similar to each other. The average RFV for the three cuttings was more than 182.

Also, from northern Indiana, Yoder Farm Service turned in a forage quality test result from haylage to be fed to dairy cows. The comment from Yoder's salesman, Travis Stohlman, was that Radiant alfalfa made the "best haylage ever tested on the farm."

New Line Of Backhoes

SALINA, Kan. — Land Pride continues expanding its product line with the introduction of the 15, 25, and 35 Series backhoes.

Four new models feature maximum digging depths ranging from 6 foot, six inches to 12 foot, 6 inches, depending on the model, with bucket options from 9 inches to 36 inches. Skid steer models are also available in 8 foot and 9 foot sizes.

Land Pride backhoes stand apart from the competition by featuring cylinders with Nitro-Steel® black piston rods which provide superior wear and corrosive resistance, as opposed to the chrome shafts supplied on most competitor models. All Land Pride models also feature a tubular and box designed frame, on the boom and dipper stick assemblies for added strength and longer life.

A hydraulic swing cushion valve prevents shock loads at the end of swing travel. A wide support base with large steel foot pads provide more stability and safer operational control.

Easy operation and control is achieved from the two-lever hydraulic valve with excellent feathering characteristics and minimum cylinder cavitation. An adjustable folding seat offers more comfort and room for operation resulting in less operator fatigue.

Alderfer Real Estate Company Joins Tranzon

RICHMOND, Va. — Tranzon, L.L.C. has announced recently that Sanford A. Alderfer, Inc., the real estate company affiliated with The Sanford Alderfer Auction Company, has joined Tranzon as one of its member companies. Sanford A. Alderfer, Inc., which will begin to trade under the name Tranzon Alderfer, is based in Hatfield (Montgomery County) and operates primarily in Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

Tranzon is the first truly national auction firm whose member companies specialize in selling real estate and significant business assets at auction. The Tranzon companies have successful auction experience in all types of real estate, combining the market savvy and expertise of regional companies with the resources of a national organization. Member companies may join by invitation only, and are selected based on stringent criteria focusing on service excellence, reputation, and expertise

The Sanford Alderfer Company was founded by Sanford A. Alderfer in 1959 and has grown into one of the leading sales and service organizations in the Delaware Valley. Alderfer Auction Company has long been recognized as a leader in the auction industry, selling personal property and real estate at auction successfully for the past 42 years.

The decision to separate the personal property side from the real estate side will not affect Alderfer Auction Company, which will continue to hold its weekly personal property auctions from its Hatfield location. Tranzon Alderfer, focusing solely on real estate, will continue to be based in Hatfield, and will also operate from an office in West Chester.

In connection with this announcement, co-owners Sanford L. Alderfer and Vernon L. Martin have been named regional officers of Tranzon L.L.C. and have been elected to Tranzon, L.L.C.'s Executive Committee. Jeff Levin, president of Richmond, Virginia-based Tranzon, L.L.C., remarked, "We are excited to associate with Sandy and Vernon and their real estate auction team. The strength of the Alderfer organization and its reputation for service and integrity, combined with Tranzon's depth of resources and expertise, will make for an extraordinary team."

Sanford L. Alderfer has been in the auction and real estate business since 1972. He is CEO of the Sanford Alderfer Company, which includes Alderfer Auction Company, Atlantic Moving Service, Astro Tent Rental and Alderfer Transport.

Vernon Martin has been in the auction and real estate business since 1972.

Martin's professional memberships have included the Lehigh Valley Society of Auctioneers, the Pennsylvania Association of Auctioneers, the National Auctioneers Association, the International Association of Appraisers, and the Local, State and National Association of Realtors. He is a past president of the Pennsylvania Association of Auctioneers, and was named 1991 Auctioneer of the Year by the Pennsylvania Auctioneers Association. In addition, Martin was inducted into Pennsylvania Auctioneers Association Hall of Fame in 2000.

Hubbard Joins Sales Team

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Pennfield Corporation has announced that Gene Hubbard has joined its dairy sales team.

With a degree from Penn State University and 25 years as a district manager for Purina Mills, Hubbard brings a wealth of knowledge and experience to Pennfield.

As an area manager, Hubbard will be working with dairy producers in northeastern Pennsylvania. He will also share his experience by assisting Pennfield sales associates in central New York state.

Connecticut Exhibitors Win Top Honors At Big E Holstein Show

WEST SPRINGFIELD, Mass. — Arethusa Farm, of Litchfield, Ct., exhibited the grand champion Holstein at the 2001 Northeast Fall National Holstein Show, conducted Sept. 14 at Eastern States Exposition in West Springfield, Mass. Their 4-year-old cow, Eastriver Indianhead Poli, first named senior champion of the open show by Judge Bill Taylor of Marcellus, topped all other entries in the first livestock show of the fair.

Elmvue Farm and Chris George, of Millertown, N.Y., exhibited the reserve grand champion of the open show, with Co Vista Airline Sarah, the second place 4-year-old cow. She was first named reserve senior champion by Judge Taylor.

The overall bred-and-owned champion was Lylehaven Form Laura ET, owned by Lylehaven Farm, of East Montpelier, Vt.

The junior champion of the open show was awarded to Eiklyn CC Choice, owned by Rick and Shannon Allyn of Eiklyn Farm, Canaan, Ct. Jeffrey Hill, of Canajoharie, N.Y., took home the reserve junior champion award, with his heifer Hu-Hill Eek Angela.

In a tie for premier exhibitor honors, Arethusa Farm and Ovaltop Holsteins of Richfield Spring, N.Y. each shared the award. Ovaltop Holsteins also won the premier breeder banner.

Arethusa Farm also took home the intermediate champion trophy, with Eastside Lady J ET. Clark Woodmansee, of Preston, Ct. won the reserve intermediate champion honors with Lew Lin Highlight Hotstuff.

In the junior division of the Holstein show, Rebecca Gibbs, of Lagrangeville, N.Y. won the grand champion honors and also the overall bred-and-owned champion, with her senior 2-year-old cow, Sunset Hill Ace Sandra. Matthew Erb, of Landaff, N.H., exhibited the reserve grand champion with Lylehaven Raider Dandy, his second place senior 2-year-old cow.

Vermont's Burgess Farm Tops New England Guernsey Classic

WEST SPRINGFIELD, Mass. — Diane Burgess of Bradford, Vt. exhibited the grand champion at the 2001 New England Guernsey Classic, at Eastern States Exposition in West Springfield, Mass. Her aged cow, Burgess Farm Enhancer Palm, was first named senior champion by judge Tim Abbot of Fairfield, Vt.

Youth exhibitor Ashley Sears of South Deerfield, Mass., exhibited the reserve grand champion of the open show, with Wabanaki PQ Dividend Cheerio, a 2-year-old cow.

Sears also exhibited the grand champion female in the junior Guernsey show, Indian Acres Fays Pumpkin Pie, a dry cow which earned the junior champion title in the open show, as well. The reserve grand champion female in the junior show was Huckins Challenger Eve, shown by Bill Booth of Uncasville, Conn.

Burgess went on to exhibit the senior best three females and the dairy herd and earned both the premier exhibitor and the premier breeder banners.

World Dairy Expo Host To Four Breed Sales

MADISON, Wis. — The 2001 World Dairy Expo hosted sales of four major international breeds — Brown Swiss, Guernsey, Jersey and Holstein — at the Alliant Energy Center, Oct. 3-7. Following is a short summary of each sale.

Guernsey Classic International:

Masterpiece Syndicate and Taurus Service of Mehoopany, Pa., paid $14,000 for Marfred Masterpiece at the Guernsey sale. Tamaracks Perfectos Valor-ET sired masterpiece and Marfred Farm of Saluda, S.C., was the consigner.

The second highest selling animal was Yellow Creek U Iva consigned by Yellow Creek Farm in Goshen, Indiana. Colby O'Malley of Gilman, Wisconsin made the final bid of $4,700.

There were 22 lots sold, with an average price of $3,183. Total sales were $70,025. Guernsey Marketing Service managed the sale.

Top of the World Jersey Sale:

The Top of the World Jersey Sale was a video silent auction. Bids started Wed., Oct. 3, and closed at 3:00 p.m. Fri., Oct. 5. Bridon GC Eva-ET was the high seller at the sale. Christy Ratliff of Garnett, Kan., paid $6,800 for the Jersey. Glenholme Counciller sired Eva. Bridon Jerseys of Paris, Ontario, Canada consigned the animal.

The second highest selling Jersey was Long Distance Freedom Babe-ET. Daniel Martin of Gratiot, Wis., paid $5,300 for Babe which was consigned by Don Wilterdink of Sheboygan Falls, Wis.

The sale, managed by Jersey Marketing Service, featured 34 lots totaling $96,750 with an average sale price.

Brown Swiss Premier Sale:

Lyn Main and Peter Vail of Copake, N. Y., paid $6,500 for Savage-Leigh Taffy ET, consigned by Jami and Chip Savage of Knoxville, Md., at the Brown Swiss Premier Showcase Sale, Fri., Oct. 5.

Sun-Made Garbro My Pumpkin was the second highest selling Brown Swiss at $5,900. The Brown Swiss was consigned by Lino Balzarini and Severino Caoduro of Eldolo, Italy, and purchased by Forest Lawn Farm of Wausau, Wis.

The average price was $3,942 in the sale, which was managed by Brown Swiss Enterprises, the marketing arm of the Brown Swiss Association.

World Classic 2001 Sale:

The 2001 World Classic Sale opened with the glitz and glamour of Hollywood with the highest selling animal EK-Oseeana Ashlyns Allure arriving via a limousine on the red carpet center ring. Abbott, Raggi, Rama and Wolff of Fairfield, Vt., paid $25,000 for the Holstein which was consigned by Oseeana Holsteins and Ernest Kueffner of Boonsboro, Md. Her sire is Regancrest Elton Durham-ET and her dam is Tri-Day Ashlyn-ET, the Supreme Champion Cow at the Expo.

The second highest selling Holstein at $18,500 was Jeffana Emerson Hazel-ET, consigned by Jeff Henschel of Manawa, Wis. and purchased by Wauregan Farm of Wayne, Maine.

The sale included 42 lots, with an average sale price of $8,080.95. Total sales were $339,400. Tom Morris Ltd. of Amery, Wis., managed the sale.

Conservation District Director Nominations Solicited

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Concerned about the water quality and other natural resources in Lebanon County? You can make a difference by serving as a director or associate director for the Lebanon County Conservation District.

"District directors have a direct say in how people in the county deal with many important natural resource issues such as water quality, forestry, agricultural best management practices, and soil erosion" said District Chairman Calvin Miller. "Serving on the conservation district board is an excellent way to make an impact on the future of our natural resources."

Conservation Districts in Pennsylvania are subdivisions of state government that manage and direct conservation programs within counties. The Lebanon County Conservation District is governed by a nine-member board, which oversees a staff of nine. District staff work directly with landowners and other citizens to put conservation practices on the land and educate the community on environmental issues and trends.

The district board meets monthly to conduct the business of the district and to coordinate district programs with state and federal agencies and local units of government. Board members are not paid, but may receive compensation for expenses related to attending meeting and other activities of the board.

Individuals interested in serving as a director or associate director for the Lebanon County Conservation District need to be nominated by an approved nominating organization within the county. For more information, contact the Lebanon County Conservation District office at (717) 272-3908, ext. 4, the county commissioners office at 274-2801, ext. 2202, or the State Conservation Commission office in Harrisburg at (717) 787-8821.

Sustainability Grant For Northeast Farmers

Farmers in the Northeast are encouraged to apply for grants to support innovative, exploratory projects that will enhance the sustainability of farms and farming in the Northeast. The regional office of the Sustainable Agriculture Research and Education (SARE) program is now accepting applications for projects that address production and marketing practices that are profitable, environmentally sound, and beneficial to the wider community.

Applications can address a broad range of agricultural and forestry related production or marketing issues — past grants have included efforts in adding value, community-supported agriculture, pest management, soil and water conservation, grazing, and agroforestry.

In 2001, the average grant award was $4,150; no grant can be larger than $10,000. The proposal deadline is Dec. 3.

Any full- or part-time commercial farmer in the Northeast SARE region can apply — the region is made up of Connecticut, Delaware, Massachusetts, Maryland, Maine, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont, West Virginia, and Washington, D.C.

Nonprofit farms can also apply, provided that the primary activity of the farm is to produce and sell food under the same economic constraints that affect commercial growers.

Applications and more information are available on the Northeast SARE Website at www.uvm.edu/nesare/ or can be requested by calling (802) 656-0471.

High Producing Holstein Cows Known for Longevity

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — U.S. Holsteins are built for long, productive careers; they offer more than just high producing young cows or fancy show animals.

To date, a whopping 23 Holsteins born in the 1980s have exceeded 350,000 pounds of milk in their lifetime - almost five times as many animals at this production level as there were in the 1970s.

Several of these top producers are still alive and, while they come from a variety of operations, they do have a few things in common; all are above breed average genetically for their year of birth, are moderate sized, healthy, aggressive producers that breed back and calve with little trouble.

Topping this list of living leaders is a 15-year-old Carlin-M Ivanhoe Bell, daughter from Koepke Farms in Oconomowoc, Wis. Koepke K0017229-1660 has produced 394,609 pounds of milk and 13,182 pounds of fat to date. 1660 also had seven daughters who are following in their mother's footsteps of high production.

Other outstanding animals by age, pounds of milk to date, pounds of fat to date, and herd:

- Ocean-View Chairman Barbee-ET, EX-90; 16; 366,110; 11,230; Ocean-View Farms, Windsor, Calif.
- Willows-Edge Columbus Helen, EX-90; 16; 363,983; 13,791; Willows-Edge, New Richmond, Wis.
- Harmony-Ho Mark Petrina, VG-86; 12; 360,829; 11,300; Harmony-Ho Holsteins, Stratford, Wis.
- Elm-Lawn-G Stewart Susie, 5E-94; 15; 357,385; 11,665; Elm-Lawn-G Holsteins, Seymour, Wis.
- Keystone Tesk Pearl, 4E-92; 13; 351,023; 10,769; Keystone Farms, Easton, Pa.
- Pinehurst Faithful, 15; 350,224; 13,395; Fieldstone Farm, Sheboygan, Wis.

All of these high-producing, more durable cows were the result of carefully planned matings and achieve their owner's breeding goals for productive life and transmitting their production excellence on to progeny.

For producers looking for ways to achieve their breeding goals and manage their genetics more aggressively, Holstein Association USA has the information and programs to help breed better cows. Call (800) 952-5200 for more information or visit www.holsteinusa.com.

Ramachandran To Join Penn State Poultry Science Department

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Dr. Ramesh Ramachandran, Intramural Research Training Fellow, Section on Neural Gene Expression, National Institute of Mental Health in Bethesda, Md., will join the Penn State Department of Poultry Science as an assistant professor of Avian Biology in early 2002.

Dr. Ramachandran received a Bachelor of Veterinary Sciences Degree from Madras Veterinary College, Madras, India in 1986. Following several years as a research fellow, and as a veterinary specialist officer, he then continued his graduate studies under the direction of Dr. Wayne Kuenzel at the University of Maryland-College Park.

Ramesh remained in Dr. Kuenzel's lab for his Ph.D., where he conducted morphological and physiological studies of pituitary somatotrophs and lactotrophs during the reproductive cycle of the turkey hen.

Following receipt of his Ph.D. in 1997, Dr. Ramachandran joined the USDA Germplasm and Gamete Physiology Laboratory in Beltsville, Md., as a postdoctoral research associate under the mentorship of Dr. John Proudman.

In January 2000, Dr. Ramachandran moved to his present position. His current research activities are focused in two areas: Defining the role of the oxytocin receptor in reproduction and behavior through cell-specific gene deletion and, secondly, restoring oxytocin-and vasopressin-receptor gene expression in knockout mice using lentiviral vectors.

In his new position at Penn State, which has an 80 percent research and 20 percent teaching responsibility, Dr. Ramachandran will conduct research in the area of female reproduction and will teach both ANSC 423 (Comparative Physiology of Domestic Animals) and a graduate course in his area of expertise.

November Genetic Update On Holsteins Available Online

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — The Holstein Association prides itself on providing the dairy industry with the most accurate, up-to-date and complete genetic information sooner than any other source. The release of the November genetic evaluations begins Nov. 12 at www.holsteinusa.com with a variety of traditional, new, and improved products.

November genetic values will be available on Official Holstein Pedigrees and U.S. Fact Sheets at www.holsteinusa.com as early as Monday evening, Nov. 12. That same day will mark the release of the High Ranking Sire Report (HRSR) and the Top 100 International Bull list. Both lists are available free online and can be accessed 24 hours a day at www.holsteinusa.com.

Other sire listings will be updated on Nov. 14, including the Top 100 TPI Bulls. A complete schedule is available at www.holsteinusa.com under the Genetic Evaluations button.

For customers using Red Book Plus™ and MultiMate™ to maximize their herd's genetic potential while minimizing inbreeding, the updated files will be available for download on Nov. 14. By downloading this information directly from www.holsteinusa.com, producers are able to work with new genetic values sooner and to eliminate waiting for the CD in the mail.

Also available online is the Holstein Association's Inbreeding Calculator. This unique application allows easier determination of the level of inbreeding that would be created through a particular mating.

Free for a limited time, the Inbreeding Calculator provides the percent inbreeding produced by the mating as well as the parent averages adjusted for inbreeding. Five different sires can be entered to determine the most profitable and progressive mating.

The November genetic update will also feature the revised Sire Summaries. This new design provides more information with each genetic update for the same low price of $10.

Results Announced For All-American Junior Dairy Management Contest

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — FFA and 4-H members from Pennsylvania and neighboring states competed in the 15th Junior Dairy Management Contest at the 38th annual All-American Dairy Show at the Farm Show Complex, Harrisburg.

Contestants were tested on their knowledge of the dairy industry. They participated in seven classes dealing with topics in dairy cattle selection, linear trait analysis, meats identification and quality assurance, nutrition, business management, foot and leg health in dairy cattle, and dairy product identification and quality.

Team awards were presented on the basis of high scores in the seven classes. In the individual competition, the top five scoring individuals were interviewed by a panel of three judges, and they were judged on their knowledge of the dairy industry and their speaking abilities.

Winning top honors in the Individual Division was Jason Moore from the New Jersey 4-H - A team. He was presented with a $1,000 scholarship to use towards higher education.

The top team in the 4-H division was Harford Co. (Maryland) Dairy 4-H - A. The team members were Chris Dixon, Erin Magness, Jenny Miller, and Amy Vaughan; and Pat Magness was their coach.

USDA Develops Specs For Institutional Goat Meat Purchases

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The USDA announced Oct. 2 new Institutional Meat Purchase Specification (IMPS) series for fresh goat have been developed to address the growing demand for goat meat in the United States and to facilitate the expansion of goat meat marketing.

The document features detailed descriptions for goat products and provides purchasers specific ordering options. The series has selection criteria for live goats and carcasses, a codification system, and a special requirements section that provides marketing options addressing class, breed type, forage type, organic certification, and slaughter method preferences.

Retail, food service, and institutional buyers depend on the standardized code referenced IMPS item descriptions when they go to the marketplace to purchase meat items. In addition, the Livestock and Seed Program, through its Meat Grading and Certification Branch, provides a voluntary certification service to assure the items comply with purchaser specified IMPS options.

Meat marketing specialists from AMS' Livestock and Seed Program, along with meat scientists from Louisiana State University and Southern University, developed the IMPS for Fresh Goat, Series 11. This activity was prompted by requests from the goat industry for standardized criteria for carcass evaluation and descriptions of goat meat cuts.

For information about the new IMPS series, or to obtain copies, contact Steve Olson, Standardization Branch, AMS Livestock and Seed Program, USDA Stop 0254, 1400 Independence Ave. SW, Washington, D.C. 20250-0254; telephone (202) 720- 4486; fax (202) 720-1112; e-mail Steve.Olson@usda.gov ; or Web site .

Top Producers Choose Knight!

Congratulations to the La-Foster Farm

Terry and Gerald Foster are very proud of their record-breaking cow, Lucy, and rightly so. She produced 75,260 pounds of milk in her last lactation. They are also pleased with their Knight Reel Auggie® mixers, which, combined with the Foster's excellent management practices, have propelled the La-Foster herd average to the #1 milk production status in North Carolina. There is no comparison to the complete, palatable blend from a Knight Reel Auggie, with its patented reel and auger blending combination. Why else would the La-Foster Farm choose only Knight to feed their record-setting herd?

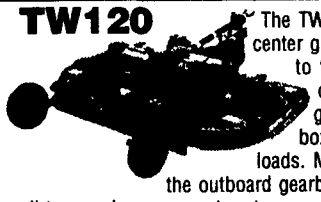
SERVIS-RHINO®... THE REAR BLADE LEADER has a rugged rear blade ready to work for you on 20 HP to 65 HP trac-tors Additionally, you have the assurance that each Rhino® rear blade is designed and built based on over 50 years of blade building experience to make you the most productive and offer you the best value

Model 350 - 6 Foot • Model R500 - 6 Foot
Model R500 - 7 Foot

TW120



The TW120 cuts a 120" swath of material. The center gearbox, rated at 120 HP, transfers power to the 100 HP outboard gearboxes Torque dampeners on both sides of the center gearbox help prevent driveline and gear-box damage caused from sudden shock-loads. Massive 2-3/8" diameter output shafts in the outboard gearboxes help provide optimum service The pull-type and semi-mount units require a 50 HP (min) tractor and the lift-type unit requires a 60 HP (min.) tractor (with adequate front weights).
TW120 - 10' Cut • TW84 - 7' Cut • TW72 - 6' Cut

Pull-Type
The pull-type SE10 requires only a 45 HP (min) tractor for economical, wide-cut mowing A hydraulic cylinder or ratchet lift screw is available for raising and lowering the mower A spring shock absorber is optional to help cushion shockloads to the main-frame when operating in rough terrain (Unit shown with optional chain guards Deflectors are standard)

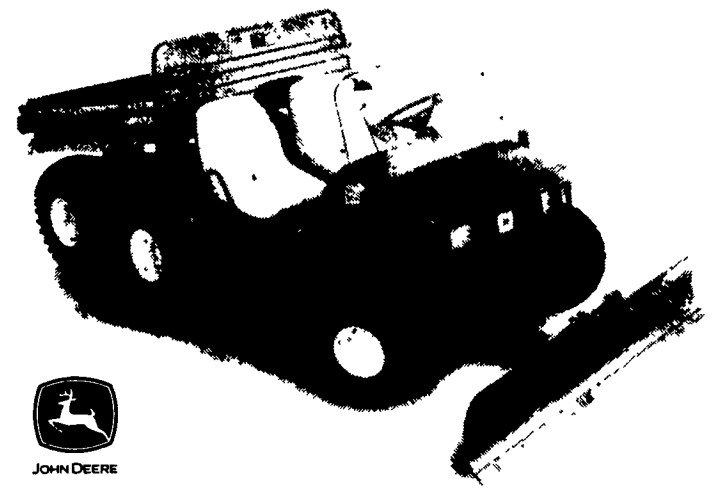
John Deere Gator Utility Vehicles

Anything you can do they can do better.



JOHN DEERE

Whether you're plowing, transporting, dumping, or just getting from point A to point B, John Deere Gator™ Utility Vehicles do it best. Powered by gas or diesel engines, these rugged beasts come with 2- or 4-wheel drive, a maximum 1,400 pound payload and a footprint of just 7.1 to 7.5 psi compared to 20 to 22 psi for competitive units. See your John Deere dealer today for a test drive. And let your Gator Utility Vehicle do the work.

For 6x4 Diesel. Includes 200 lb. passenger, 200-lb. operator and maximum box capacity.

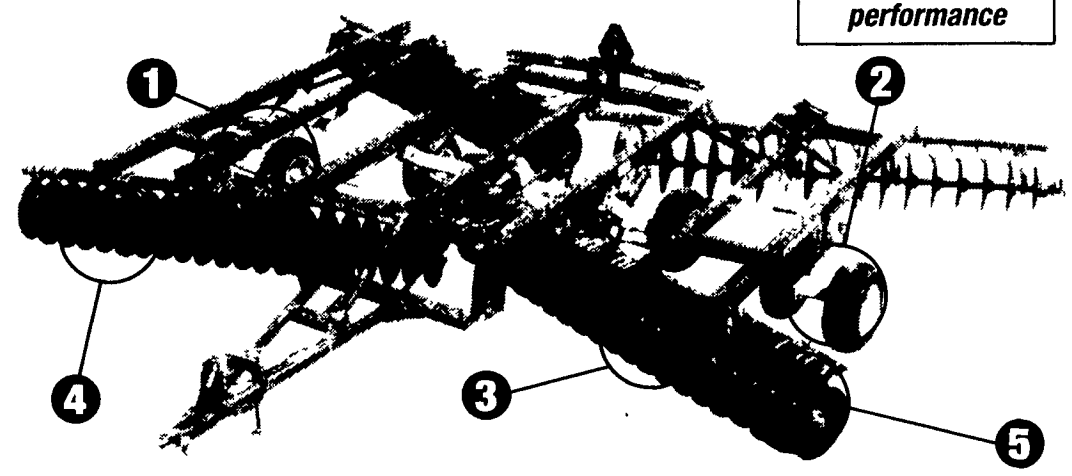
The Standard By Which All Discs are Measured

Five solid reasons why Krause is the leader in Disc Harrow field performance



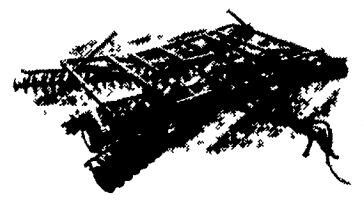
1. Advanced Lift System
Underframe-mounted lift cylinders apply lifting forces directly to the wheel arms, minimizing the forces on the rocker pivots A great advancement over past designs with top mounted cylinders

2. Forward-Action Wing Depth-Control Wheels
Forward-action wing depth control wheels mean smooth discing over uneven terrain With close placement to the front gang, there's no need for extra front-mounted gauge wheels that follow ground contours and result in uneven discing

3. Strongest Gangs in the Industry
Our heavy cast iron spools are precision machined for an exact fit against the blades, resulting in a stronger, more durable disc gang that resists blade breakage

4. Full Concavity Disc Blades
Krause understands disc performance Unlike shallow concavity blades on competitive units, our blades turn the soil over completely

5. Rock-Flex Models
Krause's heavy duty Rock Flex bearing arms are the choice of farmers where field obstacles are a problem



Take Advantage of Special Savings on Leftover Krause Disc Harrows

"We started with Hoober around 1990, and our first piece of equipment was a Case-IH 7120 Magnum We have over 5,000 hours on it now, and we have had no major problems at all. It has been a good piece of machinery for us - they are very dependable tractors. Hoober's service and parts support has been really good too, they are there when you need them."

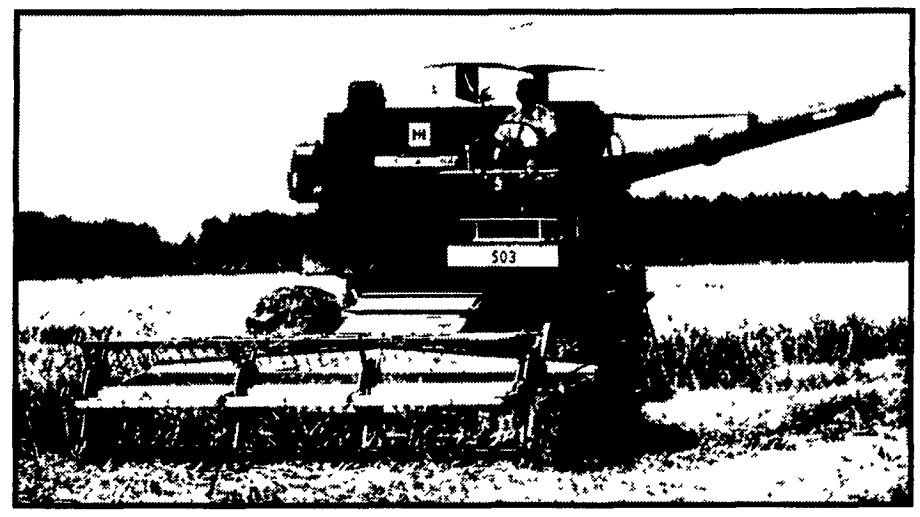
The Last Time Interest Rates Were This Low...



You Were Farming With One of These.

Financing

No finance charges until 9/1/02, or finance for as low as 5.4% APR for 36 months.

Savings

Trading up to a newer combine has never been more affordable than now!

Selection

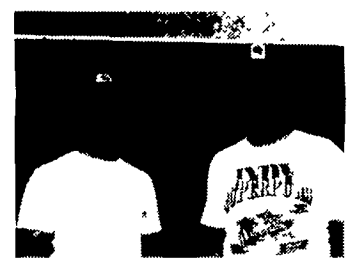
Great selection of locally traded rotary axial-flow combines to fit your budget.

Service

Hoober has 14 service technicians who work primarily on combines and their job is to keep you running through harvest season.

Warranty

100% Parts Warranty on the drive train until 12/31/01 - includes engine transmission and final drives



"We had a Case-IH 1660 that did a good job, but we were looking to expand our acres, so we got a 2366 this June The 2366 has more power and capacity and we can harvest faster It's got more screen sieves, more area to clean the grain, and does a better job When I hauled my wheat to the flour mill, he told me that's one of the cleanest wheat samples they had this season And Hoober service really makes a difference too, they stand behind the combine, and we got the most value out of our trade-in because they came and inspected our combine "

Bales wet or dry

For making 4-ft.-by-5-ft. hay, straw, or silage bales, there's nothing better than the New Holland Model 648 Silage Special. This Roll-Belt™ round baler has everything you need to bale crops your way:

- Bale-Slice™ option (on Fastnet™ models) cuts crop as the bale is formed, making it more dense and easier to feed or grind
- Wide, floating pickup swallows large windrows
- Endless belts – covered by three-year Bonded Protection – provide added durability in tough crops

High-quality CLAAS® equipment satisfies your need for high-quality silage

CLAAS knows your need for nutrient-rich silage so we offer technologically advanced, heavy-duty fixed chamber round balers and variable chamber round balers that produce perfectly formed, uniform, dense bales. Both models are available with ROLLATEX® net wrap or twine and the optional, efficient ROTO CUT® cutting system that pre-processes silage and adds greater density to every bale. Check our durable disk mower conditioners with a 9'9" cutting width. They follow ground contours for a clean, even cut. Discover reliable, heavy-duty tedders, available in 18' to 33' models, to accelerate dry down. And don't overlook our dependable, heavy-duty rotary rakes with tandem axles that adjust to uneven ground conditions to produce uniform, fluffy windrows. CLAAS can meet all your silage needs regardless of the size of your operation.

You're Invited To Be Part Of The Mid Atlantic Area's

2002 AG DIRECTORY

This exclusive publication will serve as the ultimate resource guide for county agents and state agricultural agencies, and also serve as a "Yellow Pages" for farmers all across the Mid Atlantic.

The 2002 Ag Directory will be included in Lancaster Farming's December 29, 2001 Issue, and be distributed at the Pennsylvania and Keystone Farm Shows. That's more than 55,000 booklets in circulation! This Directory is the only one of its type to be distributed in this area.
Be a part of it.

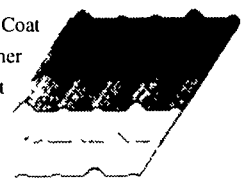
Everlast Roofing, Inc.

Metal Roofing & Siding

The Ultimate G-100 Process
"The Best"



NOTE! It is more important what is under the paint than what you see on top!

1 One of the best paints, superior acid rain, cracking resistance and color retention
2 Primer coat promotes outstanding top coat adhesion
3 Zinc phosphate pretreatment This is a very important process - if your current supplier cannot supply you with this or does not know, you should reconsider
4 G-100 Galvanized Most metal roofing has approx 40% less galvanized under the paint. G-100 is more galvanized than most unpainted panels
5 Full Hard Anything less than full hard will bend easier, lower snow loads, etc
6 Heat formed Metal is painted before ribs are formed Most paint cracks at bends, heat forming greatly reduces cracks (check metal siding that is installed for 5-10 years)
7 Stronger design, superior strength, more metal per L F
8 Add Everything Together And Price Should Be $53 37 Per Square $1 69 Per L F

OUR SPECIAL PRICE ONLY
$46.74 PER SQUARE
$1.48 PER LINEAL FT.

EVERLAST II EVERLAST II EVERLAST II

Metal Roofs Aren't Created Equal

EVERLAST II IS BETTER:

- it is galvanized heavier, like old times.
- it is heat formed, less paint cracks.
- is cut while hot, prevents early edge rust.
- won't scratch as easy, paint is harder.
- won't bend or buckle as easy, stronger design.
- laps are tighter, and virtually invisible.
- nail/screws seal better, ribs fit tighter to head.
- zinc phosphate, not chromate under paint.
- still priced about the same or less.

EVERLAST II
is excellent for houses and barns.

DOUBLE DIPPED GALVANIZED is proven best for animals.

STANDING SEAM

CAN ALSO BE PICKED UP OR DELIVERED FROM LEBANON PLANT

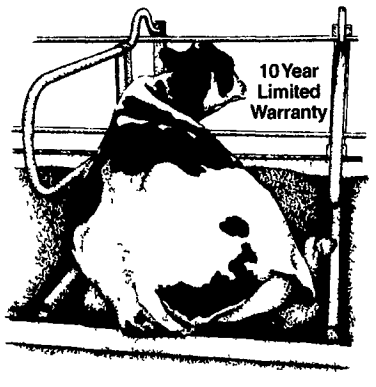
Waterbeds for Cows



The ALANTA Waterbed for cows is a revolutionary product, comfortable, safe and hygienic. It clearly improves your cows' well-being and therefore promotes higher milk production. It is the ultimate stall floor covering for the modern, animal-friendly dairy farm.

WELL MADE
The ALANTA Waterbed is made of two rubber layers with a water-filled compartment in between. GD-Enerka gives a 10-year guarantee.

COMFORTABLE
The waterbed molds itself to the cow's shape. It's cool in summer and pleasantly warm in winter.

SAFE
Thanks to the non-slip rubber upper surface, the cow is gripped firmly and cannot slip off. In this way the ALANTA waterbed keeps damage to hooves to a minimum.

Having Problems Getting Milk Cold?

Consider a Mueller precooler. It's an excellent way to lower the cost of cooling milk. It reduces milk temperature with water pumped straight out of your well. Mueller® precoolers are available in sizes to work with any system. If lower electric bills would make your life easier, call us and ask for more information on Mueller precoolers.

BEEF TIPS

Fall calves are lighter weight at birth

Oklahoma State University research shows that fall born calves average 4.8 pounds lighter at birth than their spring born counterparts. It is believed that hot and cold weather determine where the body shunts its blood supply.

Simmental breeders weigh every newborn calf. Heavyweight calves are culled, as Simmental breeders have been working at improving the Simmental breed by moderating frame, adding thickness, and emphasizing low birth weights and calving ease--while keeping the traditional Simmental strengths of high growth, good maternals, lean meat, high cutability, and calm disposition.

THE ADVANTAGES OF ROASTED CORN

* Earlier Harvest - Our roaster will dry corn down eight to ten points of moisture.

* Higher Digestibility - Research studies show that roasted corn is more digestible than high-moisture corn.

* Purer Feed - Our wet growing season has the potential of producing mold spores in standing corn that is harmful to livestock, swine and poultry. Our flame roaster can effectively remove mold spores.

* Drier Total Ration - With less fermented feed. Supplementing the hay and corn silage diet with dry corn aids better rumin health.

* Greater Profits - Dairy herds fed roasted corn advance two to eight lb. per cow in milk and improves herd health.
